NEWS WIRED TODAY.

Sugar Producers Not Satisfied with the Tariff Provisions.

THE DAILY FATAL R. R. WRECK.

Fierce Naval Battle Expected on the Brazilian Coast.—Cronin Jurors Excused, Etc.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The sugar raisers of the country, very many of them, are not satisfied with the proposition to gradually abolish the sugar bounty, as intended in the Wilson bill and will continue to contest it in the Senate and House with the hope of securing a modification of the clause, if they cannot get it stricken out entirely. They assert that under promise of a continuation of the bounty granted by the McKinley law, which they construe as the time of the contract, they had every reason to suppose a fresh bounty would be conferred fifteen years from the time the bounty provided, and say that they will push their fight to the utmost limit with the hope of securing better terms than the Wilson bill gives. They assert that they have made large outlays on the strength of the promised bounty and have made contracts many years ahead, contained by the same consideration. They say that with business now well started the United States can produce all the sugar the people of this country can consume and thus keep at home over a hundred million dollars now sent annually abroad for sugar, sorghum and beet sugar. The men of the west are interested in the question as well as cane sugar men of Louisiana.

Something to Ponder Over.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The silver and lead miners will find in the new tariff something to ponder over, besides the chance placing silver and lead ores on the free list, in the proposition to make bond warehouses of all the sections. It is claimed that this will afford an opportunity for fraud if the smelters should cease to engage in it, and that it would still further increase the importation of foreign refined ores. The notes exchangeable for silver of 15 per cent ad valorem on lead ores and for an duty on ores containing both silver and lead in which the silver is of greater value than lead. It will be left to the treasury department to fix the legislative model which ores shall be admitted, and if the department officers should be friendly to the smelters it is argued it would be a very easy matter to admit almost all ores under the silver and lead classification. There is a prospect that the bonded warehouse proposition will be strongly antagonized.

A Revenue Crew.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The crew of the vessel which stranded off Five Island and who removed to the rigging all day yesterday and last night, were rescued by the wrecking steamer early this morning. There was no loss of life.

Those rescued consisted of Capt. Bassett, wife and little son and the mate of the crew. Despite the terrible exposure, all are alive and will recover.

PARIS, Nov. 29.—President Carnot has commissioned Senator Spuller to form a cabinet. Spuller has the matter under consideration, but it is not believed he will undertake the job.

PARIS, Nov. 29, 6 p. m.—Spuller has failed in attempts to form a cabinet.

It is now stated that Alfred Rambaud will be the chief man in the new ministry.

Spuller's cabinet is expected to be composed as follows: Spuller, premier and minister of foreign affairs; Raynal, minister of the interior; Burdeau, minister of finance; Pelletan, minister of commerce; General Loizillon, minister of war, and Admiral Rotoundet, minister of Marine.

Will Go to the Supreme Court.

HELENA, S. D., Nov. 19.—Judge Edgerton directed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defendant in the National Life Insurance company against the board of education of this city. This decision declares invalid $50,000 bonds issued during the last campaign for the capital location. If the decision is sustained by the Supreme Court of the United States, every municipal and school bond issued in South Dakota would be established as valid, many claims also can be made for $500,000 worth of bonds. The point on which the case turns is a nice constitutional question. Notice of appeal has been given.

Another Frightful Train Wreck.

MILAN, Nov. 28.—An express train from this city for Venice this morning ran into a heavy freight train which was standing at Treviglio, causing a frightful wreck. It is reported that thirty-five persons were killed and fifteen severely injured. One report says that the wreck caught fire and occupied a number of the wounded. A relief train has come to the scene.

Believed He Was Insane.

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—Capriwi had an interview with the emperor in regard to the internal machines sent them. It is reported that the emperor expressed the belief that the sender is insane. Want to Come Home.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Gorey and Floyd, who robbed the bank of Minneapolis of $90,000, admitted their guilt in court today and expressed a desire to return to America. The magistrate committed them for extradition.

