THE MINING EXCHANGE.

Important Proceedings at Last Night's Meeting.

THE INSTITUTION TO GO ON.

The Exchange Will Make an Exhibit at the Territorial Fair.

Last evening a largely attended meeting of brokers and others took place in the rooms of the Salt Lake Stock Exchange, when the following business was transacted:

Secretary Horn read the call and said every bill against the exchange had been paid, leaving something over $100 in the treasury. There was due and owing the exchange for dues about $1,100.75, and assessments, $645; a total of $2,146.75; and about half the members—forty-eight—were delinquent. Several other inquiries were made as to the financial standing of the exchange and the number of mines that had paid their listing fees. The secretary further said that strenuous efforts had been made to collect the money due but with little or no success. On the list of October, all mines in arrears must be erased from the blackboard and the names of all members in arrears must be stricken from the roll of membership in accordance with a recent resolution of the board of directors. This step must be taken on the 1st, unless some action rescinding the resolution was taken this evening.

Mr. Hirsching said he thought the board of directors deserved a vote of censure for neglect of duty in allowing mines to be listed a whole year without the payment of any dues.

Mr. Hyde was of a similar opinion. He wanted to list a certain mine, but was told he could not do so without first paying $100. Yet a great many other mines had been allowed to remain on call without the payment of a solitary cent.

Mr. Hirsching said he proposed to offer a resolution censuring the board of directors.

Mr. Moses said he objected to any such proposition. The old board was dead and he saw no reason for kicking a corpse. The new board deserved no censure.

Mr. H. C. Wallace wanted to know what the monthly expenses of the exchange were, and on was informed that they reached between $400 and $450 per month.

Mr. Davis thought the expenses might be reduced and Secretary Horn said he would be perfectly willing to do anything in his power gratis.

Mr. Hirsching here offered his resolution of censure, but it failed to receive a second, and fell to the ground.

Mr. Moses thought in consideration of the fact that many mines were listed when the exchange first opened, without the consent of the owners, he did not believe that the owners of those mines should have bills pressed upon them.

Colonel Donnellan was of the opinion that thirty days' more time should be given before the resolution recently passed by the board of directors should be put in force, and he made a motion to that effect, and also that a committee be appointed to wait upon the delinquent mines and members and make a further effort to secure the money due.

Mr. M. K. Parsons said as one of the delinquent members he was willing to put up his check, providing the exchange were kept alive. He thought the matter of life or death could be decided in ten days as well as thirty.

Mr. Clayton thought that to let the exchange die at the present time would be a big calamity. He knew this from his personal correspondence. The exchange was now well known throughout the United States and to let it die would be to give a black eye to the mining industry of the Territory. Every business man in Salt Lake, whether a member of the exchange or not, was directly interested in the success of the organization. He was satisfied a personal visit to the delinquent members would show that they were willing to pay their dues and assessments. He hoped the resolutions of Mr. Donnellan would pass.

Mr. Hyde also spoke in favor of Mr. Donnellan and thought it would be a good idea to try and increase the membership of the exchange.

Mr. Parsons wanted to amend the motion so as to move the time extended ten days instead of thirty.

He was ruled out of order, and the motion of Mr. Donnellan passed.

Mr. Donnellan wanted to know whether the secretary could inform the members as to the lowest figure the exchange could be run for.

Mr. Treweek said the board of directors would meet in a few days, when that matter could be considered.

Mr. Donnellan then offered a resolution to the effect that it be the sense of the meeting that the mining exchange be continued.

Mr. Treweek took the floor and spoke in the resolution, showing how important to the territory was the mining exchange. There was considerable ignorance in the east in regard to the mines of Utah, and they should be more prominently advertised in the big mining journals of the east. To say that the exchange should go down was all rot. Everybody was interested in the life of the exchange, yet the merchants and bankers had given it but very little support. Many millions were to be won invested in the mines of the west, and Utah should get her share. He referred to the good work done for the exchange by the press of Utah, and when he closed, Mr. Parsons offered a resolution to the effect that the press of the city and Territory was entitled to the thanks of the exchange for the support given it. This resolution went with a will.

Mr. Horn called attention to the amount of information disposed by the mining exchange in the shape of circulars, etc., and said that the postage bill some months amounted to as much as $200. The existence of the exchange was a protection to the mining industry of Utah.

Mr. Hirsching thought as many offices should be established in connection with the exchange.

