CITY COMMITTEES MEET.

The Ice Ordinance Discussed, and Also the Disposal of Sewage.

The standing committee of the City Council held their regular meetings in the joint building last evening to discuss matters referred to them at the last Council meeting.

The sanitary committee had brought to their attention by Dr. Dalby the violations of the ice ordinance that have and had been going on in the city for months past. Several offenders have been arraigned in the police court, but has fought the cases so ably and vigorously that they had come out victors in the end. The committee examined the ordinance critically, and as they could see no defects in it, a decision was arrived at to refer the matter to Police Justice-elect Wenger, that he might report as to whether or not the ordinance, in his opinion, should be strengthened.

The petition of Walter K. Perkins in which he asks for a lease on certain quarry ground in Emigration canyon was reported upon favorably by the committee on public grounds, they having investigated the report that the land in question contained valuable lithographic stone deposits, and found it to be untrue.

The petitions asking that the back stand nuisances be abated were considered by the street committee, which arrived at the conclusion that inasmuch as the ordinance relating thereto was being violated every day, that it was in the province of the chief of police to serve the citizens affected if they did not comply with the law.

The sewage question was taken up by the committee on streets, the consideration being as to the advisability of reopening the mouth of the sewer. The matter was finally referred to Engineer Young, who will submit recommendations to the Council at its next meeting.

Whitney on "Utah."

Hon. O. F. Whitney is to speak before the University club on Saturday evening, subject, "Utah; an Historical Sketch."

A Farewell.

ALMY, Nov. 20, 1895.—Our esteemed friend James H. Hood, who for many years has been a resident of Almy, Wyo., with his family, taken the road for Salina, Utah, where he anticipates making his future home. The citizens of Almy and Red Canon regret very much the loss of so social and public-spirited a man as Mr. Hood. He has for several years been his leading musical spirit in our midst, and has shown his talent in that line by the unbounded success with which he has met while instructor and leader of the Almy Brass Band and the L. D. S. choir, both of which have a wide and excellent reputation.

Last Friday night the members of the brass band and friends gave him a very pleasant and entertaining party; also presented him with a very beautiful and costly gold chain and charm.

On Monday night he was again summoned to appear at the public hall to join in the farewell party given by the choir, of which he has been chorister as also conductor. The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, and a more sociable and pleasant time has not been had for a long time. The evening was spent in dancing, singing, speechmaking, lunching and showering Mr. Hood with best wishes. He was also presented with a purse, for same as part respect of his many friends.

We will hearty join our hearty congratulations, and hope his labors will at his new home be appreciated and crowned with the same success that they have been here. By the way, we will simply say that he is one of the leaders and satisfied with the change, come here and be glad and warmly received. Ray.

A DEVOTED LIFE ENDED.

Elder McMurrin's Eloquent Tribute to Mother Tippett.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 19, 1895.

To the Editor:

I read a brief notice in the DESERET WEEKLY of Nov. 9th, regarding the death of Sister Mary Ann Tippett, late of Swansea, England, and being somewhat familiar with her life I have felt moved to write you in reference to her, so that her noble example of faith and unselfishness as a believer in the restored Gospel might be brought promptly before all the readers of your valuable paper. Sister Tippett received the Gospel nearly fifty years ago in her native land and has been an earnest witness of its principles from that time to the day of her death. Her experience has been like many more who have received the truth in this dispensation; she met with determined opposition to embracing it, and in her case it can be truthfully said that the scripture was fulfilled wherein it declares the Lord would take "one of a city and two of a family" and bring them to Zion, for while she had a large family and numerous relatives she and one daughter were the only ones of her household who had the courage to unite with the unpopular church. To her, however, the doctrines of the Gospel were as the dews of heaven to the parched ground. She received them with joy and thanksgiving, and though her great part of her life in England was spent separate from any organization of the Church, yet she never listened to nor advocate of the cause she had espoused. On the contrary she was "instant in season and out of season" in warning all with whom she came in contact of the restoration of the Gospel; in fact she labored like a missionary, disposing of Church publications wherever she could and distributing tracts among the people; and when our Elders called on her they received a hearty welcome and found her ever ready to lend a helping hand, especially to go out on the streets and assist in holding open-air meetings.

She had hoped that the husband and others of her relatives would have received the Gospel, and so could her departure for this land was delayed many years on this account; but though her desire in this respect was not realized, it certainly can be said that there are other homes made in Zion tonight whose hearts beat with responsive sentiments to those which animated her own as a result of her faithful and untiring labors.

