TWO REPUBLICS' BIRTHDAY

The United States, July 4, 1776—Hawaii, July 4, 1894.

Interesting Account of the Observance of the Day in the Sandwich Islands Capital.

HONOLULU, Oahu,
Hawaiian Islands,
July 5, 1894.

Editor Deseret News.

Dear Sir:—If you will permit, or space in your valuable paper, we, two of Israel's Elders, thinking perhaps that our readers would like to hear the news, which has been of an exciting character, caused by the declaring of a separate and independent government, called "The Republic of Hawaii," we use the liberty of describing some of the principal events which transpired here yesterday, being witnesses to the same.

The street parades begins early in this here town, as your readers have seen in the papers, the decoration of Liliuokalani, ex-queen, and the establishing of the provisional government, which transpired January 17th, 1893, which form of government, if we have a correct understanding of the meaning of the term, is one that is formed temporarily with the view of establishing at some future period a better government than the one which existed prior to that time. Whether it did not take present power is or will be more beneficial than the power which has just been established is a matter of conjecture which time alone can prove. Seemingly the majority of the population are satisfied, although a great number express themselves in not too flattering terms toward the republic and its president, who has indulged to no mean extent in kindness, the president assuming the authority of chief magistrate himself, instead of being elected each by the voice of the people, as in all previous instances when republics have been formed by the people, with the consent of the people, which has not been in this instance.

A peculiarity is that although they form a new and independent government they unite association in the United States, as was demonstrated at a mass meeting held by the P. G's, as they are known. A letter was read by James C. P. C. Jones, at the close of his remarks and "We will sing to the tune of the chorus of Dixie Bell:"

Oahu, Oahu, give us your voice, O!
We had not time to consult you
It will be a grand matter,
We can afford a banner
And, We can cover,
In honor of Oahu,
The revenue of U. S. A. 1894.

At the meeting above referred to, a resolution was read and adopted, adopting the resolutions passed by the P. G's, and which was unanimous yesterday, and it now the supreme law of this country.

July 4th, 1894, was a day like that of which has never been seen in Hawaii, nor will be received in the annals of history as her greatest day. Banners and streamers were almost everywhere seen with waving flags, the emblems such as pictures of George Washington and U. S. Dole, together with the dates July 4, 1776, and July 4, 1894, were seen respectively; the people were out in their best to participate in the celebration, and everything assumed a look of splendor and holiness seldom witnessed. A mere glance one could not have then over the republic of Hawaii from that of yesterday. At eight o'clock, from the front steps of the executive building, the former queen's palace, the new Hawaiian flag of State was lowered as we voyage. At the same time there was a large crowd present in the yard on the steps and balconies of the executive building. When President Dole stepped through the front gallery around the room and went down the steps to the middle platform, he was greeted with cheers and applause. He stood for a moment in silence to read the proclamation which changed the government of the islands from a temporary to a permanent one. When he had finished he was given three rousing cheers; then J. W. Kaua, a native, read the proclamation in Hawaiian, Chief Justice Judd in English and rules then administered the oath of office to the President, which is as follows:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully and to the best of my ability execute the office of President of the Republic of Hawaii and will observe and support the Constitution and laws of the Republic so long as I hold office."

As the President finished speaking the Hawaiian band started to play the "Hawaiian Point," the national tune, the guns in the battery formed forth the office of the President, and unfurled on the executive building.

After these impressive ceremonies the grand pageant, some going to Honolulu, which is the capital, and some to Little Britain, a park about 12 miles from the center of the city, where had been erected for the occasion a temporary pavilion, which lasted for exercises were held, commemorating the 118th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence of the United States, which was the great event of the day, the birthday of the Republic, by enunciation commodies. The pavilion had two gaily decorated with American flags, which had well towards carry, amounts 1776 and 1894 reading the Stars and Stripes, and some as elevated 15 feet as the speakers of the occasion, which were first H. E. Dole, Minister of the Interior; J. A. King, Minister of Finance; H. E. Damon, Minister of Foreign Affairs; J. S. Mott-Smith, Minister of Public Instruction; Chief Justice Judd, Hon. W. R. Castle, U. S. Minister, Hon. C. Cooper, U. S. M. T. Wilcox, Esq., and many of the staff officers and members now in service. At the end of the pavilion a large bowl filled with water, lemonade, sarsaparilla and soda water were dispensed free to all comers.

Hanson Weed was introduced as president of the day, and made a short speech of welcome. Congratulations of republican institutions were read by Prof. W. W. Liboty, of California, as already was offered the year of Liberty, the National Anthem, "Dear Old Land of Freedom," was sung by the entire congregation, accompanied by the Hawaiian band, after which the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, was read in one reading by Prof. Lee Cooper, successively followed by a song, "Over the River," by a male chorus, which was sensitive all sorely received.

The orations were by Hon. Lorrin Andrews, Hon. C. Cooper, of the U. S. vice Commissioner, in stead of the day, who delivered a great speech, stating that he regretted "Would that I could say 'Yellow citizens' but I see so many here who are not yet. A statement that people if were better to employ a new commissioner, Hon. Sanford B. Dole. The reference to popular association that which (which recognized) He operated a new of his popular speech, which differed quite in the work, referred to the Brazilian revolution, consequently to the Declaration of Independence and ended the remarks by saying "Vivat Hawaii!"

