DESERET EVENING NEWS.

Friday, - - March 9, 1894.

FRAGMENTS.

Edward [illegible], of [illegible], and L. M. Waddell, city, have been commissioned notaries public.

Hamer Watson and James Madison, arrested on a charge of cruelty to animals, have been discharged from custody.

The Utah Mathematical society will hold a meeting in the University this evening at 7:30. Prof. W. J. Kerr will deliver a lecture on [illegible], followed by F. W. Reynolds on [illegible]. Division of Fractions will be treated from a pedagogic standpoint by J. W. Hooper. The music will consist of a piano solo, E. A. Peterson, and a selection by the University Glee club. The public is invited.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETING.

Business Transacted at the Session Held Last Night.

The board of education held a meeting last night and transacted a considerable amount of business. All the members were present, President Nelson occupying the chair.

Henry Pinnock sent in a communication in which he proposed to sell the board a site of 10x10 rods on the northeast corner of block 35, plat B, for $8,000. Committee on sites and buildings.

The matter of the exchange of the Third ward site for a tract of land in La Vela Place was laid on the table for another week.

The clerk was authorized to rent an additional safety deposit box at the Utah National bank.

Architect Hale sent in a communication relating to the plans of the Oquirrh school. Filed.

It was decided that the successful architect be paid one-half when the contract is entered into between the board and the builder, 25 per cent when the roof of the structure is on and 25 per cent when the building is accepted.

The bill of the Salt Lake Heating company was disallowed. The claim was for $60 and was made through a misapprehension.

The following new rule was adopted for observance in the schools:

It shall be considered a violation of rule 24 for any pupil directly or indirectly to give circulation or publication to any epithets, statements, or remarks, whose effect would be to throw contempt or ridicule upon any teacher or officer of the public schools or their administration.

Appropriations were made amounting to $1,782.04.

It was ordered that trees be trimmed at several of the schools and that new ones be planted where necessary.

The cost of heating and ventilating the various automatic systems in the school buildings from September 1, 1893, to March 1, 1894 is shown in the following table prepared by the committee on furniture and supplies: Hamilton, $282; Sumner, $98.50; Lincoln, $210; Bryant, $388.50; Fourteenth, $216; Franklin, $400; Jackson, $237.50; Washington, $582; Lowell, $[illegible]; Wasatch, 171.

Cost of schools heated by stoves: Old Third, $10.[illegible]; Fourth, $[illegible]; [illegible]; Seventh, $[illegible]; Eighth, $[illegible]; Ninth, $[illegible]; Tenth, $[illegible]; Twelfth, $[illegible]; Thirteenth, $[illegible]; Seventeenth, $[illegible]; Twenty-first, $[illegible]; Oquirrh, $[illegible]; Davis, $[illegible]; Forest, $[illegible]; Poplar Grove, $[illegible]; Ontario, $[illegible]; Liberty Park, $[illegible]; South Lowell, $[illegible]; High School, $[illegible]; Whitney, $[illegible].

In the Land Office.

Henry C. James, of Salt Lake City, has filed in the land office homestead entry No. 10,54[illegible], for the northwest quarter of section [illegible], township [illegible] south, range 12 east.

James Heber Myers, of Minersville, Beaver county, filed homestead entry No. 10,541, for 160 acres in section 10, township 29 south, range 11 west.

William F. Bettingsley, of Minersville, Beaver county, filed homestead entry No. 10,541, for 161.26 acres in section 2, township 29 south, range 11 west.

The commissioner of the general land office has ordered a hearing in the contest filed by Ephraim Wight against the Central Pacific Railway company, involving the northwest quarter of section 33, township [illegible] north, range 2 west. The case has been set down for hearing for March 28th.

Anniversary Party.

Sister Mary Ann Woolley, wife of the late Bishop E. D. Woolley of the Thirteenth ward of this city, reached her seventieth birthday yesterday. She is the mother of eleven children, seven of which are living, three sons and four daughters, twenty-eight grandchildren, two grandsons and fourteen granddaughters living, oldest eighteen and youngest nine months. Besides her own, Mother Woolley took charge of the Bishop's first family who were left without a mother, when the youngest, Bishop Marcellus Woolley, of the Twenty-first ward, was about four years old. Sister Woolley is hale and hearty, retaining all her faculties and we hope she will live to see as many more anniversaries if she wishes. All the family except that of Elder Abram Hatch, president of the Wasatch stake, assembled at their mother's home, where they partook of a sumptuous repast prepared by herself and spent the evening in listening to songs and music, and engaging in games suitable for the entertainment of the little ones.

To Ward and Stake Officers.

