Priesthood Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Priesthood of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion convened in the Assembly Hall, Salt Lake City, today (Saturday, Oct. 3rd, 1891), at 11 a.m., Joseph E. Taylor and Charles W. Penrose, of the presidency of the Stake, presiding.

The meeting commenced with singing and prayer, after which the roll was called, showing a good attendance of the presiding authorities of the wards. The Elders' quorums were meagerly represented by their presidencies.

On the recommendation of their respective Bishops, twelve young men received certificates authorizing their ordination to the office of Elders.

COUNSELOR C. W. PENROSE gave a brief and interesting report of a visit to South Cottonwood on Sunday last, September 27th, where he attended a conference of the following named wards: Mill Creek, East Mill Creek, Big Cottonwood, South Cottonwood, Union and Granite. The speaker referred to the Central Seminary at Big Cottonwood supported by those six wards, and reported its present condition and future prospects. The establishment of other Church schools in various parts of the Stake was earnestly advised. It should be understood, however, that these schools were not to interfere in any way, or to supersede the district schools. There was need of both kinds of schools. We desire to have our children taught the principles of the Gospel, along with knowledge of a secular nature, but to teach religious doctrines in schools supported by public taxation would be unfair as well as unlawful. But in the Church schools this could be done with propriety, and such schools should be multiplied. The speaker strongly urged the founding of a Central school similar to that at Mill Creek, by a united effort of the wards west of the Jordan river. He explained on the necessity of education, both spiritual and secular, and hoped to see an increase of interest in this very important matter.

COUNSELOR JOSEPH E. TAYLOR

addressed his opening remarks to the young men present. He warned them and all others against neglect of duty, intemperance and evils of all kinds. He would not advocate sectarian, but enjoined temperance, virtue and sexual purity, and urged the young to refrain from sin and preserve as long as possible the powers of their minds and bodies. The Mutual Improvement Associations, now resuming their sessions for the winter, should be encouraged and sustained by the Bishops as much as possible. Wholesome recreations for the youth should be provided, also, by the ward officials, and every effort made to attract the youth and and repel them. Meeting houses, however, should not be turned into halls of amusement, but other suitable places should be provided for that purpose. Sunday meetings should be made as interesting as possible, and young and old induced to attend them faithfully. The evils of speculating, and running into debt were dwelt upon. That man who mortgaged his house and mortified the roof that covered himself, his wife and children in this manner, without the best of reasons for it, was not justified of God. Taking of usury—exorbitant interest—were also referred to. Such would lose the Spirit of the Lord. The Saints, the speaker also said, should live at peace and avoid needless litigation. The Church had courts and tribunals for the settlement of difficulties between brethren and sisters, and they should not plunge heedlong into expensive and strife-breeding litigation, when a little friendly mediation might suffice to settle all trouble. The care of the poor was not forgotten by the speaker, and the Saints urged to sustain the hands of the Bishops in this very important duty. The speaker asked a few remarks upon the proper method of administering the Sacrament. It is not lawful, he reminded those present, to give the sacrament to those not baptized into the Church. In large congregations it was impracticable to discriminate in this respect, but whenever possible it should be done.

The meeting adjourned till the first Saturday in November.

Democratic Mass Meeting.

Pursuant to a call of the county Democratic central committee, a convention of Democratic electors was held in this city on Saturday night. Ex-Governor West acted as chairman and J. H. Latcher as secretary.

The call for the mass meeting was read, and on motion of Mr. A. T. Schroeder a committee of ten, to wit: Messrs. Johnson, Stott, Judd, Pace, Jones, Nelson, Richards, Dyer and Stringfellow, with Mr. Schroeder as chairman, was appointed to suggest a list of names for delegates to the Territorial convention called to meet in Salt Lake City, Oct. 19th. The committee retired for consultation and during its absence the meeting was addressed by Messrs. Timoney, Caine and Chambers.