They Didn't Come.

BLOOMINGTON, Nov. 29.—Vice-President Stevenson waited this morning for the delegation of business men who promised to call on him in behalf of the men on strike against a reduction of wages in the coal mine in which Stevenson is interested. They did not come. The vice-president says he knows nothing of the operation of the mine that that is in the hands of Manager Graham, and whatever he does will be sanctioned by Stevenson.

The Anti-Catholics.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 29.—It has been understood that presentments against members of the American Protective association, the new anti-Catholic political organization, on charges of criminal conspiracy were to be made to the grand jury here. At the district attorney's office it was said today no such cases have been or will be laid before the grand jury. It was added, the association is not in violation of law and such charges could not be sustained in court.

FIGHT WITH REBELS.

Warrants of Juarez Engage in Deadly Combat With Mexican Insurgents.

FULL ACCOUNT OF THE BATTLE.

Rebels Defeated.—The Loss in Killed and Wounded.—Details of the Trouble.—Quiet Restored.

Special to the News.

COLONIA JUAREZ, Mexico, Nov. 26th, 1893.—For some days we had been informed that the people who had joined the Palomas colony home were coming in into alleuoia and the president of Chihuahua issued orders to President (our civil officer or mayor) Henry Eyring for us to place ourselves in readiness to resist an attack and to defend ourselves.

President Eyring immediately issued orders to the Chief of Police Miles P. Romney and aide John C. Mower, Orson P. Brown and Brigham Stowell to arrange a special police force for immediate service, which was promptly done.

Elder George Teasdale, of the Council of the Apostles, was here and advised that no blood should be shed except in absolute self-defense.

On the 16th as two of our boys were returning from Sonora they saw a party of the rebels in the vicinity of Hanover and talked with two of them, who said that they were a party who had come over from the United States. Guards and sentinels were detailed by Chief of Police Romney and placed on duty to protect the town. On the following morning policemen O. P. Brown, Amos Cox and Carl E. Nelson were sent out as scouts to ascertain the position of the rebels. During the forenoon three of the latter came into Jacobs, voting the colonists looks and making inquiries in regard to our disposition. One of the scouts returned, following these men in order to notify the people, and arrives in the town at the same time. The rebels seeing armed men in the streets hastily retreated to a hill to the east of the town. C. E. Nelson left wing. The chief of police ordered policeman R. Stowell to take a body of mounted men and proceed to the vicinity of the camp of the enemy and carefully watch every move but not to provoke hostilities and to fire upon them only in self defense. While this was occurring policemen Brown and Cox had proceeded about six miles north from Juarez, where they were within warning confronted by the menace of three rifles in the hands of three rebel sentinels who had been concealed by rocks. Instantly the police presented cocked rifles at the rebels, upon which one of the latter threw up his cap as a signal that he wished to talk. The camp of the rebels was in a ravine a short distance away. While standing in this position the rebels stated that they did not wish to kill any one and tell much concerned about the safety of the three men who had gone to town. The brethren, after talking a few minutes, walked back with rifles presented and started towards town.

Policemen Stowell and party at full speed on their horses were met by Brown and Cox and all proceeded to a position near the enemy's camp, when a party of the rebels charged upon them. After retreating to a safe position they dismounted and presented cocked rifles, which caused the enemy to halt and signify that they wished to talk. As we could not lawfully treat with them no conversation was indulged in. The police then wheeled their movements until the rebels started in a body up the Piedras Verde river, the scouts following until they left the river, turning into the mountains in a southerly direction.

A sleepguard was kept up during the night and early on the following day policemen Orson P. Brown, Brigham Stowell, H. J. Judd, Amos Cox, E. L. Taylor, Carl E. Nelson and Peter C. Wood, Brown in command, were sent to see whether the rebels had passed on through the country. On the way B. was found where they had stopped to kill a beef and cook portions of it. Following the trail until after noon the police found themselves within one hundred and fifty yards of the rebel camp. Sentries were in the rocks all around them, the camp being in a very low pass, rocks and trees surrounding it, about four miles in a westerly direction from Juarez.