We desire to call immediate attention to ward and Stake superintendents and secretaries of Sunday schools, and different missions who have not already sent in their reports for 1893, to do so at once. Ward superintendents should send their reports for 1893 to their Stake superintendent or secretary, and these officers should lose no time in compiling a careful and complete report, which should represent every school in the Stake, and forward the same to the general secretary, Elder John M. Whitaker, 334 Constitution Building. Please have this matter attended to at once. Your brethren,

GEORGE Q. CANNON,
GEORGE GODDARD,
JOHN MORGAN,
General Superintendency of Sunday Schools.

RECIPROCAL TRADE IDEA.

"Home Industry Hustler" Writes on the Duty of the People.

United Effort Will Make Utah a Great Commonwealth, Trade Centre and Exporter of Products.

Editor Deseret News:

Gradually the feeling is growing stronger that the present movement in favor of home industries is going to win and that an era of great industrial progress will follow.

The splendid articles published in the NEWS last summer, giving [illegible] the enormous amounts sent out of the Territory for various articles which could just as well be produced at home, made many converts. The [illegible] losses from depreciation of silver, wool and cattle bring home to the people the necessity of closely studying the general situation and the fact that money must be kept at home. The prosperity of the past few years turned the heads of many people. Extravagance [illegible] as a basis which would seem to indicate that there was no end of money to pay the bills.

It is not easy for persons to regulate their habits of living and to change from luxury and extravagance suddenly to a more [illegible]. When it has to be done, however, it is easy to get people to think of everything connected with the subject. That being the case, it was [illegible] that the home industry [illegible] would now be taken up as never before. The efforts of the past few weeks show that the theory part of the movement is correct. "What everybody says must be so," and what two or three believe vigorously taken up by the friends of the few can be made the cause of the community.

The movement is now the cause of the whole community. It is being made a matter of personal concern. All see the necessity of the situation, all will take measures to carry into execution the plans proposed to accomplish the results. Starting at Salt Lake the movement is spreading.

Word comes to the bureau from all directions that the people are moving on the same lines. Soon we will know that there is a sentiment general in the intermountain districts that will hereafter justify the belief that any good institution started at home will receive the sympathy and support of western people. The present manufacturing institutions properly supported will prove that new ones will be sustained properly and thus will it be easier in the future to get new industries to come to us from the outside and to get our own capitalists to encourage them.

Our banks cannot build factories directly, but with the feeling of security that will be general with proper patronage given by the people, the banks will gladly foster the manufacturing interests of the Territory.

The railroads of the West are now giving more attention to the location of new industries than ever before. The events of the past year have forced it upon them and any legitimate factory propositions will now be assisted by the railroad companies. To a great extent will the establishment of factories in Salt Lake, Ogden and Provo help both the Rio Grande and Union Pacific roads. They not only have the haul in on each of the raw materials we have to be brought, but they have the entire distribution of the manufactured product. We cannot expect them to demoralize a good business in some line to build up a very small industry that, if supported by our own people, would not have any excuse to expect, but forming a good business on a permanent basis with a reasonably large output the support of the railroads is assured. Both theory and practice are in favor of this course.

Utah will get the reciprocal trade idea thoroughly established. We get certain articles from Colorado and Colorado must get a corresponding or a greater amount of good from Utah instead of buying farther east.

Certainly the railroad between here and Denver and Pueblo will be interested to aid and support that proposition.

California sells us fruit early in the season and we get lumber from Oregon. Our people spend a good deal of money in California for pleasure and business. Now when our glass works are started up California will buy some of our product.

When our packing house and chemical works are started California and Oregon will support us. Surely the Central Pacific will be satisfied to get the same freight on the goods manufactured here as it gets from goods made farther east, and the Union Pacific with the short line [illegible] transportation will be satisfied to haul from Salt Lake to Oregon on the stage [illegible], at rate that it now gets for a longer haul.

The reciprocal trade idea once thoroughly established Boise, Helena, Butte, Anaconda, Spokane, Dayton and cities east and west will be dealing partially at least through Salt Lake and Ogden brokers. The cities will then be good trade centers and our inland merchants will all be supplied. The intermountain cities thus being in close communication with each other will find many bonds of sympathy pulling them together in addition to the commercial idea.

Gradually these questions will be discussed and among the events of the year 1894 will be the intermountain [illegible] business commercial union. The strange thing is that a year has passed —a year of trial to the individual and distress to the community and the movement is still in its infancy. It ought to be a well grown affair by this time. Possibly it is better to have conditions get to bedrock before the supreme effort is made.

DOINGS AT ANN ARBOR.

The Utah Members of the School.—[illegible] Story of Salt Lake's Perils.

THE DESERET NEWS BUREAU,
[illegible] Geddes Avenue,
Ann Arbor, Mich.,
March 4, 1894.

After the terribly cold spell of weather we have had, balmy spring-like weather is now here. We all enjoy the change very much. The snow is nearly all melted, ground dry in places, boys playing marbles, etc.—in fact, all points to spring. The mails between Utah and Michigan have been quite unsatisfactory the past week or two, causing us feel blue at those at campus [illegible] some [illegible] at home.
