AMUSEMENTS.

Fra Diavolo is going at the Grand this afternoon to a good sized matinee, and tonight the first rendition of Faka in this city by the Grau company will be given. The advance sale has been quite large.

• • •

Yesterday morning the advance sale for the engagement of the "Sign of the Cross" company at the Salt Lake Theater opens at the box office. It will be pleasant news to the many people who have read of this widely famed drama, to know that the Theater management have persuaded the company to retain the popular grade of prices. The advance agent held out strongly for $1.50 rates, which they obtained in San Francisco, but Mr. Pyper urged that in view of the fact that the engagement here was for three nights and a matinee, that there be no advance in the rates. The best seats in the house will therefore be on sale for $1.00.

LEFT WITHOUT PERMISSION.

State Senator, Who Was a Juryman, Rebuked for Going Off a Few Hours.

State Senator Abel J. Evans, of Utah county, was arrested yesterday afternoon, under an order of the Federal court at Ogden, for departing from his post as juryman, for a few hours. He accepted service on the grand jury, and was appointed foreman. Yesterday he came to Salt Lake on urgent business. Not being in court when called, Marshal Miller was sent after him, arrested him, and returned to Ogden. Judge Marshall reprimanded the senator for leaving, without being excused, and appointed another juryman as foreman. The incident then closed. Mr. Evans had supposed that his presence would not be required during the few hours he was absent from court.

J. H. BROWN, OR NEPHI BROWN.

Pocatello, Idaho, March 12, 1899.

To the Editor:

In the year of 1855, my aunt, Nancy C. Wiest, of Dowagiac, Michigan, married a "Mormon" missionary from Salt Lake. His name was John Hiram Brown or Nephi Brown. They had one child one year old when I heard from them last, and no one here has heard from them since 1858. Years ago her father died and all of the heirs got their share in the estate but this one. And as they could not find her or any of her children, it still remains in the county treasury since 32 years ago, and it has increased to quite a large amount now. If it is proved that she is dead or that she has no heirs, then her brothers and sister, my mother, can get this.

MRS. R. H. MAGILL.

RAN AWAY FROM HOME.

Mrs. Daniel Clark of Pocatello, Idaho, is very anxious concerning the whereabouts of her step-son, Dan Clark, who left home on December 23 last. Since then she has been making diligent search, but has failed to locate him. Now she has heard that he has been seen in the vicinity of Salt Lake City, and writes to obtain information concerning him. He is 17 years of age, small of stature, and light complexioned. The story that he will probably tell is that his father, Daniel Clark, is now on a mission, and that his mother is dead, all of which is true. Any information regarding him will be gladly rec'd by Mrs. Daniel Clark, Pocatello, Idaho.

Wanted to know the whereabouts of Elizabeth Wilson-Mooney, native of Edinburgh. Left about 3 years ago. If alive please write to W. Burns, 5 New Dragon Lane, Carlisle, Eng., and it will be of advantage to her.

SPRINKLING PLANT IS DISCUSSED.

Bids on Carts Submitted in a Report to Council.

ONE OFFER IS FAVORED.

Report of City Engineer Kelsey—Makes Numerous Suggestions on the Water Question.

The City Council finds that the proposition to furnish the city with a sprinkling plant of its own is not much an easy one, after all. Considerable time was spent at last night's meeting in a discussion of the question, but action was finally deferred for one week.

FAVORS STUDEBAKER'S BID.

The committee on sprinkling submitted the following report:

To the Honorable President and Members of the City Council, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Gentlemen—Your committee on sprinkling, to whom was referred the bids for furnishing the city with new sprinklers, after careful investigating and examining into the merits of the different sprinklers viz.: F. C. Austin Manufacturing company, of Harvey, Ill.; The Consolidated Instrument company, of Salt Lake City; Obed A. Knight of Salt Lake City, and Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing company of Salt Lake City, we beg leave to make the following report:

We recommend the bid of the Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing company as the best for the city for the following reasons:

First—Their vertical sprinkling attachment for asphalt pavements is by far the best and simplest, doing better work and being the most economical in distributing the water. The driver is able at all times to instantly remove any obstruction or foreign matter that may accumulate in the sprinkler bowl, without leaving his seat. Another advantage is their ability to control the width of the spray, each bowl operating independently of the other, so that on crooked thoroughfares, on in passing vehicles, the width of the spray on either side of the wagon may be by a slight motion of the driver's foot, be reduced to the width of the wagon and still maintain a line of water that will equalize the street close up to and underneath the wagon as thoroughly as when the valves are in full operation. On the spray may be reduced to any number of feet less than the full width, carrying the reduction at will. On the unpaved streets we recommend their Niagara attachment on account of the way they distribute the water and the unequaled width of the spray.

