NEWS OF THE WEST.

Little Girl Impaled on a Picket Gate.

KILLED BY FALL FROM A CHURCH.

Year-Year-Old Boy Kicked, Probably Fatally—Killed by Indians—Celebration Scheme.

Philip Flood, a sheepherder, accidentally shot himself Friday, near Rawlins, Wyoming, and died shortly afterwards.

A Montana Union railway train at Warm Springs, Montana, on Friday, ran over William Riley, a miner, killing him.

At Butte, Montana, on Friday, James Blatchwick, a teamster, was killed by being thrown from his buggy by a runaway horse.

Alfred Fowl and Mrs. Josie Kessler, convicted of murdering the widow Indiana at Mountain Home, Idaho, were sentenced on Friday to imprisonment for life.

John Hoover, a missing sheepherder on John Herringer's ranch, Montana, was found dead about two miles from the ranch with his head split through his body, on Wednesday. His dog by his side. Both were killed by Indians. The Indians are making preparations for trouble, and the settlers are growing uneasy.

Elmer Rasmussen, aged 4 years, was kicked by a horse while playing in a vacant lot at San Francisco on Wednesday evening and sustained injuries from which he may not recover. The little fellow ran into the lot, and picking up a stick struck the horse several times, and the animal kicked him in the forehead, fracturing his skull.

By reason of a blunder on the part of Sergeant of Police Gleason, Inez Forrest, an eighteen-year-old girl, was released Friday Wednesday in the city prison at San Francisco, charged with having sold liquor without a license. The policeman got the wrong person, and even when told of it by responsible parties insisted on holding her in custody.

E. G. Sedgworth, a well known citizen of Sonoma county, Cal., died Wednesday from the effects of a fall sustained at Sebastopol, Cal., Tuesday. He was at work enlarging the new church there when the scaffold broke, throwing him nearly forty feet. When picked up it was found that he was partly paralyzed and injured internally. He was 62 years old.

Pocatello, Idaho, Tribune: Little Ellen Reeves, the eight-year-old daughter of Mayor and Mrs. W. T. Reeves, met with a terrible, accident Monday afternoon and is still in a very serious condition. The gate had been tied to keep the baby from going out, and Ellen, failed in her effort to untie the knot, decided to climb over. When standing on top of the gate, she fell, striking the pit of her stomach squarely upon one of the sharp pickets and causing a frightful wound. A physician was at once summoned and it took eight stitches to close the wound. The little girl is reported resting easier and the physicians now feel confident of her recovery.

It is now practically settled that the colonization project of the Salvation Army in California will be given a trial and that a number of destitute families will have an opportunity of paying for a home. Ex-Mayor Elliot, W. M. Donkey and M. J. Wrinkell of San Francisco visited Lions Sprechels Wednesday, with whom they had been conferring regarding the establishing of a colony on the land in the vicinity of the millionaire's beet sugar plant in the Salinas valley. The land would be rented to the colonists for a year at a nominal rent and at the expiration of that time would be sold on the same price paid by Sprechels. Beet raising would be the industry of the colonists, Sprechels agreeing to pay $4 a ton for all the beets raised. This, said ex-Mayor Elliott, should net the grower at least $8 a ton. A tract of 600 acres was offered by Sprechels and was virtually accepted.

Last Friday afternoon Zeda Lovell, sixteen-year-old girl residing in San Francisco, had to wait for Albert Schulize as he left his work and gave him a good beating with a knotted strap. Now she and her sister, Mrs. Annie Elliott, who was an shelter in the assault, are in the city prison with charge of battery against them. According to the story told by Zeda Lovell in justification of the clubbing she gave young Schulize, who is but two years her senior, she had until a month ago lived with Schulize's family. She left the house on account of Schulize's treatment of her and went to live with Mrs. Annie Ellinson at 1121 Kearney street. After she had left the Schulize home Miss Lovell claims that Schulize rallied about her among her neighbors. At last she went to court and decided to put an end to his taunting. Acting upon this determination she secured a stout strap, on one end of which she tied a hard knot. Then, in company with her sister and Mrs. Ellinson, she made her way to Schulize's place of employment and waited for him to come home. When he came she set upon him and gave him several hard raps on the head with the knotted end of her strap. He fought back, and other parties interfered.

The Selection of Breeders.

In the first place, is the specimen selected for a breeder healthy? Has it ever shown symptoms of disease or weakness? Has it shown a disposition to take care of itself and a strong constitution by taking the lead among its mates? Early maturity is a valuable quality in all breeds, as is rapid growth, early fattening and activity. These points being understood as to each specimen, then select with reference to the following points: The male should be elegant in symmetry, good in color, strong, vigorous, courageous and gallant; are, a good average of his kind. The females should show strong constitution, large size and good color. The shape or symmetry should be good by all means, and on the whole they should be equally as good as the male. After the selections have been made, then the best and most important step is to care for them, for to this may be attributed a part of the success or failure of the season in the end. If the stock designed to breed from is ingorged or fed and cared for and are suffered to go into the breeding season not fully matured, they cannot be expected to produce the best of young.—Poultry Monthly.

An Important Gland.

There is a gland at the point of the ramp of fowl that has only an obscurance that tends to keep the feathers in this region oily and sleek. This gland is the largest of the superficial glands of the body, and sometimes the critic through which the blood circulates in this becomes obstructed. Then the region of the gland swells and becomes painful. The afflicted fowl becomes sluggish and generally indisposed, and when it is caught and examined the seat of suffering can be readily discovered.

If the gland cannot be emptied by gentle pressure, a small incision should be made into it with a sharp knife and its contents removed. If however, the condition has existed for a long time, the gland may fill with a thick, cheesy like material that cannot be squeezed out. It then becomes necessary to make a somewhat larger opening and scoop the substance out with the handle of a small spoon or other similar object. Then the cavity should be washed out by injecting into it a very weak solution of carbolic acid. To prevent the parts from becoming hard while healing an application of oil or cosmoline should be made.
