NEWS OF THE MINES.

Mercur Unloaded on the Stock Exchange Today at $7.15.

NEW MINING INCORPORATIONS.

The Sunnyside with a Capital of $500,000 and the Dick Cayl with a $150,000—Dips and Spurs.

Broker Herman Hill seemed very anxious to unload 100 shares of Mercur at the exchange today, and he did so, but at a figure which almost any amount of the stock would have been taken at. His first offer to sell was at $7.25, then at $7.20, then $7.17½ and finally $7.15, which had on account been mentioned time: Woolley, who is always on the alert for a snap, grabbed it up with extreme satisfaction, and with the remark that he would take 500 shares at the same figure. He couldn't get any more at that price, however, and consequently retained his satisfaction at what he had already got.

The call, taken as a whole, was about the poorest of the week, although the usual amount of enthusiasm was manifest with regard to little Pittsburg, and 10,000 shares were sold, at figures indicative of an upward tendency. De Witt H. Lowe took 3,000 and Woolley more at 2 cents, but his wants were not gratified, the holders thinking perhaps, if it was worth so much to Lowe, it was certainly as valuable to them, consequently they held out for 2½ cents, at which figure 2,000 shares had previously been taken.

Centennial-Eureka stock got a bid of $62, but offers to sell were very scarce. Prendergast, however, volunteered ten shares at $63, with no takers. Woolley made an offer of $5.15 for twenty shares of Daly-West, while Kenneth Dunnellan showed his willingness to sell Silly shares at $5.25. They didn't get together and the stock was passed without a sale. No offerings of Hain Silver were made, although Woolley would have given $2.15 for 500 shares or any part thereof.

Besides the Little Pittsburg sales, Dalton was the only mining stock, at which a transfer was made, Rickards selling to Woolley 500 shares at 65 cents.

The closing figures were as follows:

Mt. Pleasant Pyramid: Mt. Pleasant people are getting the mining fever. A number of our men are out mining after properties in various parts of Utah, and several are in readiness to make a thorough investigation of the alleged mineral resources of this end of the county. That something important in the latter section will be developed there is no doubt.

MONTHLY REPORT.

Idaho Climate and Crop Service of the State Weather Bureau.

Monthly report for January, 1896, by P. McCallum, observer in charge, Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Snowfall was reported in all sections of the state on the 1st, followed by a dry period which continued until the 14th, from which date to the 21st precipitation was general and greatly in excess of the usual amount; during the remainder of the month the precipitation (principally in the form of rain) though not general, was fairly well distributed. Mr. Frank Adams, observer at Palmetto, sends the following note: "For several days this month this section was visited by the heaviest and most continuous downpour of rain that has ever occurred within the memory of the oldest inhabitants of this vicinity; river of all kinds are said to be impassable for 48 hours. The heavy rise of water on the 20th caused the low lands to be about five feet under water, doing considerable damage, washing out six trestles and three bridges, and spoiling a considerable amount of hay through this section of the country."

At the end of the month the extreme northern, the central and the extreme southeastern sections of the state were covered with snow from two inches to six and one-half feet deep, the latter depth being reported at Atlanta, where the snow was held enough to support the weight of sleds.

The first half of the month gave the usual January weather as regards temperature, but with the 15th came a succession of "Chinook" winds which raised the temperature considerably above the normal and gave to everything the appearance of early Spring; no damage to growing crop was reported during this period. The mean daily temperature for the second half of the month was 12 degrees higher than that of the first half, the 19th was the coldest day of the month with a mean temperature of 14 degrees; the warmest day was the 27th, mean temperature, 38.

SUMMARY.

The mean temperature for the State was 17.8 degrees, 4.6 degrees higher than January of last year; the highest mean temperature was 38.0 degrees, at Lewiston, and the lowest, 10.5, at Junction; the highest daily temperature, 62 degrees, was recorded at Lewiston on the 7th, and the lowest, 38 below zero, at Junction on the 19th, giving an absolute temperature range of 87 degrees for the month; the greatest local range of temperature was 45 degrees at Lewiston, and the least 29 degrees at Moscow.