Without a moment's hesitation the rebels fired upon the scouts from three directions, and from the sound of flying bullets, these seemed as thick as hail falling around them. There was no possible chance to retreat. The only way of escape was to ride along the side of a steep rocky hill within range of the camp and the entire force of rebels. The bullets were tried more, and there was no hesitation. The horses were urged into a run, and it truly was a race for life, with bullets pattering around them at every jump of their horses over the volcanic rocks. One unlucky step of a horse meant death to the first rider, a miracle almost was wrought. H. J. Judd's horse stumbled and fell, when a while about alone from every rebel throat, echoing through the trees, rocks and hills, but only for a few moments, for Judd had recovered from the fall and was again speeding after his comrades.

An embrace was gained by the scouts, where they dismounted, and the ringing of their rifles soon mingled with that of their pursuers, but with more deadly effect. One, two, three of the rebels were seen to fall, some of them to rise no more. The brave dead charged the rapidly advancing foe and repulsed them. The police sent one of their number to inform the people of Juarez that probably an attack would be made on the town, while the other six waited two hours watching the movements of the enemy, caring for the dead and wounded, after which the scouts retired to Juarez.

Anxious eyes had been watching the western hills all day, when a horseman at full speed arrived from the scene of action and made his report. Instantly the signal bell was rung and armed men were seen coming from all directions ready to repel an attack. All the women and children from the west half of town were taken over the river, which was made the line of defense. Sentinels were placed along the stream, mounted patrolmen were sent to the hills one mile from town, and when darkness came all needful preparations for defense were ready and scarcely a stand could be heard within town limits as the faithful sentinel paced his beat. Every man and boy of those able to handle a gun responded to the call and all slept upon their arms at guard stations. At the result, the Juarez, anxiously awaiting at early dawn, the chief of police issued orders that every man should be awake and at his post an hour before daylight. At the stated time all were ready, the mounted police being drawn up in front of the store ready to proceed to any part of the defense where their services were needed. There was no fear or excitement.

The morning passed, and during the day we heard that the enemy had departed. This morning we sent out scouts to ascertain if such is the case. Though there are rumors that two hundred men or so have returned across the borders and are coming this way, we have no fear, for we feel that we are in the hands of the Lord and are confident we, and in His divine wisdom, we willingly submit, believing that if we listen to the words of Elder Geo. Teasdale to shed no blood if it is possible to avoid it, and be always ready to protect ourselves and be united, the Lord will protect us. F. R. M.

LATER.—The scouts have just returned and report that the rebels are gone, leaving in their camp much of the two horses they had killed and stolen, giving evidence that they had probably wanted to carry away this that they had hurriedly left their encampment for fear of a return of our scouts with reinforcements.

We are pleased to state that our settlement is fairly well armed, and in the case of trouble possibly can be relieved by all the brethren, which tends much towards our safety in these lands. F. R. M.

The following note is self-explanatory:

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, November, 29th, 1893.

Editor Deseret News:

Will you kindly make the announcement for me that my name will not go before the Democratic primary election as a candidate for election to the board of education. If Professor Kingsbury succeeds in allowing his name to be used, I will see what influence I may have to secure him the nomination.

Yours truly,

J. R. WALDEN.

The Dyer-Searles Petition.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE TABERNACLE tomorrow night will be the scene of the Juvenile choir contest, and a great amount of interest is being taken in the various wards of the city over the result. The prizes are in cash and run up as high as $40.

MAY BLOSSOM will be the holiday bill at the Theater tomorrow night. The Salt Lake Stock company at cheap prices will make up the cast.

HARLOW BROS' Minstrels concluded their Salt Lake engagement last evening to a very satisfactory gathering.

