WATCHER AND COL. ARGUS.

They Cross Swords on the Question of Political Issues.

"Watcher" Still Thinks that Protection and Development of Home Industries is the Leading Feature.

Editor Deseret News:

It was amusing, to say the least, to note the expression of surprise on the part of a correspondent, "Col. Argus," in last evening's NEWS, that your valuable paper would, as an independent journal, publish a communication containing Republican views. This surprise must have been confined in its application to the appearance of anything from a Republican, as Col. Argus, a Democrat, has had free access to the NEWS columns.

His articles, too, have been read with a good deal of interest by myself and others, for in the main they have been a clear, reasonable statement of the municipal situation. This has arisen from the fact that he has been on the right side, his antagonist being that party which is headed and directed by that arch demagogue of democratic politics and false voters, O. W. Powers.

But when we saw in print a mild, plain, straightforward expression of the Republican views of issues in the present legislative campaign, he got angry and ran in a fierce charge like a mad bull. His argus-eyed mentality was so blinded by the mention of protection for home industries that he could not see the distinction between the policy of a bounty for a young industry and appropriation of legislative power by a city council. In a long string of facts he calls the attention to the fact that a Republican, Arthur Brown, did not approve of the Salt Lake City Council appropriating $25,000 to the copper plant. The infer in the colonel's parallel arises from this distinction. The city council has no authority to give bounties; that belongs to the Legislature. There was no opposition to this Lake in the principle of bonus or bounty to the copper plant men, as was shown by the spontaneous movement of the citizens; but there was and still is an objection to the city council usurping the power that belongs to the Territorial Legislature. That usurpation was at the behest of the Democrat who pulls the string for the municipal jacks-in-the-box.

The colonel further feels warmed up and says that because I stated of the Republican ticket that "it certainly presents a strong showing, and one that is thoroughly representative of the Republican party and principles," the implied "that the men on it are superior to those on the Democratic" ticket. The colonel draws the inference. I shall not quarrel with him. Maybe he is right.

"Fair in argument, fly to abuse," is an old saying, and there's where the colonel is when he strikes the stalking proposition. "Too preposterous to need argument," "Pigeon logicalities," "ridiculous," "meritless," "false," etc., is the line of his vocabulary. Possibly it relieved him to use "fewer words." He is welcome to a monopoly in that line.

It is again stated that statehood is the issue. How? The people are not voting on the proposition; the Utah Legislature can't secure it. "But if you don't vote the Democratic ticket, the Democratic party won't give you statehood." Won't it? The threat that uses that compulsory argument will not get the vote of American freemen. My vote is mine, a sacred right, and not the chattel of the Democratic party. But I must repeat my former statement that I do not think the Democratic majority in Congress contemplates any such tyranny. The statehood statement is a silly threat to intimidate trembling voters, a trick to conceal the real issue of protection to Utah industries and workmen.

"Home industry is an issue, too." Thus far we agree. "It did not by taxation of the masses." No, not by such taxation as the Democratic party has been imposing on the people of Utah for the past eight months. The Republican party would by bonus or bounty help such struggling industry that proved a greater benefit to the people than the amount invested, until such industry could stand alone. It would give home workers strength to meet outside competition and open up fortunes on every hand, so Utah could be built up by its industrious workers in every branch. It would not give a dollar of money except as the quid pro quo required it. It would aid the sugar factory at Lehi on the basis of its being a public benefactor; paid would aid another in Cache Valley for the same reason when the proper time comes.

But the "home industry" issue so worried out in the Democratic policy of eight months has been a loser, through threatened industries of the tariff, of $200,000 on the year's wool clip alone, and $300,000 more on the sale of mutton sheep. It has cost the Territory thus far $2,000,000 loss on silver and lead. And it is safe to say that $1,000,000 has been lost to other industries by the same policy. It has cost town "swallies of the masses" to regale town, but "deprivation of the masses" by throwing them out of employment, reducing their wages, and destroying the venture of business through pampering local American industries that might have been protected, fostered, encouraged and developed by the Republican policy that has placed the country in the prosperous condition of 1905.

Six million dollars loss to the people of Utah Territory in less than a year of Democratic policy! How long can Utah stand that "taxation of the masses" by the Free Trade Mobocrat?

WHAT DO THEY MEAN?

The Figures No "110" Over the Town Today—A Mysterious Sail Unfurled.