The average precipitation for the State was 2.2 inches, the greatest 7.15 inches, at Soldier, and the least 0.10 inch at Lewiston; the greatest daily precipitation was 1.30 inches, at Pocatello, on the 20th. The snow average of ten days with precipitation during the month.

Average number of clear days, 10; partially cloudy, 6; cloudy, 15.

Prevailing wind direction, southwest; hour velocity (from records of Inspector and Idaho Falls), 10.8 miles; maximum velocity (at Grangeville), 61 miles per hour, from the southwest, on the 19th.

ARMY OFFICERS' TRIP.

Visit of Idaho Settlers of Mormons—A Surveyor Trip.

MARYSVILLE, Bingham Co., Idaho, Feb. 13, 1896.

To the Editor:

Captain Scott and Lieutenant Lentz, of Company D, from Yellowstone National Park, left my place yesterday morning on snowshoes, bound for Mammoth Springs, National Park, which they anticipate reaching in ten days. They are undertaking a very risky journey in midwinter, for they will have to camp out nights under the trees, and if bears should come up a blizzard may also spit in persis in the snow. The object of their journey is to look after the buffalo, which, it is believed, are there yet. There was a herd at about one hundred head here, but we have a set of outlaws that won't be satisfied until they get all the last one killed, which I believe they have accomplished already.

The captain and lieutenant are both pleasant gentlemen. When the captain arrived at Market Lake he said he thought he would have to keep his hand close to his sister for a month of having to pass through a country settled with Mormons, after hearing about them being such a lawless people. After arriving at the county seat, Mr. Anthony, he got a team from a livery stable and went to Parker on Sunday, where he visited a Mormon Sabbath meeting and heard four brethren speak on the first principles of the Gospel. Before leaving he also went to a dance and heard them open the party with prayer; all of which completed 3600 in which we were a different people than he expected to find.

Ephraim Enterprise: Just as people were going to church on Sunday afternoon, P. T. Pomeroy and James Cameron got into their semi-occasional drunken brawl in Main street. They were promptly taken in charge by Marshal Reid, who incarcerated them in the city bastile. At 10 o'clock on Monday morning they appeared before Justice Christensen, who promptly fined them $10 each. In default of payment of the fine they will board at the city's expense and probably be required to do their share toward keeping up the street.

Tooele Transcript: Early last Friday morning Ace Walters passed quietly away at his late residence on East street, at the advanced age of 90. The funeral services, which were largely attended, were held in the meeting house last Sunday afternoon, with interment in Tooele cemetery. Mr. Walters was born in Devonshire, England, in 1805. He joined the Mormon Church in 1843, and emigrated to Utah in 1856, where he has since resided. He died, as he has always lived, a firm believer in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Fillmore Progress: What might have proved a disastrous fire occurred at the Fillmore office early Monday morning. The stovepipe evidently became red hot at the place where it passes through the ceiling, and when Night Foreman Hale arrived, he found quite a little blaze had started. Fortunately, very little damage was done. ....Some of the Millard young men are all torn up. Here in January and part of February gone, and not one pretty girl has popped the question. The situation is disconcerting and the idea seems to begin to dawn upon them the new women is not growing Independent, and able to take care of herself.

Mt. Pleasant Pyramid: John Crane arrived home Monday evening from the silver mines in Millard county, where he has spent the winter so far. He reports sleep in fine condition, much better than for several seasons past at this time of year, the weather being been very favorable. Feed on the deserts is fine-nice, but is unavailable at present on account of snowfall. It is good to have snow fall would come it would prove a boon to the farmers. A number are early beginning to follow the snow line northward. Mr. Crane expects season is unusually advanced in southern Utah, farmers being now engaged in putting in grain so far north as Sevier county.
