Gen. Brisbin Interviewed about the Indians.

General Brisbin did not know of a single treaty ever made with an which has not, in some particular, west within my knowledge. By warrior." treaties we keep the Indian in a constant state of confusion and doubt towards his government. We call the chiefs together, recognize their tribe as a separate power, and offer to treat with them. Yet the chiefs know very well the white men have lied to them so often that they will probably lie again, and so attach little importance to what they sign. They sign, generally, for the presents offered at the time, and do not know if they will ever get anything more. They know that if they do not sign the white man will take their land anyhow, and so make a virtue of necessity.

"How are the treaties broken?" B.-"Our settlements are continually spreading, and no matter where the Indian goes, white men soon come along and go upon his to get off, and more come. Presently the Indians kill a few and the troops are ordered out. Of course the Indians defend their villages and there is fighting. Finally a new men." treaty is patched up, the Indians sent off somewhere else, and the white man is allowed to keep their land."

the savage to steal and murder is his land." encouraged by the government. It sends out men who are to act as agents of the Indians and carry out treaty stipulations; but most of these men spend their time in defrauding, demoralizing and abusing the Indians in every conceivable manner. I do not believe one-half, possibly not more than one-fourth, of the supplies annually voted by Congress ever reach the Indians. The abuses that are perpetrated by these agents are perfectly shameful, and still it goes on from year to year, and there appears to be no relief from these public thieves. Why, if I were an Indian, I would man I met. If one has to choose whether he will die by starvation or fall fighting, he had better fight for his rights like a man than starve like a dog."

"Are there any noble Indians, general, such as we read about in the books?"

B.-"Yes, plenty of them, and greater chiefs now living on the plains than ever were Powhattan, Logan, Red Jacket or Tecumseh. I think Sitting Bull, as a warrior, is a greater Indian than has ever appeared in America. The late campaigns on the Yellowstone show that he is equal, if not superior to the best generals in managing battles. A few years ago he was a blanket Indian, without influence or wealth, and by his own energy he has raised himself to the head of the most powerful Indian tribe on the plains, and is the acknowledged leader of all the hostiles. Red Cloud will compare favorably to any chief that ever lived, and Spotted Tail is not far behind him in ability. I remember Washakie, chief of the Shoshones, who, if he had been born white instead of red, would have been a leader of the people in any state-a governor or a senator.
