Frank Erne Talks of His Coming Go

With Gans. In reference to his coming fight with Joe Gans, Frank Erne, the clever little fighter, has the following to say: "I'll knock Gans out this tim He'll never get a chance to quit as he did in our meeting in New York about a year ago. The only thing I hope for is that Gans is in the best possible condition when we meet. If he is, then those who witness the contest will see one of the fastest fights on record. I mean to force the going from the sound of the gong in the first round up to the time I stop him. I won't give him a chance to set himself and in this way I hope to beat in quick. Of course there is always a chance for a fellow to sneak over a punch that will do the business, but I guess I will be on my guard this time and not do as when I fought Ferns, "If I beat Gans, and I surely will, I will fight any man of my weight in the world, i mean to fight every two weeks if I can possibly secure the matches and will continue along these lines un-til I am beat at the lightweight limit. After losing the title I'll never fight again. That's final. Ferns will proba-bly be the next after Gans. If Ferns won't give me a bout I will take on Lavigne or any other boxer in the world. 1 only wish McGovern was heavy cnough to fight me at my weight. I think I can beat that fellow and would bet some money that way if Harris would only give me the chance. Watch me when I meet Gans."
