LOCAL BRIEFS.

Governor Wells and staff are expected home from Richfield this evening.

As announced by City Treasurer Morris the municipal payday will be next Monday.

Hon. Fisher S. Harris is quite ill at his home. He was compelled, yesterday, to take to his bed.

Chaplain Allensworth of the Twenty-fourth infantry at Fort Douglas left this morning for the Southern States, to visit educational institutions there.

The funeral of Miss Mabel Hillstead will take place at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the parents' residence, 262 south Eleventh East street. Friends are invited.

So successful have been the last two dancing parties of the L. D. S. Business college that the committee has decided to give one more the middle of next month.

The report of the board of health for the week ending today shows 25 births, cases 16 and females 8, deaths 12, males 6 and females 6. There are no flags outstanding for contagious diseases, covering 13 cases of scarlet fever.

W. J. Stevens, who was sentenced on April 15, 1898, in the Third district court, to six years' imprisonment in the penitentiary for robbery, will be released from the State prison tomorrow morning.

As the Culmer-Jennings company has failed to repair the pavement on East South street, after being notified last fall, the city board of public works has decided to do the repairing itself by using the money retained under the contract for the company.

Last evening Lieut. Orrin R. Gowe, who recently returned from the Utah troops at Manila, was the guest of a dancing party given in his honor by Miss Mary Jane Eldridge, 231 and First South. Mr. Gowe believes that the Utah boys will be home by July.

Considerable excitement was caused on Commercial street about half an hour after midnight last night by a boy in years of age making his appearance on the street through a big pane of glass. He after wards gave his name as Ed Vincent, and said that an inmate of a house had thrown him through the window. He is at the police station, charged with being drunk and destroying property.

The Mormon Mercury has this of a Salt Lake boy in whom many people are interested although they do not approve of his course so far as followed: "Roy Cowdle now claims the lightweight championship of Utah and has again demonstrated to his friends that he is a good fighter and a hard hitter. His latest victory was won in the opera house Monday night when he knocked worsted Kit Dixon, late of Ogden in three rounds."

A. D. Giles, formerly with troop D of the Fourth United States cavalry at Manila, and who has been in Salt Lake since his discharge, said to a Herald reporter that the two men who lined up upon either side of him had come down before Pagsanjan bolos. The men referred Dick Ivers with the Fourth cavalry, three of whom have recently fallen. They are Herbert H. Smith of Salt Lake, Ernest Wilcox of Salt Lake and George Parks of Ogden.

"The Philosophy of Life" is the subject of a free lecture to be given in Hooper's R. S. Burton of Toronto, tomorrow (Sunday) evening, March 19, at the Sunday evenings of this city. The lecture will be given under the auspices of the Theosophic Brotherhood at Logan, No. 11, of Salt Lake City. SHALL IT STILL BE MAINTAINED?

What Should be Done With Latter-day Saints' College.

PROF. PAUL'S SUGGESTION.

Should Work in Harmony with the University and High School and Not Parallel Their Work.

To the Editor of the Deseret News:

"Shall the Latter-day Saints' College be maintained?" is one of the questions of the hour upon which an expression of public opinion has been invited by the members of the board of trustees of that institution.

As an educator, I say, yes; and as a member of the Church I say yes also. But this answer does not commit me to a support of the proposition that the College should be kept up on the same basis as that upon which it has formerly been maintained.

Hitherto, the College has done excellent work, both as an institution of High-school rank, and as an organ of the theological department of the Church; and if it should continue on its present basis, it would likewise continue to do excellent work of the same kind of work that it has done in the past.

But I do not believe that the College should be maintained on its present basis, as a high school, or as an institution which, in fact, duplicates the work of the city high school, and to some extent that of the University also. In my judgment the College should abolish most of its present curriculum of studies and should confine itself entirely to doctrinal and practical theology, to Old and New Testament studies, to Church history, comparative religion, natural theology, logic, and to certain lines of study in philosophy.

