LOCAL BRIEFS.

Several people are complaining of the presence of "wigglers" in the city water as furnished by the domestic hydrant.

Thomas Brierley, assistant manager of the Kanab ranch, at Juarez, Tooele county, has been spending a few days at Salt Lake this week. The gentleman speaks highly of conditions in that locality.

A gang of youthful vandals have been amusing the first hour of each night this week in destroying gardens and turning on hydrant taps on First street, much to the annoyance of residents of that locality.

The force at the fire department are now busy choosing candy between times. The manager of the candy factory that was burned down by the Twenty-Eight Having sent a number of boxes of sweets with the compliments of the firm to headquarters.

Sheriff Crockett came down from Logan last evening, bringing with him Hiram Cowley, who was recently convicted in Logan for burglary and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. Cowley was placed in the city jail until this morning, when he was taken to the "pen."

Last night a other named James Thompson was brought in from Murpuch and taken to St. Mark's hospital with a cut in his left eye. Superintendent Thompson was at work in the mine when a huge rock, weighing dislodged, fell on him, but fortunately his eye was not broken.

Frank Lyons, who has acquired considerable notoriety through the simple expedient of mixing himself up, now appears in various home-made disguises, is now an unwilling guest of Sheriff Howells. The sheriff brought Lyons down from Pleasantdale last evening and lodged him in the county jail. He is wanted here for jail breaking, and horse stealing.

A gentleman giving the name of John Smith, who said he had a cousin in the City Council, was run in last night by Bicycle Officer Davis on the charge of violating the bicycle ordinance. He attempted to run a top bluff on the down sequence, but it was of no avail, and he quickly put up the two dollars and departed, threatening to have an entirely new police force installed by next week.

Lafayette Republican: John Sharp, the Utah game warden, with headquarters at Salt Lake, was in this county last week, and while here he visited the Lafayette hatchery yesterday and today, authority information. He has the position of hatchery in Utah. He was very much pleased with the looks of things at the Lafayette hatchery, and says it is the best equipped he has seen, and will take plans from the Wyoming hatchery for the one to be built in Utah.

A committee of the executive committee of the Utah Poultry Ass'n was held at the office of President Alex Ian evening, when plans regarding the management of the next exhibition were discussed by T. J. Alex, J. W. Hanna, J. W. Bird, A. E. Hoot and George Taylor. All reported increased interest as being taken, and expressed satisfaction with the prospective recognition by the D. A. & H. society.

Tom Quin, a member of the Mongolian Plum alley colony, appeared at police headquarters at 1 o'clock this morning. He was minus his twenty-first teeth and four dollars, and he had been knocked down on Second South street between Main and First West, by two men, who relieved him of his coin and then started him out of town. Tom's English is not of the best, consequently a description of the offenders could not be ascertained.

While at work at a kiln yesterday the 20th inst., at Tiburon, Ida., Frank D. Anthony had his foot badly crushed. The young man was brought to St. Mark's hospital yesterday, when Dr. Worthington dressed the foot. It was feared that it would be necessary to amputate the injured member, but after an examination the physician thought otherwise. Mr. Anthony's father, who was in Omaha visiting, arrived here last night in response to a telegram sent to him notifying him of the affair.

STILL ANOTHER "OLDEST MEMBER"

Mrs. Lucy G. Morley Allen writes to the "News" from Orderville, Kane county, Utah, as follows: "From a copy of the Deseret News now before me I see that William M. Allred desired to know who is the oldest member by baptism living in the Church. I will say that I was born in the town of Kirtland, Geauga county, State of Ohio, in October, 1815, and am now in my eighty-fourth year. My father and mother were Isaac and Lucy Morley. I was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints November 15, 1830, while the home of my father's family, the ordinance being performed by Elder P. P. Pratt. I went to Jackson county in 1831, and left there from there in 1833, and have gone through all the persecutions which the early settlers of Utah had to encounter.

SOME FACTS BUT MUCH FICTION.

Long Story by San Francisco Examiner of a Utah Outlaw.

KING OF ROBBERS' ROOST.

Leader of the Blue Mountain and Hole-in-the-Wall Society—Price on His Life.

(San Francisco Examiner.)

Utah, by a special act of its legislature, has set a price on the head of Tom McCarthy, dead or alive. Whoever captures or kills McCarthy will receive the sum of $1,000 from the State treasury for delivery of the prisoner, or his head. It is a hard way of dealing with a human being, but McCarthy is a hard man and ordinary methods are useless in his case.

Tom McCarthy is a bandit and cattle thief who heads a band of outlaws that for years has terrorized the people of Utah, Wyoming and Colorado. He makes his headquarters in the Blue range of the Rocky Mountains, where is a supposedly secure he has a secret rendezvous in a cave, luxuriously furnished and equipped with an electric-light plant, fortified with artillery and supplied with stores of food and ammunition against the possibility of a siege. A little over a year ago three governors—Adams of Colorado, Wells of Utah and Richards of Wyoming—entered into arrangements whereby the militia of the three States were to be sent against the robbers. Plans were made and the matter was well under way when the first signs of hostility between this country and Spain were scrutinized. The soldiers were mustered against a greater and more dangerous foe, and the expression of the outlaws in regard to the war upon the gubernatorial staff. Perhaps it was well, judging by the tales of the gang and its exploits, that it was so.