The committee then came in and reported the following list of delegates:

James Rawlins, N. R. Hakinson, C. G. Johnson, W. C. A. Smith, Jr., M. L. Scott, O. P. Miller, Rupert Brown, M. P. Arnett, John C. Mackey, Geo. Adams, A. T. Schroeder, S. S. Williams, J. R. Walden, Wm. Fuller, George Stringfellow, J. W. Judd, S. A. A. Merritt, C. W. West, J. H. Moyle, E. C. Chambers, A. E. Hyde, Harry Roberts, R. A. Smith, J. H. Rossell, Jr., F. S. Farnsworth, F. L. Williams, F. S. Richards, R. W. Young, J. L. Rawlins, D. C. Dunbar, F. H. Dyer, F. Armstrong, H. C. Lott, George Cullins, T. J. Alley, John T. Caine, C. M. Nelson, N. A. Parks.

ALTERNATES.

2—W. Vandell, J. H. Latcher.
3—W. A. Hodges, E. A. Pulham.

The report of the committee was adopted and the convention adjourned.

What Does It Mean?

"100 Doses One Dollar" means simply that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most economical medicine to buy, because it gives more for the money than any other preparation. Each bottle contains 100 doses and will average to last a month, while other preparations, taken according to directions, are gone in a week. Therefore, be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier.

The Peary Expedition.

If the reader will turn to the map of Greenland and follow the northeastern coast with his finger till he comes to a point 77 degs. 43 min. north latitude, he will be at the exact spot in Prudhoe Land where Lieutenant Peary, with his broken leg, his wife and a few devoted followers, will spend the months of long arctic darkness waiting for the break of the next spring. Then in April or May Peary will attempt to sledging through Greenland to approach as near as possible to the north pole next summer by land. This is a way which has never been tried yet, although in 1869 the lieutenant made such an exploring trip 170 miles into the interior of Greenland. He believes, however, that the north coast of that country reaches in its extreme land far farther than to 83 degs. If so reaches this limit he will then be within less than 300 miles of the north pole itself. In 1881 Greelywood and Brigham, of the Greely expedition, gained a point of latitude 83 degs. 24 min. north, near the same northern coast for which Peary will aim.

Peary expects to make depots of provisions along the route as he goes northward. Himself and the ten members of his party who come out in the best shape in the spring will make the trip northward, carrying surveying materials and provisions on small sledges that will be dragged by the explorers themselves, probably. Peary doubting the utility of taking dogs.

Will their fellow countrymen ever see Lieutenant Peary and his plucky wife again? Some of the party who came back to the Kite when it turned out of McCormick bay, on the north shore of Smithson sound, through Hallin's bay southward and home again, are of opinion that the explorers will add their names to those of the victims of the frozen, cruel north. For one thing, Peary's plan of return is pronounced by experienced whalers to be utter madness. The Benevent experts that passing whalers will bring no party back next summer. Failing in this, he will make for Upernavik, 500 miles south, through snow, fog and ice, on the whaleboats he has with him. This attempt, they believe, will be certain destruction. It looks now as though the American people will be called on to send another expedition next summer over the track pursued by the Kite, here it reaches Camp Ferry in time to cross away before the ice closes in in 1892, and bring all the starved explorer. This of course will be gladly done.

Great Day in Great Britain.

British school children this September went for the first day in their lives to a free school. Never will this year of grace, 1891, be the British known the opening of a free public school, although it might have learned all about it from America long ago if he had only been willing to acknowledge that he did not know everything already. It is to be noted particularly, too, that this gift comes from a party Tory government instead of a Liberal one. In the future this fact of giving free schools to the British public will constitute the Tory Party in the eyes of the country government.

Yet, like all great days, that which begins the new educational era in Great Britain was a little disappointing. The easy thing which caused now nearly open schools were needed was the fact that only a few of the parents even knew that the schools were to be free henceforth. Thousands of the young ones entered the school doors with the usual fees in their hands and there was scarcely any increase of attendance at all. Plainly, the masses of the English people do not read the papers. The fact had been published for 3d wide for months that school fees were abolished, but only the lowest number of parents knew of it. Imagine such a state of affairs in America! Well, for in large free schools will produce a nation of newspaper readers in Great Britain.