THE PIANO RECITAL in Calder's hall last evening by Mr. Theodore Salmon, an amiet who skipped off a short time ago this way to the coast, drew a fashionable and appreciative audience. Mr. Salmon's playing showed him to be an admirable artist, and wins for and his brother virtuoso, Professor Krouse, staged a duet, the effect could not fail to be of the most enthusiastic order. Miss Winston sang a solo which was greatly applauded. Mr. Hugh Dougall, who was to render a baritone song, was unfortunately indisposed. Mr. Walter of course caused the audience to the highest pitch by his exquisite violin work.

BUSINESS AND MINES.

The Finances of the City Steadily Sinking Lower.

GOOD SUGGESTIONS FROM BEAVER.

Utah's First Prize.—Assignment.—Gold Discovery.—Other Items.

The cash brought in by the sale of city bonds is about eaten up in redeeming city warrants. The money obtained from taxes has gone the same way. And the current expense of the city have been going on as extravagantly as ever. The Council has made no appropriations of late, probably knowing that by not dealing with the bills that were being presented against the city they could blind the people and perhaps cast a shadow on the incoming administration. But the accounts against the city have been piling up just the same, and the appropriation bill to cover items since the last bill of that nature was passed was taken up, it would show that something near $200,000 in unpaid bills for which appropriation must be made have accumulated in the past few weeks.

MR. MASSER'S ASSIGNMENT.

The following letter from R. Masser, manager of the Beaver Chronicle, has been received by Ex-Governor Thomas:

BEAVER CITY, Utah,
Nov. 28, 1893.

Hon. A. L. Thomas, Salt Lake City:

Dear Sir.—The scheme to advertise Utah, as now proposed, meets with my hearty approval, and I shall endeavor to forward the movement as much as possible. To this end I have sent printed blank letters to a number of prominent men in various parts of southern Utah, urging them to communicate with the paper and let us know what resources that part of the country has developed and undeveloped. Each party that has had this circular letter sent to them and published will undoubtedly be used for advertising Utah wherever needed. Could not a similar scheme be introduced in each county where there is a paper published? And could not the editors be authorized to say to the parties asked for this information, that they are requested and authorized to act in the capacity requested by the chairman of the executive board, thus giving the request some tone and as taking at least, of authority? I believe a hearty response will be given by all in this matter and every one will feel proud to know that his mite has been added.

Wishing you success in this worthy undertaking, permit me to subscribe myself,

Very respectfully yours to serve,

R. MASSER.

De Lamar Report. Besides the boast that Idaho produces almost every mineral heretofore known to science, also diamonds, emeralds, rubies, sapphire and opals, now comes the report from the Smithsonian Institute at Washington that a variety of ore sent there from Custer county contains a metal unknown to scientists, which they have named Poewhite, in honor of a gentleman at the head of the geological survey in this state. Verily the wonders of Idaho have never yet been told.

Helena (Mont.) Independent. Parties in from the Big Blackfoot bring news of a very rich gold strike. In the early days the Big Blackfoot placers were very rich, and produced thousands of dollars in gold. After the placers had been worked out the miners deserted it, though a few tried for years to find the ledge from which gold came. The majority, however, gave up the search. Christopher Hirsche and Alexander Cameron are not abandon all hope of finding the vein. They spent some ground at the head of the gulch, and have been sinking shafts in the hope that they would find the much-sought for ledge. Last Saturday their labors were rewarded, and at the bottom of one of their prospect holes a ledge, some six feet wide, was found, the center of which was composed of rotten quartz, in which the nuggets and coarse yellow dust could be seen shining brightly in the dull colored decomposed rock. Some of this was panned and a large number of pennyweights of the gold taken from the five pan samples of it. Several other pans of dirt were washed and in no case did the amount fall below $20. The people in the Blackfoot valley are greatly excited over the find, and the many mining men who looked at the ledge say it is as rich as they have ever seen. The ground on which the ledge was found is patented, and is owned by C. Hirsche, Cameron, Edgerton and Jewell, the last two being residents of Helena. If this is really the main lead, and there can hardly be a doubt but that it is, it will be a great help to the Blackfoot country, and is sure to prove another Whitlach-Union as regards richness.