Mr. Donnellan moved that the exchange recommend to the coming legislature the advisability of establishing a school of mines in connection with the University of Deseret, and made a strong speech in favor of the proposition.

Mr. Moses moved that the DESERET NEWS be asked to give space in its columns to the daily proceedings of the exchange. Carried.

On motion of Mr. Wantland it was decided that the exchange should be well represented at the coming Territorial exposition.

Mr. Hyde moved that when the meeting adjourn it be until October 21, to hear the report of the committee. Carried.

On motion of Mr. Donnellan a meeting was ordered called at which the matter of amending the bylaws so that the membership could be increased from 100 to 200 should be discussed.

Adjourned till October 21.

DEATH OF W. J. WOODBURY.

A Promising Young Man Dies of Typhoid-Pneumonia.

The many friends of Brother Wm. J. Woodbury of the Seventh ward of this city will doubtless be surprised and pained to learn that he succumbed to death at 6:15 last evening. He has been ailing for about three weeks, but was not so seriously afflicted as to excite any alarm among his friends until about ten days since, when his ailment assumed the form of typhoid-pneumonia and he was compelled to take to his bed. Even since then, however, strong hopes were entertained for him, and his sudden collapse last evening caused general surprise. His wife is affected with the fever, also, and has been for a week past, which makes the shock caused by his death all the more severe upon her. Everything is being done for her that friendship and sympathy can suggest to counteract the effects of the malady.

The deceased was the son of Thos. H. and Harriet Woodbury, and was born in this city Nov. 25, 1857. He was an exemplary young man, a student and connected Saturday night and was respected and beloved by all who knew him. He filled a mission to the Southern States a few years since with great credit to himself and the cause, and has held a number of positions of trust and importance since returning, among which is the office of President of the Y. M. M. I. A. of the Seventh ward.

The services over his remains will be held in the Seventh ward assembly rooms at 1 p. m. tomorrow (Friday.)

"German Day."

"German Day" will be duly celebrated by the Germans of this city on the 4th inst.

At a meeting last evening the following programme was decided upon for the library entertainment:

*Opening address by our President (Dr. Fritz) ..... President Dr. Fritz
Band by T. Baumgart for the overture, and dedicated to the German ladies of Salt Lake City ..... Band
*Germania Greeting, Gesang ..... Germania
Recitation, "Die Wacht am Rhein" ..... Miss Hall ..... Miss P. Hartigan
*"Deutsch's Herz" (Lied) ..... Miss P. Hartigan
Addresses ..... Hon. Thomas Kearns, Hon. Thomas Marioneaux, Hon. Thomas Marioneaux
Duet, "Ich Liebe Dich" ..... Mrs. Rose A. Dalgish, Mr. H. Hartman, Joseph Hartman, T. Baumgart
Addresses ..... Hon. Joseph F. Smith, Hon. Robert Campbell
"Die Wacht am Rhein" and "The star Spangled Banner" ..... Germania

The street parade is expected to be an imposing affair. It will take place at 3 o'clock, and the exercises will commence at 8:30, in Central Hall. A ball will wind up the day's proceedings.

Irrigation Executive Committee.

Governor Thomas has received the following letter:

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
HELENA, OR., Sept. 29, 1891.

Hon. Arthur L. Thomas, Governor of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah:

My Dear Sir—Since receiving letter I have requested the Governor of Washington to name some resident of his state to act on a committee on the executive committee. I have also sounded our Governor Pennoyer that you are the chairman of such committee and expressed the hope that he will give us the help and encouragement we will need. I hope soon to receive the report of the congress, which will greatly enable me to write the wishes of the committee to the Governor and to the different leaders of commercial organizations, when the time comes for action by the committee.

With personal regards, I am yours respectfully, J. H. HOUGHTON.

Fultz; bass drum, H. Holbert; snare drum, Tom Mansfield.

Articles of Incorporation.

The articles of incorporation of the Provo Metallic Company were filed yesterday. The business of the company is to be that of a general mercantile nature, with the principal place of business at Salt Lake, and branches throughout the Territory. The capital stock is fixed at $25,000, in shares of the value of $25 each. The officers shall consist of five directors and a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. The annual meetings of the stockholders shall be on the first Monday in March of each year, to elect a board of directors and to transact other necessary business. Any of the officers of the company may be removed for cause at a stockholders' meeting on a majority vote.

The officers are J. P. Provo, president; John T. Thorup, vice-president; M. S. Wadley, secretary and treasurer, Spencer Clawson and G. R. Freeze, directors.