Second—They use a larger axle and better proportioned for the weight they have to bear.

Third—We approve of their recommendation that the Archibald wheel be used, it being adopted exclusively on the army wagons furnished the government, and also used on fire department wagons, with the best results.

Fourth—The platform springs the heavier and the most approved pattern, such as the fire department finds as to long the best, viz.: the ribbed steel spring.

Fifth—The way the truck and frame are put together and trussed we find to be the best method.

Sixth—After summing up the above, with a most careful examination for comparison of the merits of the different sprinklers we find the Studebaker sprinkling wagon to be the best mechanically constructed, and fitted with the most approved and latest devices for sprinkling.

The total cost of twenty-five wagons is $6,750. Respectfully submitted,

ROBERT PATRICK,
CHRISTOPHER DREHL,
JOHN ALICE,
F. A. BRUNSTROM,
JOHN SIDDOWAY,
Committee on Sprinkling.

GRIFFIN SUBMITS A BID.

The following was also received from the same committee:

"Your committee on sprinkling, to whom was referred the bids for furnishing the city with new sprinklers, find that the bid of J. H. Griffin to furnish twenty-five skidding wagons for $125 and the bid of Frank Harrigan to furnish two tanks for $120 are not according to our advertisement. We, therefore, refer them back to your honorable body for your consideration."

J. H. Griffin submitted a proposition that he would undertake to furnish twenty teams and wagons for $40 each per month for the purpose of sprinkling the streets, if given a six-months' contract. He also offered the city twenty-two sprinkling wagons for $1,850.

PROTEST RECEIVED.

The Consolidated Implement company, in a communication addressed to the Council, protested against the award of the carts to the Studebaker company, claiming that its bid was the lower of all.

Patrick said it was true the Studebaker bid was $270 higher than the Consolidated company's bid, but the committee was of the opinion that the Studebaker wagon appliances were the best.

George A. Snow of the Consolidated company, and Charles A. Quigly, representing the Studebaker company, were heard. Each set forth the merits of their wares.

Robertson was of the opinion that the city could have the work done cheaper than by purchasing carts and hiring men. He also mentioned items of expense in the building and maintaining of horses, etc.

Romney agreed with Robertson, and moved motion further consideration of the question be put over for one week.

CITY ENGINEER'S REPORT.

City Engineer Kelsey made a number of reports to the Council last night with respect to the water question. In one report, referring to Parley's creek, Mr. Kelsey says:

"The number of people living in the canyon above the head of the city's conduit is about 150, and, with but one or two exceptions, the barns, corrals and outhouses are located where the canyon is narrow, and within 100 feet of the stream. In a number of places the stables are located right on the bank of the creek, and for convenience in watering stock, they usually extend across it. The corrals and stables in most cases are to a filthy condition, and the drainage flows directly into the stream. The number of head of stock kept in this canyon runs from eighty to 150.

"There are from 400 to 500 acres of land above the conduit irrigated at the present time. The owners claim a primary water right for most of this land, those of a later date claiming that it is being irrigated to increasing every year, and nothing is being done by the city to prevent it.

"All parties owning primary water rights and land to the canyon should be bought out by the city, if they are willing to sell for a reasonable price, and, if not, their land and rights should be acquired by condemnation. It is estimated by parties who have investigated this matter that the land, water rights and improvements can be purchased for about $50,000.

"A state law gives the council power to prevent the pollution of streams from which the city obtains its supply for a distance of ten miles above the point where the water is diverted. Nearly all of these improvements are within that limit."

The report then gives the result of an analysis by Professor Hadley and the following extract from his report:

"The water from Parley's creek shows a large amount of chlorine, nitrates and ammonia, and has evidently been highly contaminated. If used at all, I should recommend that the bacteria be examined from the head down, and all stables, out-houses, manure heaps and other sources of discharge into it be removed, and the stream kept clean and free from all discharges of sewage or any other objectionable matter."

