The Lamar, Colo., Sentinel states a lively and energetic young woman is cutting down of the cottonwood grove that fringes the Arkansas river at Cullen. Intelligent men have stated that planting a few trees improves most for everyone was seriously considering it.

Says the Denver News: In 1890, notwithstanding hard times and the comparatively decreased circulation of money, some at least thirty acres of cement tenement were sampled into Colorado from other states, expecting to carry off some of their business. If such tenants had been grown in Colorado, it would have been a great help to Colorado truck farmers.

James Caley, a carpenter on the Montana Union, lost his left leg at Butte on Sunday while engaged at his work. Caley stepped in between two cars to make a coupling, as he was coming out the head of the right car caught in a rut. He was thrown forward on the bar with the right leg lying on the rail. The leg was crushed to a pulp from the foot down to the calf. The mangled limb was unjointed and the man's life is despaired of.

John Hirst, employed as engineer at the Nelson tunnel at Creede, Colo., has committed suicide. He was sitting down and had a Winchester in his hands, placing the muzzle of the gun under his chin, and it is generally thought pulled the trigger with his right foot, leaving the top of his head off. Hirst had been sick for some time and became discouraged, and it is supposed he acted death.

Conference Jones, a mulatto, was shot twice by his wife, and died at his home in Cripple Creek, on Saturday night. The wife fired two shots at his back and right side, and the wounds have been pronounced fatal. The shooting resulted from a family quarrel. Jones was sharing his wife and grown daughter, the man from Texas and was a cousin to his father. He drew a 32-called pistol and shot twice with the above result.

Hasselrig made some disparaging remark when asked why he did not join the union. Two other members then knocked him down and kicked him into insensibility. On reviving consciousness he was in the receiving hospital. He did not know the names of his assailants and he stated could not tell.

The Casper, Wyoming, Herald states that a contract has been let for the erection at Casper of a building to accommodate the steaming machinery. The citizens subscribed some $[illegible] for the erection of the building for the experimental plant, which is to be very largely furnished if it proves a success. The only machinery ever tried in this country before was one in Denver, and some at the World's Fair. A small electric plant has also been ordered to assist the men who operate the machines in work day and night in eight hour shifts.

The citizens of Dayton, Nevada, enjoy the Fourth of July, have purchased the old Pioneer fire engine. It was bought for $[illegible]. The machine is larger than the one the town has before and will throw two streams of water. Accordingly it will take more men to handle. Incidentally thirty or forty to do. The engine has been put in first-rate repair by Captain Davis, and all that is necessary now is to see that it is kept in repair, and there will be little danger of any more serious losses by fire in the town.

The Washoe Institute is becoming more popular each year, reports the Gazette (Nevada) Sentinel. A great many have homes with its white marble steps, and some chickens and geese, a number have spring wagons and many other to see with their mothers and sisters out for a drive. They present a very amusing spectacle. One girl took a big pound cake out of a carpet and a case little under. The spectacle up and down the street reminded Gardnerville, and besides the others with the air of a professional sport.

The new fire alarm system which the council has erected was tested Monday afternoon, says the Laramie (Wyo.) Boomerang, and was found to work satisfactorily. Besides the six stations from which alarms can be sent from different parts of the city there is a box in the city's house and the alarm is also rung from an ice coop. When an alarm is turned in the fire bell and three gongs are sounded and an outlier at the city hall shower rings simultaneously the alarm ceases. The houses and the six stations are so well closed with the system that there is little to having an accidental alarm rung in. The new system is so that the location of the fire will be reported there as well as in the city hall.

On Saturday night a stranger walked into W. J. Kaufmann's law office, Walsenburg, Mont., and, in the presence of his wife and children, the mechanic of which was out, the stranger, who gave the name of Hubert Dolph, was going of the door of an old friend and his wife at Brampton, near Toronto, Canada, for fall. Dolph's mother was connected as the time mentioned and a man named McWalter to some reasons of death for the crime. Dolph declared that he knew the old man's name as Hubert was from being hanged. After spending the night he darted out of Kaufmann's office, ordered him to keep his mouth shut for a little while longer. Kaufmann turned the paper over to the officers and gave a description of Dolph, but he could not be found. Kaufmann is a Mormon of great standing and the officers are convinced that he did such a story as he reported, but do not know what to make of the case. It is supposed that it may be a trick to save McWalter, or he knew very have told the truth.

A story is being told in the Rocky mountains, Philadelphia, says the Chronicle, of the cause of disappearance of a man. The man's name is C. Donovan and he registered from New York upon his arrival at the hotel in the little town last month. Somewhat over a week ago Donovan left the city of the time home and never was Mr. Donovan. He had with him a photograph and a letter from a woman in New Jersey in which she offered this person for any information regarding the whereabouts of the Mr. Donovan. Donovan was permitted to see the photograph and was asked if it was not a good likeness of himself. He replied that he did not think it was, but he seemed but he was a business man of New York and had no wife in New Jersey. Then Mr. Silvey went outside to confirm himself that he has made the right man, and when he returned Mr. Donovan was missing. He gone have now stopped and Donovan is not seen. He left in his two valises, one of clothing, a hat and an umbrella were also.
