AN OLD MORMON CEMETERY.

It Remains Undisturbed on the Banks of the Missouri.

The Council Bluffs (Iowa) Nonpareil of the 20th inst. contains the following, which may be of interest to the veterans and the families of the veterans who crossed the Missouri at an early date in the western migration of the church:

Charles Lagworth, familiarly known as Charlie Lapper, of Payson, Utah, is now visiting in the city and vicinity for a few days past. Mr. Lagworth was an old timer in Council Bluffs, and removed from here to Utah in 1852. He has been making inquiries concerning the old cemetery of the Mormons, at what was then called Cutoff Point, a little northward of Little Sioux.

A number of Utah people who reside in this city and county away back in the years from 1846 to 1855 have been concerned about reports that the cemetery has been washed into the Missouri river and that its bones could be found of the graves of their relatives and friends buried there at the time the city was a rendezvous for the people who gathered into the Utah valleys. But Mr. Lagworth a few days ago followed up the trail he made when here on a visit in 1871, and he finds that the cemetery has not been disturbed by the shifting course of the old river. He has not heard the submission of his judgment in that matter by testimony received by him from old settlers in this locality.

Mr. Lagworth is a well preserved, intelligent man of seventy years, and consequently interestingly aware the wonderful changes that have taken place in this vicinity since the Mormons occupied the ground more than forty years ago. In driving to the old cemetery which he was highly grateful for his kind, he said a large number of the people buried there died of cholera in 1849 and the early fifties, and the people born of the present generation realize neither the sufferings caused by that and other diseases prevalent and the hardships incident to the life the lonely their predecessors, who found western Iowa and eastern Nebraska a wilderness which furnished homes only for Indians and wild specimens of the animal creation.

Mr. Lagworth visited a daughter in this county, but there are few others now alive in this vicinity whom he knew twenty years ago.

He left for his home at Payson, Utah, last Tuesday evening.

Bannock Stake Conference.

The quarterly conference of this Stake was held in Rexburg, Sunday and Monday, November 20 and 21.

There were present: President T. E. Ricks, Counselor W. P. Rigby, patriarch A. E. Hinckley, Bishops and other leading functionaries. Meetings were held at the usual hours both days.

President T. E. Ricks called the conference to order. He was pleased to meet the Saints under so favorable circumstances. He gave a full report of the organization of the Stake, which were all in a satisfactory condition. He also enumerated the business institutions of the country, and suggested how new enterprises could be established.

President W. P. Rigby discoursed upon the trials and persecutions of the saints, and the growth of the Church, notwithstanding such opposition. Our home history will be as momentous and full of interest as the past.

F. S. Bunnwell spoke of the unity that should prevail among the saints. He testified that the heavens would be not are opened to the faithful.

Elder C. N. Watkins, Jacob Spurt, T. E. Broast and others addressed the meetings and gave many good instructions.

An important feature of the conference was the interest manifested to devise remunerative employment for the people. The Presidency meeting took the subject up in a practical way, and effected a co-operative sheep organization on the spot.

President T. E. Ricks was pleased with the whole proceedings of the conference, and returning to the Salt Lake Temple, asked all to prepare themselves to assist therein at the dedication now near at hand.

The weather throughout was good, and all who attended conference were well pleased for doing so, and returned to their homes greatly benefited thereby.

Stake Clerk.

CHICAGO, Sanpete Co., Nov. 20.—The World's Fair Columbian Glee Club for Chester was duly organized today and its machinery (though as a small one) was oiled financially and promises a productiveness worthy of the name and this Stake of Zion. The officers thereof are the same who so ably preside over the Ladies' Relief Society here, viz.: Mrs. Olive Acord, president, Mrs. Emma West and Mrs. Eliza E. Allred vice-presidents, and Mr. Annie W. Caudland secretary and treasurer.

Sylvanus's able artist, C. C. A. Christensen, has already stretched his canvas on which to picture Sanpete's contest 1861—1892. The poverty of the outpost as to support to the Pioneers, the grandeur, the sublimity of the scene today as viewed from the tower of her magnificent temple, with all of its natural and enchanting adornings, are to be truthfully portrayed, "Praise to the World's Fair, and to Utah's building, this beautiful scenery will have a conspicuous place, and having advertised again the faith and perseverance of the saints, return to the outskirts of the Manti Temple, and to beautiful scenes say, "Behold what God and His Saints have wrought."

THE Y. M. M. I. A.

Stake Supt. John F. Allred visited us last Sunday evening, reorganized, refined and put in motion this powerful auxiliary in the church, preparatory for the development of the young men of Zion. The selection of officers emphasized the fact, the young men, etc., for in this instance they were all—Cassidy Lars Christensen as president, Andrew Jensen and Fred D. Allred counselors, with Lawrence Hansen as secretary and treasurer, and making an innovation—Sunday evening, the night of their weekly meeting.

There is an quorum of Young Ladies here, hence no Y. L. M. I. A. Cause—marriage, tendency or seminary deprive our ranks, but we hope in the near future these qualified young ladies will adorn our local institutions and homes.

AN INTERVIEW.

I did myself the pleasure recently to interview that old pioneer discoverer of coal, Bishop John Rees, of Wales, this county.

At the age of seventy years he is still active in exploring for coal. His early discovery in this line, in 1856, has drifted into the hands of the R. P. V. Ry., and the prosperous of the company of Mr. Rees from modest United Presbyterian in 1862 to manager in the English company owning the R. P. V. Ry.

It would do you good to hear the old expert tell of the new Canadian discovery six miles north of Ephraim, within no road to make to R. R. shows on the valley ledger, is excellent in quality for coking, heating, and endurance, a veritable bonanza in the fuel line. Lastly, after due opening was had, 100 tons per day could be loaded on the cars, and at $2.50 per ton would make glad the pocket of the most chary investor and give to a waiting community "the poor man's coal."

While is beautifully situated on the slope of the hills on the west side of the valley. Not as he notice the earth each returning day, pays his first obeisance in the peculiar pose and peculiar gesticulation, because of some of their manners, customs and language, thirty, hairy, gutted in song and music, these sons and daughters of the "pure Atlantic language" have created who know honesty, patience and sparing unexcelled anywhere, and they have no schools, but honest users. I thought at my interview, which I put to a novelty at the World's Fair if a venerable citizen from here, who unworthy dame, could walk the avenues of the fair dressed in the habiliments of the principalities with her round shortened skirt, charming colored hose, buckled shoes, bonnet-chief of brilliant cards, her hair surrounded with the stylized billet cap, and curls! I by the determined, tall black cover hat! It would be unique in the assurance.

WHAT IS THE NEXT SENSATION?

Politics has gone into the innocuous, the scrimmage is hushed, she low of eyes and pockets are turned to your fair city, waiting for April 6, 1893. There is a responsiveness particularly pleasing to him who believes it is the "Mecca" of the Rocky mountain. Thanks to a kind Providence for an abundant harvest, cheapest railway facilities, thousands upon thousands in the Temple, as Solomon's, wonderfully, land now unfathomably presented by saints city. 2, Velvet 2 and 3.

TIER.

In the management of cisterns the use of rain or snow water is universally recommended, as it prevents the propitious and the discharge of rubbish into. The water should be filtered before it is used.

Bricks made of plaster of paris and coke are now used in the construction of powder mills. In case of explosion they offer slight resistance and are broken to atoms.