To do this successfully, the College should take an quarter-century in the year University also, and should so arrange its course of study that students of the University could pursue a course of study in theology in addition to the course they are pursuing in the University. To the objection that this would overburden the student, I may say that a considerable portion of the studies in theology, such for example, as Bible history, Biblical study, philosophy, natural theology, etc., would probably be accepted by the University authorities as the equivalent of such studies as ancient or literary history, and others in a social discipline, the study of Bible history is superior to the study of any other department of ancient history, while the study of the Scriptures certainly ranks as high in culture and in disciplinary value, as does the study of Anglo-Saxon, and perhaps as high as does the study of certain languages. But these are matters of detail to be investigated later, if the suggestion I make should meet with approval, for if the training provided by the College in these lines should be thoroughly and every some worthy, there will not, I apprehend, be much difficulty in securing proper recognition of it as true culture.

In the manner there might be created a special department of theology, a department of the College and the city High school. College quarters near the Bible school might be secured, and the three hundred students now attending the College could be so arranged for in the High school, and in the University, as to do most good. In the University, the Bible school would be officially declared that certain studies in philosophy or in the Bible would be equivalent to the history of certain of their own studies, but that some reciprocity of students who had done good work in these lines would be made, even if it were not officially given. No mingling of church schools with the University would be required in these suggestions, but I simply suggest what institutions of learning in this and other countries have done, namely, recognize and make some provision for scholastic attainments which have been made in branches they may have been acquired.

Three good ends would be for the present, the Bible school faculty, three rooms in which to meet, sufficient accommodation, one hour a day sufficient for recitations, Bible school work is simple and inexpensive as it would be, would, nevertheless provide a missionary training school of the highest value for young men about to depart on foreign missions, or about to do missionary work at home.

I am opposed to any sort of competition between the public schools and the schools of the churches. Hearty support of the public schools may fail to be given, if the attention is called to parallel lines schools by a system of church schools. The burden of support of the public schools is much greater than this community can bear. The proper component of physical, moral, and intellectual education involves, in these times, an enormous expenditure—all that can be of effective value in education, and that education by any modern community. It would be madness for our own community to undertake to duplicate any of the same, except under considerations of the greatest importance.

I maintain that it is not necessary to a church college in this city to track the University and the public schools, that could be named adequate provision for the teaching of which can be made only by the expenditure of money for the public high schools. The situation in this city is different from that in such cities as Logan and Provo, in these cities, church schools were endowed and created and organized long before the people of those towns were prepared to elect schools for adequate education for their children. In those institutions have been arising. But to the extent of their influence in the Church schools.

The Latter-day Saints college could be chiefly and effectively conducted, without a large or expensive building, without any of the expensive scientific apparatus necessary to the teaching of science without a great library and without a large faculty of professors. A few of our best men, who are proficient scholars in the Bible and in Church history, in all the faculty needed at present. The college could easily be made a real teaching school for ministers. If the work is concentrated and confined within its own proper sphere, and not scattered over the whole domain of human knowledge as it has been, hitherto, such a college, I say, should and could be maintained. A college that pursues to parallel the work of the High school and the University, cannot, in my judgment, succeed under our present conditions, and nothing of the kind should be attempted.

All this is written with an earnest desire for the true welfare of the College itself and for the good of my people it has so ably represented, as well as with an earnest wish for the continued advancement of education in our midst.

Very respectfully,
J. H. PAUL.

HINTS ON FRUIT RAISING.

County Inspector Sorensen Tells Farmers What to Do.

To the Editor:

Your article in the "News" of March 11, about fruit raising is most excellent in regard to spraying and for people to take more to raising of fruit, instead of the raising of wheat.

Allow me to add a suggestion. A few things may be said, not to find fault, but to prevent loss and mistakes that are apt to flow from the promiscuous adoption of the advice given.

First let me say that if a man wants to plant only a small family orchard, or less than ten acres, what cattle blow best, and let it go at that.

But what this is written for is where the shelter belts of orchards are to be contemplated. First, ascertain certainly what varieties of trees your land is adapted to. Don't plant a peach orchard where an apple orchard should be planted, or vice versa. Next, don't be misled by some of the different varieties of trees, for, for example, there are four of the very best and sort of apples that are considered no use, because it made when they start to bear, but that you can tell at the time of the trees, independent of neighbors acquaintance. To fill up some of the vacancies in the orchard, some of the trees may be very profitable in the Eastern States, but here may not be so, so, do not depend upon what you see out of season and labor and worry and time from four to six years to be sure of what you have selected, whereas, some except the most solid and practical advice should be given or required, and it is a pity that people in the church, and today there is nothing available in print for this state to compare with the work of Professor Hansen, a biennial report, a copy of which can be had free of charge to all applicants, addressed to Secretary of State or members of the State board of horticulture, or the county inspector.