Considerable speculation has been indulged in today in political circles concerning the work of some persons whose loyalty to the public is unknown. The work in question was done last night and that a good many men were engaged in it is certain from the fact that they have left "marks" over at least a dozen blocks in every direction from the business center of the city.

By some it is believed that a secret political organization is responsible for the mystery. Others think it some kind of a queer advertising dodge. In this as it may the pavements and sidewalks are simply covered with the mystic symbol, 110, in red, blue, white and yellow chalk while the sense figures during the night were printed on window panes, doors and walls of private residences and business houses alike.

Some of the attempted solutions are funny in the extreme. Certain politicians think that the figures stand signify the ad-maker and city or possibly one party will know what the other on election day. Some others are certain the idea is that they have a particular disease to some order unknown only by the members thereof.

Priesthood Meeting.

The Priesthood meeting of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion was held in the Assembly hall today. Elder Angus M. Cannon, President of the Stake, presided.

Roll called and responded to by the High Councilors, Patriarchs, Elders George R. Wallace and William D. Dwyer of the Seventies and the High Priests' quorum of the Stake, seven Presidents of Seventies and fourteen home missionaries.

All the wards in the Stake were properly represented excepting the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Eighteenth and Twenty-third city wards and Bluffdale and Herriman of the county.

The First, Second, Third, Fifth, Tenth, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-second quorums of Elders were represented by their presiding officers.

Upon the recommendation of their respective Bishops, nineteen young brethren received certificates authorizing their ordination to the office of Elder on presenting to some elder worthy this office and calling if ordained.

Introductions were given by Elders Angus M. Cannon, Chas. W. Penrose, Joseph E. Taylor and A. H. Cannon, the higher council being the assembly of morning scripture and training young men in the Lesser Priesthood before ordaining them to the Melchisedek, care in taking before of standing from one ward to another when changing or allowing the giving of sufficient for offerings for the support of the poor the need of efficient missionaries among the nations; providing employment for those who are able to work, that they may have means of support during the coming winter, and the necessity of avoiding accusations through political excitement.

Announcement was made of a lecture institute to be held in the South Tabernacle Yield house on Monday, Nov. 13, at 10 a. m. and Tuesday, Nov. 14, at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. at which Pres. Smoot and others from the Agricultural college will deliver instructions. A general invitation was given to all interested.

Adjourned for one month.

CONKLIN'S PLEDGER.

A Hundred Irish Americans are on His Trail Today and He Will Know What It Means on Tuesday.

The Irish American society are up in arms today. The cause of their uprising is alleged bargain information received last night in which Mr. J. C. Conklin, the Liberal candidate for mayor, and certain prominent Americans are said to be the principals. Mr. Conklin is not a member of the organization, but is in direct touch and communication with them, and has, it is said, contributed from the following officers of elected: Superintendent of streets, superintendent of fire city and county building, five patrolmen and the entire force of police.

This news is denounced vigorously and the positive statement is made that one hundred Irish-Americans were doing everything within their power to bring about the defeat of Mr. Conklin.

Lowden, Wormsley, Doane and other liberal candidates are also receiving hot attention.

Wonderland.

A splendid treat is afforded the patrons of this place of amusement this week in the first appearance of Salmonde & MacPherson, lyric and tenor vocalists. Their act is novel and original and entirely pleasing, introducing martial, humorous, pathetic and comic melodies.

Their efforts afforded much pleasure last night to a large and enthusiastic audience, and they were greeted with enthusiastic applause. "The old Brigade," arranged as a duet, made a decided hit, as also did "Hearts," by C. E. Harris. These gentlemen possess excellent, well trained voices, and as the Columbian Troubadors, dressed in handsome costumes of the fourteenth century, they are a decided acquisition to the variety stage.

The stock company in the theatrical act are presenting in Alabama in a creditable manner.

John R. Park, LL.D.

The Utah University Chronicle in its issue for October 28th pays this handsome and deserved tribute to the president of that pioneer Territorial institution:

The University at the last commencement conferred upon Dr. Park the honorary degree of doctor of laws, the first of its kind which has ever been given by the University of Utah. Acting for the Regents the regents are empowered to confer the degree on those who, in addition to being men of high character, have rendered distinguished service with the University, are eminently qualified to receive it. The honor would confer the degree to give the degree to Dr. Park was felt since by the alumnae in commencement, and most felt on the occasion. The congratulations took hold of the University's heart and in the letter part of the exercises, and was conferred with a unanimity, as we expect a best expression. Enough, so to speak of the past. There will ever remain to be an intellectual bond of union between the doctor and the institution which he so ably guided during many years, and it is only with words of benevolence and affection that the students and people speak of him. We will have claim upon Dr. Park, and when we hear the students speak of the honors decided to the benefactor of the University, it seems a general matter of regret that he is not present at it but now, even if it is easy to have his name appear in the catalogue as a Professor Emeritus.

