One of the finest photos of Rocky mountain scenery ever taken is on exhibition in H. L. A. Culmer's office. It represents one of the great peaks in the San Miguel range in the midst of a storm. The effects of the sunlight streaking through rifts in the masses of clouds and lighting up the vast snow drifts with limelight brightness and with most startling effects in contrast with the dense shadows and the dark pines. The storm is half over the ridge, and the general effect is so real that one can sit and watch its progress and almost see the whirling of the snows, eddying currents, and broken masses of cloud chase each other over the top of the peak.

MODERN BUSINESS.

Subject Made Theme of Interesting Address by Francis Sheldon.

The parlors of the Commercial club were well filled last evening on the occasion of the lecture before the business men of this city, by Francis Sheldon of Chicago, on "The Science of Modern Business Building." The speaker held that building up a business and in fact any business transaction is just as much of a science as astronomy, chemistry or electricity. Business is the term applied to the science of distributing the world's products. After citing historical allusions in illustration of the genesis and development of methods of transacting business, the speaker said there is more benefit to be derived from conservative, sensible co-operation than in cut-throat competition; this competition which makes one merchant undersell another, just to gain trade, is the opposite of scientific salesmanship. This latter means selling at a profit, a profit that is substantial and not exorbitant.

Mr. Sheldon held that honesty is the best policy, as by treating a customer fairly, faith in the dealer is created, and the pleased customer is the best customer. Harmony between employer and employe was referred to as something to be most desired, and it was shown that it is far easier to rule with love than with the lash. The employe must be interested in his employer's business, and the employer must be interested in his employe. People who patronize the store should be studied by both dealer and clerk, their peculiarities noticed, their general nature made a study, because being judges fo human nature enables clerk and merchant to be pleasant to the buying public and in this way add to the patronage of the institution they represent. The requirements needed in successful business then were mentioned by the gentleman. They must study, because being judges of human nature, ambitious, active and believers in the supreme rulership of God, and the fellowship of man.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus With One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Clebourne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggists sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me to the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one twenty-five cent bottle cured the three of us." For sale by all druggists.