But the subject that weighed most heavily upon her mind, and which she always contemplated with deep interest and pleasure, was that of salvation for the dead, and it is because of what I know of her in reference to this sublime principle of true religion that I have felt constrained to send you this feeble effort. She traced her genealogy back nearly three hundred years, and came to Utah about two years ago, having two desires burning in her breast first, to enter the Temple of the Lord and complete the work necessary for the redemption of her kindred, and second, to lay her own body down in Zion's mountain home. On her arrival here she went to southern Utah and spent about a year with her only relative in this country, the daughter above referred to. But to remain there and rest, in her, was impossible, in view of the fact that her dear ones behind the veil were dependent upon her to work for them in the House of the Lord. So she made her way to Salt Lake City with this purpose in her thoughts by day and in her dreams at night. Active here she looked around for friends in search for, but they were few indeed; for while many thousand to her story, each had his or her own interests and affairs to engage their attention, and they shunned her. She was not to be thwarted, however, in the last great object of her life. By faith and prayer she pressed forward to its accomplishment, and the Lord in tender compassion remembered her, either by a dream and Patriarchal Blessing in the person of Apostle Francis M. Lyman, through whom she succeeded in commencing the work that was nearest her heart. And how she did rejoice in it. On that every Latter-day Saint would manifest her faithful example, and manifest the interest in this great labor which devotees upon the people of God, that characterized her efforts!

She has almost completed her temple work when she evening the spirit impressed her to go to the house of an old friend by the name of Sister Harding, who lived in the Twenty-first ward. She complied with the suggestion of the "still, small voice," she never left the friend's house again till the day the funeral occurred. Her great anxiety and unselfishness for new friends to found the truth resulted in the conclusion of illness which culminated in her death on the 31st of October. She literally "laid down her life for her friends," and the matchless Architect of our salvation declared today great love could not be exhibited than to "lay down" one's life for one's "friends." Surely she will be welcomed on the other side with "joy unspeakable and full of glory," and she will be abundantly rewarded for her labors of love.

I cannot help commenting in my mind the course of this noble woman, who, in the midst of what seemed to be insurmountable difficulties, "put her hand to the plow" and could not look back, "fully believing the Lord would open up the way, with that of members of the Church who are living in comfort today almost within the shade of our magnificent temples, apparently quite indifferent with reference to the immense work that the millions who have gone before have to perform for them. The Prophet Joseph declared it to be the most important labor resting upon the Latter-day Saints, and well he might, for where there are hundreds of thousands of the living to preach to and pray, there are hundreds of millions of the dead to work for in the temples, and yet there are many who are not only not working for their departed relatives but they are neglecting to attend to the ordinances in behalf of their own children born out of the new covenant, and may end their mortal career not having attended to the most important requirement.

Latter-day Saints everywhere! Let me entreat you to thoughtfully consider the excellent record of the beloved sister who is the subject of this article, and determine in your hearts to "labor while the day lasts" that you may not mourn in the night that shall come in which "no man can work." You who are enjoying the presence of the and neglecting the opportunities and duties of the present, take home to your hearts the loving devotion of Mother Tippett, surrounded by adverse circumstances, and let the same faith and good works adorn your lives, so shall your "peace flow as a river, and your righteousness as the waves of the sea!"

In conclusion let me say that the Lord was mindful of Sister Tippett in the end. He was her strong and friends when He inclined her to go to Sister Harding's, and they tenderly nursed her and supplied her with every comfort that loving hearts could administer. God bless them for their good deeds, and preserve us all in the path of right.

Yours in the cause of truth,

JAMES L. MCMURRIN.

ANOTHER RAMBLER DAY.

The Rambler boys made a great showing in the Garfield races. The first event of the day was the one mile road race, in which McCauley of School Third, taking third prize and third time prize. Then came the track race, Joe Beck taking second in the mention, Foster first, Weller second, and Thatcher third in the mile scratch, class B, all "Ramblers" you will note. In the half mile class A, Mar took second, Carter third. Half mile, class B, Thatcher second, Foster third. Five mile, class B, Foster second. In this race a man in a yellow suit ran behind and fell. Committee and Weller being immediately behind him, the result was a split for those parties and the race left to Evans. The five mile, class A, was another Rambler event, Mar taking first, Joe Beck second and McCauley third. Fourteen prizes for one day is glory enough for any one.

People may laugh and people may cry,
And people may do as they please,
But Rambler's sun rises wherever they go,