The stock is taken as follows: J. P. Provo, Salt Lake, 916; G. R. Freeze, Salt Lake, 10; J. T. Thorup, Salt Lake, 20; M. S. Wadley, Salt Lake, 20; Spencer Clawson, Salt Lake, 5.

Father Ignatius is back in England, and is saying things which are anything but complimentary to the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States.

THE COMING FAIR.

Another Meeting of the Board of Directors Last Night.

THE MARRIAGE CEREMONIES.

Entries for the Kennel Show.—Matters of General Interest.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the forthcoming fair last evening, Mr. E. M. Weller was appointed assistant superintendent in Class C, sheep and swine.

On motion the secretary was directed to invite Judge Rolich to perform the marriage ceremonies at the Fair on Tuesday, October 6, at 2 p.m.

The judges in the various departments were appointed, but will not be made public, though the assurance is given by the board that the very best men in the respective departments that the Territory affords have been selected.

The secretary presented the contract he had made with Messrs. Barney and Craig, of Denver, for the two balloon ascensions by Prof. P. F. Butler for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 7 and 8, which was approved.

The following special offers by citizens where the purpose was left to be applied by the board, were decided upon:

By Fuller & Young, for the best exhibit of lithographic work, $20 and a diploma by the society.

By Fred W. Graff, for the best exhibit of tobacco and home made cigars, $15 and a diploma by the society.

By O. L. Eliason, for the best ladies' street dress made of Utah material or elegant silver water set, value $50.

By the Salt Lake Rapid Transit company, for the best display of Utah knit goods, $25.

The board adjourned to meet at the fair grounds on Saturday evening at 7 o'clock.

Studebaker Bros. have changed their offer from the best all purpose team, to the best team for general farm purposes. The offer is an all steel self skidder, value $115.00.

FAIR NOTES.

The secretary has moved his office down to the fair grounds, and anybody having business with him will have to transact it there.

Prof. Butler, who makes the balloon ascension, wires from Monte Vista, Colo., that he is en route with his paraphernalia.

Mr. Smith Parker, supervisor of class "D," cattle, is in the city.

The entries for the hand contest will close on Saturday night, October 3, at 6 p. m.

W. B. Richards offers $5 special premium for the second best stallion, one year old and under two, standard trotting, also $10 for the best carriage horse, four years and upwards.

Walter L. Frost offers the services of his Shetland stallion Gipsy for life, value $15.00, for the smallest Shetland mare exhibited.

Goldsmith & Co. offer $10 for the best plain Utah made bridle.

Fred Trimmer offers $5 for the best display of Utah grapes of any of the following varieties, muscat, black hamburg, flaming tokay and malaga.

Special attention is called to the offer of O. L. Eliason as above stated for the best ladies' street dress, made of Utah material, as the time to make it is quite limited.

Mr. McDaniels, of the educational department, will also be at the fair building to take supervision of the necessary work of arranging the educational room, which is the one inclosed almost entirely in glass immediately in front of the main building. The school tables will also be placed in this room so that the knights of the quill will not be under the necessity of taking their notes and preparing their essays in the attitude of a jackknife or harmonica.

AMONG THE DOGS.

Intending exhibitors at the coming dog show also held a meeting last night. The first business was the making of entries, and almost sixty dogs were entered.

C. H. Macdougall, of Butte, Mont., entered his celebrated prize-winning Scotch deerhound dog, Alva Brock. Bloodhounds, five were entered; English setters, three, Irish setters, one, Pointers, one, Irish water spaniels, one, St. Bernards, two, Great Danes, three, Bulldogs, two, Bull terriers, four.

It is expected that the total number of entries will exceed one hundred.

A committee was appointed to report the names of judges to be chosen at the next meeting, and after some talk the matter was returned to Friday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the Knutsford, when all intending exhibitors are requested to attend and make their entries. Entries will be received up to Monday, October 5, at 10 o'clock.

WOMEN IN A VOLCANO.

THEY MAKE A PERILOUS DESCENT INTO POPOCATEPETL.

Mexico's Lofty Mountain Sealed by Three Plucky Americans—They Startle the Natives by Going Into the Crater—Starting Down the Mountain Side.