Professor Kingsbury, in reporting on the same matter, makes substantially the same recommendations.

The report on necessary changes in the water distributing system is a part of the final plan to remedy the defects in the system, as will be presented by the engineer later. The improvements recommended are those most needed, and, briefly, are as follows: The completion of the reservoir at Fifteenth South and Thirteenth East streets, at a total estimated cost of $28,332.91; a general improvement of the water main system, including the extension of the system by laying a pipe on Fifth South street, from the Parley's canyon conduit east to Twelfth East, for supply purposes; the putting in of a main on Eighth East street, between First South and Sixth South streets, to improve supply system No. 2. The total net cost of these improvements is put down at $17,526.17. The engineer also recommends a larger main from the brick tank in City Creek, and otherwise improve the distributing system from this source, which, he estimates, will cost not $14,616.45.

This report was referred to the waterworks committee.

CONSTRUCTING WEIRS.

In the matter of the cost of constructing weirs for measurement and dividing the water flowing in the stream, Mr. Kelsey reported as follows: City Creek, $50; Emigration Creek, $50; Parley's Creek, $75; Continuing, Mr. Kelsey says:

"It will be very expensive to put in a weir, or some other device, for measuring the discharge of the Jordan river, and the other riparian owners should pay their share of the expense. The cost of constructing a weir at the head of the canal will be about $100, and a weir should also be put in at this end to determine the loss between the head of the canal and the city. This loss is estimated to be from 40 to 60 per cent, but it should be determined by measurement. The cost of this weir will be about $25. These weirs should be put in before April 1, as the city is obliged to have the water running in the canal by that time."

The city engineer also reported on the matter of using water from the Jordan and Salt Lake canal for street sprinkling purposes, estimating the cost of putting in a separate system for this purpose at $24,517.87. This matter was referred to the committee on sprinkling.

PLEASANT VIEW DITCH.

Mr. Kelsey, in another report, protested against the city taking back the old Pleasant View ditch, as follows:

"I beg leave to again protest against the city taking back the old Pleasant View ditch and carrying its waters through and use it, as recommended by the committee on irrigation at the last meeting of the City council, the report stating that it was the intention of the committee to make the contract conform to the views of the petitioners.

"It was also represented at the committee meeting that the conduit was the cause of the canal breaking. This is not true! Two large washouts in the canal occurred before the conduit was contracted and only one since, which was caused by the flume in the canal breaking and it washed out 160 feet of the conduit.

"I cannot understand why the city should maintain and convey water through an open ditch where, for one-half, when it has a masonry conduit paralleling the ditch, with sufficient capacity to carry all of the water that is ever used by the city from this stream. Parties owning land below Parley's creek canal are now claiming rights to the water that they have had, and are threatening to sue the city. This is another reason why the city should convey water in a covered conduit, where it is safe from being wasted, and where individuals cannot acquire rights to it through use.

"The lack of evidence on the part of the city and the testimony of a recent city case tried in the district court, should open the eyes of the city officials to the fact that the city's water rights have been shamefully neglected. The city was unable to show by any records the amount of water that it was entitled to, or the division that had been made of the water delivered through the canal. It came out in the testimony that no attempt had been made by the city to make a measurement or keep a record of the amount of water taken from the canal at Dudley's. Men who were employed by the city as patrolmen and deputy watermasters, and paid to look after the city's interests, testified that they had, some of them even land below the Parley's creek canal and is one of the parties that appeared before the irrigation committee to ask that the city take the canal back; another one is a deputy watermaster and is employed by the city now."

Mr. Kelsey points out the duties of the watermaster, who under the ordinance is required to keep a record of all dams, flumes, ditches, canals, the proportion of water to be drawn, etc., and then closes:

"There are no records kept as required by this ordinance, and one of the city's most important water right contracts is missing.

"In view of these facts the city should bring suit to quiet the title to the water of Parley's creek, and when its rights are determined, see to it that they are not infringed upon."

BOW OVER AN ACCOUNT.

Among a number of bills recommended for payment by the waterworks was one for $18, drawn in favor of Superintendent Callister.

Robertson, who seemed to be laying for the bill, enquired what the $18 was for. Recorder Dickson said it was for the expenses of the superintendent's annual report to the Mayor. Robertson then moved that it be stricken out for the reason that only a week or two ago the same item was disallowed.

