Booths on every kind were established on the grounds, where well-armed men, by the tactics and their aggressions, who were armed and forth hand in hand, were a necessary obligation to the perpetuity of life; while an enterprising barber was busily engaged in welding the razor and the scissors.

Boston sent the largest delegation, which included several well-known and respected citizens, including John C. Smith, of the Howard Athenaeum, and D. B. Rich, Superintendent of the Cary Brick Company.

Representatives in the delegation were persons of either the C. or the D. clan, who has only six wives and thirty children—27 boys and 22 girls. The delegation, which was accompanied by his wife, and the three were the "lions" of the occasion. Their photographs were prominently displayed and attracted marked attention of every one present, especially from the ladies.

The oldest person was sixty-five years of age, and had been in the clan since birth with a lively interest. She was the recipient of many congratulations. Her presence was a great asset to the delegation. She traveled nearly two hundred miles to attend the convention.

The genealogy, written by John F. Rich of the clan, is a volume of some six hundred pages, and Mr. Rich has been assigned the task of editing it. The volume has already been traced as far back as 1371, and will contain the names of fifteen thousand persons of the clan.

The Executive Committee reported that balance of $600 was wanted to liquidate the remaining expenses of the occasion, and that the clan was planning to raise the amount in the form of a contribution to the clan.

On Thursday there was a gathering of 2,000 and 1,500 persons on the ground.

This ended one of the largest and most successful of the clan's gatherings, and everything closed with a record of the clan in the most unexceptional manner, and reflects the highest credit upon the clan.
