MINING AND MURDER.

Endless Reports from the Fields of Western Australia.

A WHOLE MOUNTAIN OF GOLD.

Are Its Discovery Leads to the Ravages of Nature by the Wayfarers.

TACOMA, W. T., March 14.—By mail the following story from the almost unknown gold fields of Western Australia, hardly credible it is and not here but out by cable it is said not have been cut by the journal of the singleness of the most incredible tragedy that has yet occurred in Australian Continent. Prospectors there have lately been to come from Ninety Mile Point, suggesting big—in fact and one hundred pounds of pure gold being found up on the surface of the ground. Some either made have tried with tools to pick and prospectors in the town in worth, picks it on hundreds of miles into the wilderness, far beyond some with men had ever been. They have enough food and water to last many days. They were brought back having with them what placed in the Congress hospital, already weakened with dying misery.

Dead tale of those departure men all in their right, new arrivals were nothing a specimen and with heavy pieces of specimens, water and other carting from Ninety Mile Point, two stunted women, fresh of Coolgardie, appeared into the interior. They found Dunbar in of last year who nothing being heard of their stores it was thought that they had died much.

Jim Robinson, one of the spectacle, pushed over his camp, 120 miles from Coolgardie, January 20th, and continued to the point. After discovering a quantity of gold, the party returning a day found that a band of camels had stolen all their provisions. The settlers pushed the blacks to their camp and captured the entire encounter, shooting the men and taking the women and children. The women have been attached. The gold at present where the spot was found is scarcely four high, two ounces and 20z left in the pan. Immediately Robinson, Dunbar and Hall, Thomas is nothing to be the case of the lot.

HOSTILE FOR MINERALLISM.

Means Dont Thinks Germany Will Fall for Africa.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 14.—Senator Teller, of Colorado, takes a special view of the possible action of the typical international monetary conference. He believes a bimetallic commission will be created. He leans to belief in the theory that Germany will fall into line with France and the United State and the other silver using nations and force that result. Germany may step toward an international understanding has been found by the attitude of Germany. At all events conference the Germans would have intended that their government was satisfied with the present system and would not consider the propriety of a change. Now, where, the senator says, a change has made over the spirit of Germany and in silence that she will be willing to take care independently of Great Britain. Great Britain will never come to consideration for herself, but she may consent to reopen the mints or bimetallic mints may a part of the reserve in the mint of England in case. The result, he is decided will have great consolidation.
