AN APPRECIATED GIFT.

The Members of the Missionary Class Surprise Their Instructor, Willard Done.

The members of the missionary class—a class which for some time past has been conducted in the Latter-day Saints' college, with Principal Willard Done at the head, brought upon their instructor a very pleasant surprise yesterday afternoon by presenting him with a beautiful gold-headed umbrella, upon which were engraved these words: "To Willard Done, by the Missionary Class, March 5, 1896."

The presentation speech was made by George E. Maynock, a special student of the class, who in behalf of the forty members thereof, tendered the token as a memento of the high appreciation in which they held the instruction they had their received. It is needless to say that Instructor Done responded in terms which he could best command under such a condition of affairs, and in tendering thanks for the handsome gift, expressed the hope that the members had at least learned something which would help them in their missionary labors.

The class has been in operation for about one month, and was organized for the benefit of young men who had either been called to go on missions or were expecting such a call. As nearly all the members thereof leave for pastures new in a very short time, the work of the class will be brought to an end, for the present at least, in the course of two weeks.

A BIG RAILROAD MOVE.

Plans Laid for the Building of Two Lines.

Prominent Officials Meet at the Temple-ton and Promise Support to the Enterprise.

Two new railroads for Utah, one to the Pacific coast and another into the rich mineral region of the Deep Creek country. The enterprise which has been set on foot with a view to the attainment of the most cherished result was talked over in a calm, earnest and business-like manner by a considerable number of Salt Lake's most substantial citizens, at the Templeton hotel last night. Those who attended came in response to the following notes sent out by "George Q. Cannon and others":

DEAR SIR—You are cordially invited to attend an informal meeting of a few business men at the Templeton hotel parlors on Thursday evening, March 5, 1896, at 7:30 o'clock.

Business of importance to the future welfare of Salt Lake City, especially, and Utah, generally, will be considered.

We trust the you can make it convenient to attend.

Those who attended were J. M. Allen and H. B. Stanton, of St. Louis; Governor H. M. Wells, ex-Governor A. L. Thomas, Acting Mayor George Romney, ex-Mayor H. S. Banks, ex-Mayor George M. Scott, Hon. George Q. Cannon, Hon. Joseph F. Smith, Angus M. Cannon, Col. John W. Donnellan, President E. F. Newell of the City Council, Hon. W. S. McCornick, Hon. Richard Mackintosh, S. Henneberger, Jos. Q. Cannon, A. H. Cannon, Heber J. Grant, Spencer Clawson, L. S. Hills, E. W. Duncan, George T. Odell, F. S. Richards, C. S. Hering, Allen G. Campbell, George M. Cannon, George Y. Wallace, George H. Taylor, Presley Denny, Francis Armstrong, Brigham Young, W. S. Preston, W. W. Cluff, President John Dee of the Mercer mine, George Snow, of the Consolidated Implement company, John C. Cutler and others.

The meeting was called to order by Hon. George Q. Cannon who mentioned Ex-Mayor Banks as chairman. The latter accepted the honor with thanks and called upon Mr. Cannon to explain the purpose for which they had come together. Mr. Cannon called attention to the necessity and desirability of railroad building in the new State. Two roads were needed, one to Deep Creek and another to the Pacific coast, via St. George and Los Angeles. The State's resources were numerous, the occasion for developing them urgent and the time to do the work was now.

Mr. Allen, of St. Louis, stated his connection with the gentlemen of his city who had been largely interested in outlines Utah for years past. The road to Los Angeles via this section of country should and could be built. Himself and associates had long been co-operating with Mr. Cannon, and now affairs were in a tangible and definite shape. Eastern capitalists were willing to put money into the enterprise, providing they would be given substantial assistance and encouragement by the citizens of Salt Lake.

Richard Mackintosh and Colonel Donnellan asked a number of questions with reference to the enterprise. They were willing to do what they could but desired to know what was expected of Salt Lake in the premises. Mr. A. H. Cannon outlined the plan of the promoters and answered a large number of questions thereon, all apparently satisfactory to the interrogators. Finally it was suggested and agreed that a prospectus should be issued to the public by the promoters of the scheme at an early date, in order that all might thoroughly understand what was contemplated. Local capital will be given every inducement to invest and the advantages to the people resulting to the country by the toward will be clearly set forth. Much, of course, will depend on the encouragement they will be willing to make.

As to the question of terminal grounds in Salt Lake there was a strong feeling manifest to the effect that this city should give Pioneer Square for that purpose. A resolution was adopted that it be the sense of those present to lend all possible moral and financial aid to the enterprise, after which the meeting adjourned.

Curfew in Parowan.

PAROWAN, Iron Co., Utah, March 3, 1896.

To the Editor:

The city council of Parowan passed a curfew law, which took effect on the 1st inst. Something of the kind was much needed here. The law provides that all under the age of 15 years shall be off the street, at the hour the curfew rings each evening. Mayor William H. Lyman and Marshal Joseph P. Dalton, with the city council and the mass of the people of their bodies, are determined strictly to enforce and carry out the law. FORAY.

IN THE COURTS.

Hanson-Lippman Case Comes Up—Trial of the Ex-Bookkeeper.

The damage suit of Hardin Hanson vs Joseph Lippman came up for hearing before Judge Street late yesterday afternoon wherein the plaintiff alleges that he was in the employ of the Security abstract company, in September, 1895, at a salary of $75 per month, and was engaged abstracting all instruments filed in Mr. Lippman's office, the defendant being county recorder at the time and having let to various abstract companies the privilege of having a clerk in his office to abstract such instruments as they desired.

He further alleges that Mr. Lippman maliciously revoked the plaintiff the privilege to abstract the Sirons, and threatened the Security Abstract company that he would deny the various companies the rights and privileges offered to as long as the plaintiff was in the employ of the Security company. Therefore the company was compelled to discharge him to the damage in the sum of $1,000, for which amount he demanded judgment against the defendant.

The cases of ex-bookkeeper Joseph Morris and Herman Bamberger, each of whom is under a number of indictments charged with receiving bribes in connection with the furnishing of the joint building, have been set for April.

Judge Young rendered his decision in the Lottie Chlodowski water suit in the Third district court yesterday afternoon, in which the plaintiffs were George Dryberg et al and Richards Irrigation company, defendants. His honor held that the defendants had been in possession of the water for the necessary time and that it belonged to them.

On the same vessel also was Mr. Elizabeth Duckworth, of Salt Lake City, who intends to visit relatives and friends in England. The Scandinavian brethren mentioned their journey on the 14th. All were feeling well.

Charles Booth and His Work.

For London this must be said, that it has led the way in the effort to provide comfortable and wholesome houses for the poor. Bad housing is now confessedly seen to be a terrible expensive thing to any community, and in the sphere of philanthropic and civic action the labors of Charles Booth have yielded most slowly. Mr. Booth has offered great help to the London reader, and we can recommend his volume to the careful study of those who are interested in the matter of providing model tenements. As the new subject which concerns every populous center, our author's investigations, and the views of his contributing monographists, will make this volume of world-wide interest and value.

It is, however, absolutely startling when running over some of Mr. Booth's memorable but appalling figures, to find that in the lowest classes there is an aggregate of 2,259,000 who cook, eat, sleep, wash, etc., in a single room; that there are 1,901 persons living with more than eight in a room; that 8,000 dwell with seven in a room, and 3,000 with five in a room. These data carry their own lesson; they set every friend of humanity reflecting on such a social state in the chief city of Christendom; and they already have awakened renewed interest in the subject of this volume, and will make imperative on moral and sanitary grounds the breaking up of this sort of promiscuous herding.—Gunton's Magazine for March.
