FIVE FIREMEN HURT.

They are Caught by Flames in the Big Blanket Dryout.

Detroit, Mich., June 11.—H. F. Cass's outside power building in Congress street, west, was discovered on fire at 1 o'clock this morning. The following firemen were caught inside the Cass building by the rush of flames. All were severely burned and some otherwise injured:

E. J. Sheehan, Hookaway No. 6, fireman; Henry Fisher, Joseph Schmidt, Thomas Kennedy, James T. Kennedy.

Some of the woodwork in the upper stories of the Union Trust building got afire and the Cass building adjoined and factory of the Knox checked.

A four-story addition to the Hodel office building fronting on Congress street, west, was ablaze from the top to falling of cornice which fell from the Cass building, the fire was finally gained. Part of the store of St. Paul's Episcopal church, was burned and the church edifice was saved by a hard fight. Fifteen hundred people were thrown out of work, they expecting to see it break off and burned. Two firemen were so badly hurt, that they were taken to the hospital. Another fireman was severely injured by a falling wall. Several in-mates were carried in the Wayne county bank building and other office occupied in the vicinity and numerous cases of other injuries occurred. Many were overcome. Several girls were caught in the eleven-story Union Trust building, and had to be rescued by firemen at a time. Nothing in the history of the burning power building has caused such a panic. The flames were so fierce that the wooden cornice of the Cass building was set afire by a portion of the falling wall. Some of the wooden cornice of the Cass building leaned outward in the wind and finally fell to the ground, where it was soon burned up. The Cass building was saved.

The Cass building was valued at $60,000. The loss upon the building is roughly estimated at $10,000. The Cass building was occupied by several firms whose that amount. The loss upon the stock of the Knox company in the fronting room of the printing of the Knox company is $10,000. The Knox company is a four-story affair, and the building is owned by a Mr. Hodel and occupied by a Mr. Knox, who was at his out on safety. The Knox building is a four-story building. The stability of the whole cliff now on is in question. The Knox company is a large concern, and it is said several stories have been burned out. The stock of the Knox company is very large, and it is said several stories have been burned out. The stock of the Knox company is very large, and it is said several stories have been burned out.