THE NEWSBOYS' THANKSGIVING

It Will Include a Hair Cut, Bath at the Sanitarium and a Turkey Dinner.

The newsboys of the city are in high festival today in anticipation of the great treat that is in store for them tomorrow. In the morning, between the hours of 9 and 12 o'clock, they will be given a free hair cut and shampoo by James A. Holden, the Second South street barber.

From 1 o'clock until 2, through the courtesy of the Messrs. Bacon and the management of the Sanitarium company, the little fellows will have unrestricted access to the gentlemen's large plunge pool in which the water will be reduced to a depth not exceeding three and a half or four feet. Tots removes all danger of accidents or drowning. Besides, they will be closely watched. The pool is 50 by 75 feet and will afford ample room to the seventy-five or one hundred youngsters who will bathe in its warm, refreshing, healthful mineral waters. It was originally intended that they be permitted to occupy the pool from twelve until one o'clock but the change to an hour later was made in order to guard against them contracting colds by running on the streets before student. Under the present arrangements they will go directly to Bond's restaurant from the Sanitarium. The latter company are to be complimented for tendering the boys the use of the most magnificent swimming pool in the western country.

The whole affair is under the management of Colonel and Will Lott, who for several years past have taken it upon themselves to see to it that the newsboys are well provided for on Thanksgiving day. Tomorrow these gentlemen will give them an elegant turkey dinner at Bond's restaurant. A number of prominent citizens will also be present. It is expected that speeches will be made by Governor West, Ex-Governor Thomas, Mayor Baskin and one or more of the ministers of the city.

DEMAND OF $15,000

Action Against the Salt Lake Rapid Transit Company.

FOR THE DEATH OF A BOY

Little Julian Riley Was Badly Mangled By One of the Defendants' Cars.—Short Orders.

The suit of Julian Riley vs. the Salt Lake Rapid Transit company, being an action to recover $15,000 and costs for the death of his little son, came up for hearing before Chief Justice Zane and a jury this morning.

Judge Henderson and Attorney George Sutherland appeared for the plaintiff, and Judge Marshall for the defendants.

The deceased lad, Julian Riley, was about seven years of age. On June 14th of the present year he was crossing the roadway on Fourth South street, near its junction with Second East. As he reached the company's track at this point an approaching car knocked him down and passed over his body, shockingly mangling it, and inflicting such injuries that death ensued almost immediately. It is alleged that the unfortunate occurrence was due solely to the carelessness and negligence of the defendants' employes, no bell or other signal having been sounded to warn people of the car's rapid approach.

The company, in their answer, deny this all equitable and say there was contributory negligence on the part of the deceased boy.

The trial was still in progress at noon.

GENERAL.

In the case of Harriet Tuttle Drake et al vs Rachel Roggen et al, the report of the referee (Attorney J. L. Rawlins) was confirmed and a decree entered in accordance therewith. An exception was taken by the plaintiffs, the reserve having found for the defendants. It was a suit to quiet title.

Don C. Tuttle vs. L. G. Hardy et al. Default; judgment for plaintiff and attorney's fee of $100 allowed.

Henry Stoiebe vs the Daily Miner Publishing Co. of Park City. Defendant was allowed till December 20th to answer.

Entertaining Old Folks.

The veterans will be conveyed to and from the hall in vehicles specially provided by a committee.

While they were at the Rio Grande depot, leaving just left the train, one of the captives, named James H. Wilson, who is indicted for robbery, suddenly broke away and ran west on Second South street. He was handcuffed at the time, but the fact did not prevent him getting away in the darkness, though every possible effort was made to overtake him. The search, however, was kept up, and at an early hour this morning the runaway was re-captured at Sandy.
