Da Verdi's Phenomenal Engagements - The Mozart Athenaeum Company With Letitia Cowley in Opera - Impassioned Splendor - Jack Edwards - The Grand Plans

What has been the most phenomenal engagement in the history of the Theatre - all things considered - is closing here this afternoon. After Miss Davidson's remarkable season here in October, 1903, when she played four nights and a matinee at the Opera House, she has never been supplanted at the same price in this city. Manager Hanna was willing and anxious to book her for a full week at any time she might desire. A year ago we decided to book her for a week, and she came here from Monday night till the following afternoon of the following week. This was the first time, and as the notes begin to slip out of all things theatrical in the West, Mr. Hanna's keen eye grew gloomy as he thought of the loss of his first prize. Still he was not without hope that Miss Davidson would take a week at the same price as she had done here last year. The result shows that his hope was not well founded. The manager could not get the first of December, they only fall off a trifle under the impression of the great loss under his last position, they now again on the third night, as the fourth there was no doubt about it, and he had to give up the idea. Monday night will mean a lively week at the theatre. The Mozart Athenaeum company holds the course two nights, with the big soprano Miss Davidson. For the first time in the history of the theatre, the company will be seen at the theatre. The Mozart Athenaeum company holds the course two nights, with the big soprano Miss Davidson.