Jack Stake Conference.

The quarterly conference of the Juab Stake of Zion was held in the Tabernacle, in Nephi city, October 28 and 29. There were present on the stand on the 28th Elders John Henry Smith of the council of the Apostles, the Stake Presidency, and Bishops. After the opening exercises, President Penrose placed the Saints and expressed the joy he felt in being in their presence in the highway of conference. He dwelt upon the duties of the Saints and counseled them that they had come out of the world to accomplish divine purposes. Exercised them to observe Fast day, and to remember their offerings unto the Lord, to observe the Word of Wisdom, and to prepare themselves for the future.

Bishop Parker occupied the remainder of the time, speaking upon the blessings the Gospel has brought to the people.

At 2 p. m. Counselor James W. Paxman presented the General Church and Stake authorities, all of whom were unanimously sustained, as were also a number of Elders who have been called on special missionaries to visit in this Stake.

Bishop Lambrecht, of Eureka, and Bishop Hansen, of Levan, reported their wards. In the latter ward many of the Saints had been all ready to leave on account of being thrown out of employment and that houses in the mining towns where living is cheaper. Both speakers stated that the people wants saints to live their religion.

Elder John Henry Smith then delivered an excellent discourse upon the right of the times, and pointed out the course laid out in the letter by the Latter-day saints. Spoke of the great mission of the world and that the Lord is moving to accomplish His own purposes. The speaker referred to the necessity of the Saints becoming a self-sustaining people, that they may be all independent and not be in the manner of Word and drawers of water. God has restored the Gospel, and we have been warned to flee from the wrath to come. Fear and doubt are taking possession of the hearts of men. We are looking for judgments to come upon the earth, and the present is giving us a slight foretast of what can be done. The speaker closed by bearing a powerful testimony of the truth of the Gospel.

In the evening there was a general Priesthood meeting, where much valuable information was given by President Paxman and Elder John Henry Smith.

Sunday morning the Sabbath school of the Stake held their conference.

At 1:30 p. m. President Paxman called the Stake conference to order. The Tabernacle was filled to overflowing. After singing and prayer Elder John Henry Smith addressed the congregation. He referred to the delightful time entertained by the women kindly in regard to their life and the life to come, and spoke of the late religious congress held in Chicago. There all denominations were allowed to expound and present their doctrines except the Latter-day Saints. Elder Smith's remarks were listened, and were received with close attention.

Elders James W. and William Paxman exhorted the Saints to be faithful to their duties.

The choir under the able leadership of Professor F. W. Chappelly never sang more sweetly, and the music can not be said in high praise.

Shooter Upon Them.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Disgruntled state officials in the city council chamber today when the mayoralty met to elect a successor to the late Mayor Harrison. The rivalry for the chairmanship of the meeting was so intense that a number of fist fights occurred in the chamber almost as soon as the session opened.

Matters finally quieted down.

The holding of a special election for mayor will be held on the third Tuesday of the month, pending that election, however, it was necessary to select a mayor pro tem, and John Coughlin, another member of the council, in whom the police were called in to preserve order. Meantime great excitement prevailed outside the city hall and special details of police were necessary to keep them back. The council finally got down to business.

Suicide.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 4.—The body of Judge George W. Baker, ex-congressman, was found in his office at noon today. He and himself. The cause is unknown. His family is in Europe.

Suspicion Identified.

OMAHA, Nov. 4.—Harry Hill, Geo. Hughes, John Bennett, arrested last night on suspicion for the murder of Matt Anderson, a farmer, near Weyne, were identified this morning by Anderson's son, and later the Pottawattamie A big crowd of farmers at Pottawattamie were awaiting their arrival. It is believed they will be lynched. The men not only murdered Anderson, but shot his son and a hired man. They had been hauling corn for Anderson. The object in the crime was robbery.

Wire Send Upon Them.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Ex-Attorney General Olney today sent a wire to United States District Attorney Davis of Los Angeles, Cal., instructing him to proceed with the deportation of Chinese whose certificate expired.