Respectfully,
JOHN P. SORENSEN.

SHIPMENT OF SALMON EGGS.

Through the enterprise of John Sharp, the fish and game warden, a shipment of land locked salmon eggs has just been received here from Maine; 1,000 of the eggs were this morning hatched at the Salt Lake City hatchery of Murray, in whose hatchery the eggs will be carefully placed. This shipment marks a great step forward in the Salt Lake market, and the experiment of hatching out the salmon eggs will be carefully watched and placed in better hands by Mr. Sharp.

DEATH OF FATHER CLYDE.

The good and venerable father of Representative Clyde of the Utah Legislature has at last passed away. For many weeks past he was in a very precarious state, and on two or three occasions his son was compelled to abscond himself from the Legislature to pay him a brief visit and to arrange important business affairs. On one occasion he made a trip to Park City on a special engine, and travelled the remainder of the way to Heber City through snow three and a half feet deep. On his return to the Park a blinding north-easter raged furiously with the temperature 32 degrees below zero, and subdued strength left to one the lines to the man who sat beat him, and also, after half a mile more had been traversed, returned the horse to Mr. Clyde. Thus alternately driving they managed to get through. When the Park was reached, both men and horses were completely covered with icicles.

Representative Clyde attended the Midway branch for a few moments the other evening, subsequently early the following morning and Dry Gulch and Nebo on the following day.

REWARD.

Five dollars reward will be paid by "The Cedar Lodge & Power Co." for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of any person found destroying the CEDAR LAKE LODGE, Are Lamps, Transformers, Poles, Wires, or other property of the said company.

The Relief Society of the Fifth ward celebrated the 5th anniversary of the organization of the society, by a social and entertainment, yesterday afternoon and evening. The program consisted of music, recitations and vocal music, refreshments were served, and an old time party was given late in the evening.

The Relief Society of the Fifth ward gave an enjoyable party in the evening of the day that event occurred. Dancing was the principal feature, while refreshments were served, and an old time dance was given late in the evening.

The Relief Society organization of Farmer ward observed the anniversary of the founding of the general society last night and yesterday afternoon. In the afternoon an interesting program was carried out, a feature being the reading of the sermon by Mrs. J. H. Redalit of the organization of the first Relief Society in the Salt Lake Joseph Smith at Nauvoo in 1842. This was followed by a brief speech by Mrs. M. I. Horne, the sister of Joseph F. Smith, who was present in Nauvoo when the society was organized. In the evening refreshments were served. In the evening there was a social and social dance in the ward hall.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the day on which the Relief Society of the Latter-day Saints was organized. In the Seventeenth ward the morning Sunday school took place in the meeting hall. The exercises were of a very interesting character, the sermon was impressive, upon opening the hall, the beautiful Relief Society Palace, foliage plants and blooming flowers, besides flags, bunting and colored elegances of every sort, lent beauty and brightness, while easy chairs, rugs, decorated stands, also added comfort to the surroundings. After music by the choir and prayer by Patriarch John Tingey, remarks were made by apostles Lorenzo Snow and Mrs. H. W. Smith, who was a member of the first Relief society organized in Nauvoo. Interesting extracts of that society was given by Sister Cornelia Adair, Mrs. T. R. Hull, President Zina D. Young, President Emeritus Eliza R. Snow, Mrs. Sarah E. Hesle and others. The exercises were concluded by the singing of "Hail, Daughters of Zion," by all present joining in the old hymn, "O, My Father," and the prayer by President Lorenzo Snow, who was one of the first members in the state of the society of the Relief Society organization. All enjoyed the occasion. "The spirit of God," etc., which was present at the first meeting in Nauvoo. After the exercises, refreshments were served, and a social period and people parted feeling had a pleasant and profitable time, and been spiritually fed.
