Quite a Romantic Story Comes From Oakland, California.

FATAL QUARREL IN A SALOON.

Waterworks for Elsinore—Castilla Springs Improvements—Activity Among Grain Shippers.

Fruit-growers in Fresno county, Cal., are troubled to great numbers of birds which eat the raisins from the trees. Apricot trees suffer the most.

A number of tramps at Colorado Springs have been arrested charged with burglary of a flour mill and stealing three cases of whisky. They were all drunk when arrested.

Governor Waite of Colorado has signed senate bill 241 and after thirty days it will be unlawful for anyone to insure the lives of children under the age of twelve years. The measure originated with the humane society.

The preliminary examination of Geo. E. Richardson on the charge of attempting to wreck a Southern Pacific train near Delta on March 20th has resulted in his being held in $5000 bonds to appear before the grand jury.

Fresno county, Cal., expects during the coming season to ship more than 7000 carloads of produce to market, including green and dried fruits, wine, lumber, wool and grain, to the value of $12,000,000.

The Cheyenne Sun says that the Congressional cabinet of Wyoming having decided to locate an academy and college in Wyoming, the committee charged for this purpose will now proceed to make a choice of a site.

It is now an assured fact that the enterprising little settlement of Elsinore will have waterworks, says the Ephrata Enterprise. The trenches have already been dug and piping to the tune fixed and as soon as it is received work will be commenced in laying it.

Castilla Springs will be remodeled this summer and many improvements in the way of buildings are to be made. A large pool is to be made outside and surrounded by a high wall which will be connected and the pool itself is to have a current to flow.

In a drunken row at New Castle, Colo., a few nights ago, James Flynn was shot through the left lung, the ball setting close to the spine. The shot was fired by John Gerally, who was attacked by a number of men and knocked down and his jaw broken. He shot as soon as he was from the floor.

Cheyenne Leader: During last month Dennis McDonald, a well known ranchman living near Diamond, in the Chugwater valley, was confined to his house for several weeks by sickness. When able to get out he discovered twelve head of cattle dead. Investigation showed that they died from eating strychnine, which was mixed with salt. Since then ten or twelve more of his cattle have died from the same cause. Strong suspicions are held of a party living a short distance from the McDonald ranch.

Encouraged by hopeful advices, the grain shippers of Portland, Oregon, have hoisted themselves the past few days and as a result two iron ships, aggregating 3050 tons, have been chartered to load wheat for the United Kingdom. They are the British ships Birkdale and Bonjarla. These charters are the first that have written in two months. There are nearly 75,000 tons of wheat in the Portland warehouses, and a dozen disengaged ships are now in port. Ship brokers are working industriously and three or four charters are know on the tables.

A quarrel occurred on Wednesday night in a Leadville, (Colo.) saloon, which resulted in the death of one of the participants and serious wounding of another in the head. Thomas Marran kicked a dog belonging to John Finnegan and the latter answered by a blow. The three Marran brothers and James Finnegan took a part in the fight. At the jamboree the fight became indiscriminate. James Finnegan struck Terrence Marran over the head with a poker, laying the scalp open to the bone. This quieted them for a short time and a physician was summoned, but before he could arrive the fight was renewed and John Finnegan fired a shot. The ball penetrated the brain of Owen Marran, from the effects of which he died next evening. Both the Finnegans are in the county jail.

A party of Denver and Pueblo capitalists have left Cheyenne to visit the famous iron field in Hartville, about 100 miles south of Cheyenne. They were accompanied by competent experts. It is assumed that important enterprises are on the eve of starting up in connection with Colorado iron and steel industries, and the report has been made that it is entertained by those interested that the Burlington and Missouri will make connections at Hartville and extend to Cheyenne and Denver. It is also claimed that the Burlington is negotiating to secure from the Union Pacific the abandoned roadbed of the Colorado Central and will lay the steel and operate a line over that route, making close Denver connections with their Wyoming and Colorado lines. The Denver parties have already made large investments in Wyoming coal lands in both Weston and Carbon counties.

An entertaining story comes from the new Riverside county, Cal., of a clever ruse to locate the county seat at Menifee instead of at Riverside. It had been supposed that nothing could keep the latter town getting it, but something may. Menifee is on the plains between Perris and Elsinore, almost in the center of the new county. The managers of the project secured enough land at Menifee to cut it into 18,000 town lots, all numbered. They drew up contracts providing that Hobson, to whom a lot may be assigned, shall, in consideration of $1, become an owner in the event of Menifee becoming the county seat. These contracts have been given to the working people and others at Riverside who do not own land there, the expectation being that they will vote to put the county seat at Menifee and thus make their lots there worth several hundred dollars at a clip. A few hundred votes will, it is argued, settle the question.

John Flecker was a prominent Oakland (California) merchant last year. One day he broke a blood vessel and died instantly. He left an estate valued at $35,000, but he had not provided in case the world on such sudden notice, and as a result his business affairs were considerably tangled. The story of the closing days in the merchant's life have just been told in court in the effort to settle his estate. A few years ago Flecker had some trouble with his wife, and a divorce followed, she being allowed the custody of the two minor children. Their property interests were all settled at that time. Some time ago the merchant met Miss Pauline Gosch, a very pretty German girl, and a resident of this city. They became engaged to be married. To Paul Ulz, teacher of physical culture in the Oakland schools, Flecker told the story of his engagement, and at the same time expressed the fear lest his fiancee was poor, for he would never allow it to be said that she married him for his money, and therefore he proposed to read her a portion of his property. All I should do was for property, will be reported to her only, "If I shall live, then it will all be her estate." Flecker followed out the plan, and deeded to Miss Gosch several pieces of real estate. She felt the needs and did not have them placed on record, supposing that everything would be all right as they were soon to be married. Arrangements were being made for the ceremony when the hand of death was laid upon the bridegroom. Miss Gosch got her story in court yesterday, and the whole matter was straightened out. She takes a portion of the property and the children the remainder, as the law stands. The struggle was made in order that there would not be any unpleasant rumors over the estate.