At midnight they rose from the rude couches in the mountaineer's hut where they had rested, and made ready. How? By dressing warmly, wrapping their feet and limbs in full upon foot of cloth, some at every step they must break the glazed crust, covering the unwitting snows beneath, and by shifting with thick rude thick-eyed and clumsy against the glare and sharp needles of the snow, though it was but moonlight.

Slowly then the three ladies, with their mountain friends, began the long walk. To each lady was assigned a guide familiar with the route, and it was his duty, as well as pleasure, to break the way for them by placing his larger foot down and through the crust so that their lighter shoes could be put down in his tracks.

It was a hard task of plodding wearily onward and upward, hardly daring to look behind, or lend her efforts upon the world, seemingly lying in close behind the ladies, but the sublime grandeur of the morning soothed the fatigue, stopped the most cool glimmers of the chilled land. Long, long before the sun broke through the clouds at their feet upon a stopping, into wrapped world below did they see its glorious dawn creeping from the far east and enthroned upon the heights toward which they climbed, human form so glow with a life none of their very, very early morning.

But at last, with their feet wrapping cut to pieces, they stood upon the borders of the volcano Popocatepetl. Glad enough were the workers below to rest in a year dollar, while their Indian guides and cook prepared their breakfast.

INVESTIGATING THE VOLCANO.

A faint mist lay rather more than upon the air of the crater, and the odor of sulphur was strongly perceptible. When breakfast being done and all preparations made, it became evident that the three Americans actually intended to descend to the sulphur beds in the bottom of the crater, the just Indians were seized with terror. No women's foot had ever trodden those dens and caves, those mines of sulphur, from which their labor had drawn its emotions. Even which Cortez obtained the means for the Europeans of their freedom. The sources of supply would be troubled, despoiled, should a woman's foot ever touch them.

They fell upon their knees and begged them to desist from the attempt. But the Americans had not braved the cold and danger of the ascent to return unsatisfied. On down they would. The Indians shook their heads and sighed bonnets, their hands, and muttered what kind of a spirit possessed women, would be who did not seem to be able to tinker their wives from carrying out this awful resolution. But, since they seemed to be no help for it, they prepared themselves to let down these extraordinary burdens upon the weak knees.

Yet there was nothing else for it not to go down as the gentlemen did upon the crossbeam of the rope, which the Indians slowly slacked from the top of the fair mint, if so the angel be called, keeping herself from being dashed against the craggy, pillar scoured and shaved walls by means of a strong cane or stick, with which she pushed herself away from the coarse rocks as she descended.

One of the ladies, not as strong as the others, became unconscious from the fumes of sulphur and had to be borne up to the air again.

FROM THE CRATER TO THE CITY.

What was the result? The Indians, poor, simple, simular chamber, of which the floor was an unseen, yellow dotted mosses, like a children whose cradle, or, as it should, which belongs in page holiday. Unpolished inner office, or half pillared or alphonsus manse filled in the world shop of the enlightenment. No language can fitly describe such an interior. Only those who are willing to use the poetic license the Americans paid can have the remarkable sensation of seeing and being inside of a volcano. Hot cues were restored to the upper air and the least remarkable part of the adventure remained to be told.

Starting down the heaviest the descent over the snow slopes up which they had toiled the night before looked sharp and dangerous, and too sharp and dangerous it was to attempt by foot as they had come up. The children were to take them down on the palanca. Broad planed boards were there, as stiff as an ordinary half inch board. The guide sat in front with a steering pole, which was also a stick of safety, since, if the descent became too rapid, there was imminent danger of the whole party being pitched head over heels down the steep, perilous slope of ice. Behind the guide sat the ladies, as here slide down hill, and at a given signal they flew.

Such a sled trip! Telegraphing is shifty as compared to it. The distance which it had taken six hours to climb was passed over again in just fifteen minutes. Then the whole party were once more before the house with a feeling that they had one more returned to the world, to which they had practically passed their lives, for their other experiences had seemed to belong to another sphere, that that of earth.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Little Florence's Idea of God.

Little Florence, two years old—her mamma was trying to explain to her (as best could in such a case) the question "Who is God?"—listened very attentively to the explanation, and, with a sigh of satisfaction, said: "I see Gods don't you, mamma! He's a good old man."

And after listening to the story of Jesus, she said: "Wish he didn't when he was a little boy! Were you his mamma?"—New York Tribune.

I feel it my duty to say a few words in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I can do entirely without saying Hallo. I have used it now or less half a year. I have found it to be most admirable. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostrom, 48 Warren Ave., Chicago, Ill.