Mr. Mott-Smith, president of the American Legion, then proposed three cheers for the republic, which were given, with a will and followed by a "Vivat."

Mr. Wilcox, Congressman, in his speech, Capt. Jack Dominis, and Hon. Brown, Chief Justice Judd, "Yellow citizens! Daughter! If it is not altogether improper, let us give three cheers for the Judd family in family—the Judd Republic!"

The grandest song possible to sing—the song that will move anyone with a thing of a patriot—was then sung, and was read song by the assembly. The strain of "America" filled all upon the air and seemed fairly through those who heard it.

The band played a medley of American airs and the people left the building, which was closed for dinner, to which the Hon. Cooper had invited, where the Hon. Cooper and family resided, referring to the question, where the Hawaiian flag and ruling band the motive, Hawaiian flag and ruling band the motive, Hawaiian flag and ruling band the motive, Hawaiian flag and ruling band the motive, every one laughing at the idea.

In the evening of the exercises celebrating the Hawaiian were magnificent. The grounds were lighted with Chinese lanterns, the building itself appeared fairly decorated, a long row of electric incandescent lamps stretched from either side over the top of the house from flag pole to flag pole, with flags hung at intervals. The chief feature of the decorations, however, was a large light panel set, in different colors, that was placed on the front of the building. In its center, in blue lights, were the figures "1894." The whole was most brilliant.

The Hawaiian band played, as usual, the feature in the evening. The grounds, balconies and the street outside were crowded with people watching the beautiful display. The band played tunes until late in the evening, when the people retired, all seeming glad that everything had passed off so pleasantly, as we expected trouble from the royalists, who had boasted that the anniversary should be spoiled. Thus ended the greatest day in Hawaiian history.

The emigration from Iceland to America has been very small the present year.

Iceland is one of the very few, if not the only country in the civilized world, where the population has decreased during the last decade. The number of births exceeded the number of deaths with not far from 3,000 but this was more than balanced by the large parties of emigrants who left the island during the Manitoba and other parts of North America. In the way of congenital, part of the claim of Minneapolis and Chicago has so many Scandinavians as the total population of Iceland.

Idaho News.

BANNOCK, July 22, 1894.—The hike at Israel, Hyrcanian and Bribery had a call from President T. E. Ricks on Thursday. Two were present at Bribery which all the state turned out well. About fifty were present.

Although the day was very warm and not very little wind, the commodious room at Brother and Sister Cranwill made the hike cool and comfortable. Counselor Rigby's talk was a very history of the Church, and the rest of his experience in early days. He represents were edified to all present. President T. E. Ricks said he was pleased to see so many of the saints present. He was sorry to hear in his travels of some wishing to be released from their office. He thought it was not wise to continue that influence, but all should try to do their best and it would be all right in the end.

Sister Anderson spoke encouraging words to all present and especially to the young ladies of the Mutual Improvement Association.

Sister Hicks made some motherly remarks to the sisters.

Elder T. E. Ricks advised that the Sunday schools and the Mutual Improvement Association and the Relief Society with the Women's Exponent, to a new future then there would be no effort to make a bridge across the river, so the boys could hand cross both winter and summer.

Bishop is growing and Brother Rigby and the other sister his wainscoes are working very energetically in building commodious houses. They have been working here for months to get water and have succeeded at last in a well some 130 feet deep. This has proved a blessing to the farm.

Elder John F. Sterling was unanimously sustained as president of Sterling branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, since Thomas Sterling was released from being president of the Primary association and sustained as president of the Relief Society, Sister Rose Cranwill was sustained as president of the Primary, and Sister O. Ellen Herbert president of the Y. L. M. I. A., at the meeting in Sterling.

Elder Hicks and company left for Tyron week and other parts feeling well, and the saints thereby.

The Lake at Sterling and at Bennett's good sized farm for the Twin-south. They mean to be cheerful under hard times.

A. O. Ingersoll is justice of the peace in Bennett precinct, John H. Bay constable, and Charles Cundle tax collector of district No. 8.

Politics and the intense heat are making quite a stir in this side with so many cranks spouting and howling out some sentiments for a new district.

LOGANDER.

HAS A SWEET AND SOUR SIDE.

THE CROSS OF AFFLICTION ON THE FACIE TRUE.

"Life is all place at home is an apple tree, the fruit of which is sweet on the side next to the street," says C. A. Harrington, of Baltimore. "If he sees a sour apple on the other side, he takes it home and eats it, but he never lets on to the neighbors, for he knows they would be shocked at the phenomenon. The tree is not yet in a small shrewd I do not know the name of the tree grafted, I think it is a peculiar original kind of fruit. One of these apples is sour on the side of adversity, further away, it is sweet, and the sweet side is nearer to the street, so that the passers-by can get a peep at it. The great side is not enough to put a person's back up easy, while the sour side is so sour that it is usually fixed. Except as a covering the fruit is not very edible on that account, but I have succeeded in a number of cases in making the green side new, new, yes, hard enough to make the sour side sweet, and vice versa, and I have made a number of people who have tried it, and who never yet found one who was able to explain and clear up the fruit.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
