AN ARTIST'S HOME.

It Is Not Accepted and Looks Well from Every Point of View.

(Copyrighted 1892, by American Press Association.)

This charming design of an eight room house was executed by an artist friend of mine who claimed that he was going to be the proprietor of the building. "It is my idea," said he, "that a house that is to be artistic in the first every, as well as the outwardly appearance of the building. "It is to be accepted."
