A Miner Almost Frozen to Death on the Mountains in Colorado.

BITS FROM MOUNT PLEASANT.

A Prospering Story.—The Proposed San Diego and Phœnix (Ariz.) Railroad.—Fatal Mine Accident.

The schools in Wellsville (Utah) are closed on account of the prevalence of diphtheria.

The mail carriers at Laramie, Wyo., will use bicycles in delivering mail in the spring.

The Mount Pleasant Dramatic club have completed arrangements to put on the interesting play Among the Breakers in about two weeks.

The Fort Collins (Wyo.) Express says: A number of farmers who are usually behind are now praying for cold weather to enable them to put up this season's ice crop.

Reports from twenty-one large herds of cattle in Montana show that the winter has been a very favorable one for stock in that state. More cattle are being fed in Montana than ever before.

James A. Lockhart, ex-sheriff of Grant county, New Mexico, recently bought all the cattle belonging to Saturno Barela at Dona Ana county, and is shipping them to the Arkansas valley near Rocky Ford for feeding.

A total sediment has occurred in the Conception mine at Atotoe in the state of San Luis Potosi, Mexico. Fire broke out in the main shaft, which caved in, occasioning a heavy loss of life. Thirteen corpses have already been discovered.

J. W. McLain, a Colorado stockman, has been found unconscious and nearly frozen to death on the streets of Chicago. He went there with four carloads of cattle, and when they were sold he stayed out to see something of the town, but being a Colorado man who had used to shun severe weather, he came near losing his life.

Three Chinese hoodlums broke into a house on Burton alley, San Francisco, the other night, and forcibly relieved the old Chinese woman who was the place of $30 in money and several bracelets. The thieves made good their escape before the screams of the women attracted the attention of the police.

While Len Harwood and Richard Talbot were wrestling, the former was thrown in such a manner as to severely hurt his ankle. At first it was thought to be only a sprain, but becoming very sore and swollen, a physician was called to examine the day, and found the left leg to be broken just above the ankle.—Mount Pleasant Pyramid.

Work has been suspended on the Midland terminal railroad to Cripple creek, Colo., because of the frozen condition of the ground. Operations will not be resumed until the frost is out. It is estimated that the attempt to make grading during the winter has cost $50,000 more than if the work had been delayed until spring. The extension of the road into Cripple creek will not be until May or June, and perhaps later.

Merill Burns of Sanpete county is making a record for himself that in our years he may, with justifiable pride, look back upon. His latest piece of neat work was the arrest at Gunnison of Emil Boneveit of that place. Boneveit is a young man of about twenty-one or twenty-two years of age, against whom there is lodged a complaint charging him with forgery, and it would seem that the crime can be easily fastened upon him.

It is understood that the local coal syndicate recently organized at Laramie, Wyo., and which has been getting the short end of the business since work has been shipped in there from the Rock Springs mines, thirty miles east of Rock Springs, is now endeavoring to buy that mine. Negotiations have been opened through Mr. Megath of the Union Pacific coal department. At the private company's mines at Rock Springs are associated with the companies at Laramie.

Harry P. Hindes, well known a sporting man, proprietor of the Capitol gambling house at Cheyenne, Wyoming, with three others got on a jamboree in a saloon the other night, amusing themselves with the candelabra lights, etc. On being arrested for mischief they offered the officers, shortly after being released, not any one entered the Tivoli restaurant and stabbed Warren Richardson, one of the proprietors, being assisted in the assault by another gambler, Dave Beardsley, who was easily secured. The assailants have been arrested and will be sent to trial.

Representatives from San Diego have arrived in Phœnix, Ariz., to confer with citizens concerning the proposed San Diego and Phœnix railroad. A mass meeting has been held, at which most business men and capitalists proposed to meet San Diego on way to the enterprise. The latter city offers to construct the road to the Colorado river if Phœnix will contribute to construction from that point. It was decided also to attempt to secure a free right of way and a liberal exemption from taxation of the road for a period of twenty years.

The success of the Cripple creek, Colo., is a great gold mining district is now secure beyond question, says an exchange. The mine work has been done on a large number of claims and many mines are on pay ore. Travel over the camp continues unabated, an average of 50 people going in daily. The Colorado Midland has three lines and is employed in completing the extension into the camp, and as soon as the march line is in a regular service will be given to the camp. The Colorado Cripple creek is via the Midland railway to Divide station, thence by Hussey's stage line into Fremont, the county seat of the district.

Chief Engineer Milner, of Colonel Weir's cyclonic Improvement Co., has left with a complete camp outfit to meet his corps of surveyors, who are now at work surveying four different sites from Jonesboro. They are running lines from Hanna, Fort Steele, Rawlins and Bawlins, and the rumors are that Rawlins will not be left out in the cold. Engineer Milner is the man who laid out the famous coup d'Gorham, above Georgetown, in conjunction with a business man of this city, he said that he had never seen a country favored with so many natural resources as this section of Wyoming. Coal, iron, marble and the finest mineral prospects he had ever seen were on every hand, and, in his opinion, this country was bound to boom as soon as outsiders were made acquainted with the many rich resources of development going on therein.—Carbon County Journal (Wyo.)

John Burns, a miner at the Fanny Rawlins mine of Leadville, Colo., has been picked up between the Midnight mine and the Fanny Rawlins in a frozen and almost lifeless condition. He had left his boarding house during the night and started for the mine to go to work, but lost his way and wandered around over the mountains without reaching a house, until he was exhausted and badly frozen. His appearance at the mine was hailed by one who had having arrived in time to go on the shift, word was sent to his boarding place that he did not show up. Knowing that Burns left with the intention of going to work, his friends became alarmed at his absence and started to look for him. He was picked up on the mountain. At first sight it was supposed that he was beyond recovery. A doctor was called, and found, upon examination, that Burns' feet were frozen badly above the ankles. His hands were also frozen, but not so badly as his feet.

Last week Mr. W. A. Gipson went to Sunnyside and with Mr. Daly, foreman of the Yellow Jack mine, proceeded up Miners' creek about a mile and a half, where they relocated a prospect that has been abandoned for a number of years, calling it the Ontario. The former name of the location is not known. The story of the prospect is as follows: About fourteen years ago the claim was located by a prospector, who sold it to a New York man for $1,500. This party sunk a shaft and tunnel in it, and then left it in the life for some time. He afterwards concluded to do some more work, and gave $500 to a miner and started from New York to attend to the work. The story goes that the miner skipped with the money, and that a short time after the owner died, leaving the property to his son, who came here, but was unable to find the location and returned home. The new owners report that the shaft is in interest.—Denver News.