If you were a photographer and lived in Germany and should make and exhibit a picture of the emperor with his beard half grown and stubby, and on handkerchiefs you would be visited by the police, frightened within an inch of your life and your pictures confiscated and destroyed. For its arrogant titlebess, Emperor William, has issued an edict that no portrait shall be made of him till the beard he is trying to grow is matured. Imagine President Harrison shaving off his beard, then sending forth to the nations over an edict issued so order that no photographer shall catch him till it grows out again.

One feature of working girls' picnics and outings is always the dancing, which they seem to enjoy as well without as with men. The last thing a party of girls would think of on an outing would be dancing. This shows a radical difference in the sexes that the psychologists have not taken sufficient cognizance of. Perhaps in the coming race dancing will be given over to girls altogether, as it is in the oriental nations.

If every traveler on a southwestern railway carried a loaded revolver, knew how to use it and would use it in the nick of time to blow the confederates of anybody who menaced him in a car, then it would be impossible for six masked men to capture a mail train.

From Buttermaking.

Mrs. J. W. Ambrose, a first class farm buttermaker, sends us the following in regard to her methods:

In the first place we must have good milk from healthy cows. Put the milk about three inches deep in crocks that have been well rinsed in scalding water and then cooled. Milk should stand until the milk goes thick in the bottom of the crocks. The cream is much thicker then when the milk stands longer and should be taken off immediately and churned as soon as ripened.

Never let butter stand till churned, but put into fresh cold water and churned a few minutes. Then add some salt to it, and you will find it tastes as sweet as ever.

WHY THE DESERET NEWS SHOULD BE SUBSCRIBED FOR IN PREFERENCE TO ANY OTHER PAPER.

1. It is the Organ of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and the authorized medium through which the views, wishes and instructions of the Church Authorities are expressed, and all news relating to the Saints.

2. It may always be relied upon as advocating or defending the right side of every question proper for public journals to treat upon.

3. It is devoted to the interests of the Latter-day Saints and has, from its inception, valiantly defended their rights and advocated the principles in which they believe; and every Latter-day Saint should therefore feel it his or her obligation to do his part in helping to sustain it.

4. It is not published for speculation, and never has been, but for the good which is its capacity of accomplishing; the profits, if any there be, derived from it, being devoted to extending its sphere of usefulness, and benefiting the community.

5. It is doing its utmost to establish home industries, among which are paper making and type-founding, stereotyping and electrotyping—branches necessary to the development and independence of the community, but which, during their infancy (which is the Territory they have not yet passed), can only be carried on at a pecuniary loss.

6. There is no danger of any subscriber to the News failing to get what he subscribes for through failure of the business and a suspension of the publication—a result to the ruin of hundreds of newspaper ventures every year.

7. It is now printed throughout in new and readable type, so that even the most aged persons it without difficulty or danger to their eyesight.

8. It is free from objectionable advertisements that parents need fear that his children will have their minds corrupted from having access to it in fact, it refuses thousands of dollars worth of the best paying advertisements annually, because it is devoted to the moral and spiritual interests of its readers instead of to getting gain at their expense.

9. Its tone is not regulated by public opinion nor the hope of gaining subscribers or advertisements. It advances that which is right and condemns that which is wrong, regardless of wealth, financial or otherwise.

10. It never measures its readers by padding off columns of subjects for news items.

11. The News practices no deception and resorts to no subterfuges to induce people to subscribe, but on the contrary, has been published for 60 months as the people's newspaper, with a promise only to do its utmost to give the income the full value of their money—a promise which it has endeavored to fulfill by keeping in the past.

12. In conclusion, if a Latter-day Saint can afford to subscribe for only one newspaper, that paper should be the Deseret News, and if more than one, the News should invariably be the first.