Allen said Mr. Caine presented the bill at the meeting of the waterworks committee. It ought to be paid by the city, he said, and should not come out of the superintendent's own pocket.

Wallace asked Allen if the superintendent was not able to write the report himself.

Allen said he was, but did not have the time.

Robertson called attention to the action of the Council with respect to the same bill, as well as a similar one for $25 in favor of Chief Pratt, and said the Council had disposed of both after a long and hot fight. He moved for an opposition and bid to be consented. He thought all books of departments should be kept in the office, and for the Council to approve Superintendent Caine's bill and reject Chief Pratt's was, to his mind, unfair.

Romney said he was very much opposed to the item, but since he had received a personal explanation from Mr. Callister, he felt like changing his mind. He did not approve of railroading anything through, but in this instance he felt like allowing the bill.

Robertson then withdrew his motion, but Callister, the mover of the motion, objected.

Dickson said Robertson was the only man who strenuously opposed the bill and he ventured to say that even that gentleman was now prepared to vote for its allowance. Mr. Caine has saved the waterworks hundreds of dollars, and could easily have charged the bill to another account but he did not propose; but Mr. Caine wouldn't do a thing of that kind, he was no honest a man. Personally, he thought the amount should be allowed as also the bill of Chief Pratt's.

Callister inquired of Robertson if he was willing to vote to allow Chief Pratt's bill. Robertson said he would reply when an opportunity presented itself.

Continuing, Callister said he did not believe in the maximum fate of one and ten of another. He voted in favor of allowing the claims in the first place, and thought the Council should have then allowed the bills to go through.

Rowe said it was he who called attention to the matter in the first place. He was opposed to their payment then. If there was hired executives to do the work without authority from the Council, they should see to it that they pay for it themselves. He looked at the matter from a business standpoint.

Fernstrom claimed that the opposition was due to principle. He believed heads of departments ought to consult the Council before incurring any bills, no matter whether they were big or small. He thought the turning down of some of the bills would be a good thing for the city. He had had a hard time to get his money, and was for allowing Mr. Caine's bill and Chief Pratt's, too.

Weller was opposed to the method adopted by the departments and should vote against the payment of the bills.

Allen moved the previous question and Robertson's motion, Caine and Fisher should be paid by the city the amount they had expended in getting the work done, and suggested the Council quit so much talking.

Both the bills were, upon motion, allowed.

RELEASING UNIVERSITY SQUARE.

Chairman Siddoway of the public grounds committee called up the matter of the joint resolution of the Legislative Assembly with respect to the city releasing all conditions connected with the grant of University square. At his request, Mr. Van Cott, who was a member of the board of regents, was given the floor. Principle being given the gentleman Mr. Van Cott said that the proposed action was simply a release of the grounds to the State in order that the latter may dispose of them to the Salt Lake Normal University, and he hoped the Council would not spend considerable discussion the matter soon over for another week.

FIRE AND POLICE ORDINANCE.

On motion of Callister the committee on municipal laws, with the city attorney and chiefs of the fire and police departments, was instructed to take up the draft an ordinance creating the fire and police departments under the new law, and report back to the committee of the whole tomorrow evening. The ordinance must be passed on Tuesday evening next.

Dickson introduced a resolution instructing the board of public works to repair the old sidewalk in front of the city hall and submit estimate of cost for a new walk. Also that the building inspector be instructed to remove the balcony at the station. Laid over for one week.

Dickson introduced another resolution providing that the street superintendent be instructed to remove West Second street, from the Oregon Short Line depot, in order to test the efficiency of the covering. Referred to committee on streets.

Barnes introduced a resolution providing that the railway companies be instructed to raise the sidewalks of their bridges across the viaduct on North Temple street. Adopted.

The license committee presented an ordinance taxing hawkers $25 a quarter, which was read three times and passed.

William Thorn et al petitioned the Council to vacate a plat of the Thorn subdivision. The Field survey, for the purpose of changing the sidewalks. Petitioners say that the sidewalks, as at present laid out, are unsatisfactory and inconvenient. Referred to city attorney.

Mrs. E. Jeffs called attention to a claim for damages, which she recently submitted to the Council, for injuries received on account of a defective side gate street. Referred to committee on claims.

John Alston et al asked that a street on Sixth South be between Eighth and Ninth West streets be opened. Referred to committee on streets.