In fact, it has been noticed by the administration of Utah that the soldiers are not the agency with which to combat and overcome the McCarthy brigands, or make the attempt with the best chances of success. The movement of a body of troops after the manner of campaigns would be too much like an open book for the eye of the vigilance of this band, which has long ago taken precautions against just such a move on the part of outraged justice.

The people, however, excepting those who are acquainted with the history and methods of the McCarthy band, will probably notice the immunity when half three exists within the bounds of their nation an organization of criminals, held in check and controlled by a man whose generalship, incredible ability and remarkable personality are equal to many of the most famous generals of olden and modern times; a man whose exploits have made him a hero in the eyes of his adherents, who are in the gubernatorial chair, and who, when inclined to fain not only to the territory he harasses, but in the marts of the greatest American cities. Will not the mere change into a lack of wonder when it is told that the men under the government of this band of modern Robin Hoods are a fierce more improbable than the walled city of Acre, or the Rock of Gibraltar, is the statement of prediction is embodied in artificial means in keeping with the most fantastic dreams of John Ayres, who, in the days of his rich and great, in fitting, could turn green with envy the owner of the fabled cave of Monte Cristo? And yet, these things are true.

The people have come to the conclusion that the only way to deal with this gang is through force and war of the. The power to be sent against them will not hesitate the rude which held the gang, that they will be more upon killing the members one by one as they venture out for supplies. They will try to starve them out, and succeed on the cities. They may be successful, but it will not be done, according to the judgment of those who know them, in a few days or weeks. It is generally believed that there will be hundred-to-lack odds before the object of the legislature is accomplish.

Tom McCarthy, the leader of the Blue Mountain robbers, or the "Hole in the Wall society," as it is often called, has been called the Napoleon of outlawry. His origin is in doubt but it is known that he is wanted in several parts of the country for crimes of unusual atrocity. His appearance is anything but prepossessing. He is about five feet six inches in height and weighs about 175 pounds. His forehead is narrow and receding, and very small are his eyes. A fold of fat curls over the point of his chin. His mouth is wide and his ears are large and set close to his head and his ears are turned forward.

With a small following McCarthy perpetrated several mail and express robberies a number of years ago on stage coaches in Utah and Wyoming and in the mountains. It was his first appearance in the country in his role, and he found it a profitable one. He secreted about him a choice company of criminals from the neighboring States and Territories. After several years of notoriety, always pursued by sheriffs, the company settled in a certain point of the Blue Mountains, on the borders of Utah, Colorado and Utah. The law of some of the men during of the occasion has succeeded in give Mr. McCarthy an idea of establishing a retreat where he might retreat when hard pressed.

Miners and prospectors have in a number of instances wandered close upon the retreat of the bandits, and have always been warned away and never molested if their business in the locality was clearly peaceful. A few have engaged in a fight with the outlaws, who were retreating to their granite fortress, and have lived to tell about it. From time to time a fault has been laid against of the character of the place. Now and then one of the band, while visiting a town not many miles away, has revealed a number of things in his stay.

The exact locality of the retreat of McCarthy and his men is not known, though there are persons who could guide a party within three or four miles of it. The men come through a narrow gorge, and have to act in a particularly bold and tortuous place for a separation that numerous men, or even one, can hold back an army. Again, at the end of this trail, there is a passage-way formed into the mountain, which is nothing but a cave. Beyond this shelter soldiers bringing the robber to the entrance of the gathering place, which is nothing less than a series of amphitheatres in the center of the rock.

This is the stronghold of the Irish-Irish, and from this there run in all directions tunnels, their openings artfully concealed, in great are the passages made by subjects and men, one terminating at one side of the center of the mountain. This is known from statements made by subjects and men who have ever taken by the gang to do the work, and who were blindfolded while approaching and leaving the place.

But the most remarkable feature of all is the fact, boasted of by more than one of the gang, that the cave possesses an excellent electric-light plant, which (after three personal on horseback, it is even said that the system is used to light the place of the robbers' retreat. Boast is that it is for another purpose. Subjects say that wires run from the plant, one of the end of an alley outside of the fortress and communicate with charges of dynamite. They have stated that it would be impossible for them to annihilate a regiment of soldiers, and that the explosion of dynamite in the approach from a certain side would close the passage instantly, after which they could either live in the cave with security or escape from one of the many openings and scatter over the country.

The fortress is about fifteen miles from a settlement on the edge of the Utah desert, and about twenty miles in a bee line east and south of the town or seat of Grand county, Moab, and from this place the band gets all its supplies. In fact, the town is almost owned by the bandits, and some of the inhabitants have undoubtedly aided them against them. The common talk among settlement and miners in this section of the country is to be called upon for the story of the manner of living within this remarkable place. It is said that there are about ten men in the band, and that it is known that many fugitive murderers and escaped convicts, the latter from all states, are in the company. They are wanted in Utah, Wyoming, and Nevada, are in the number.

As the country gradually fills up the outlaws are compelled to abandon the idea of holding up trains and travelers and are combining their depredations mostly to the cattle business. The men are said to operate extensive grazing pastures in the heart of the Blue or Brook mountains. They are reports to be driven cattle, and make a specialty of gathering up stray mavericks.

It has been known for years that they have herds of different points. The police believe that the band has representatives in Chicago, Denver and Denver, in San Francisco and in the East in collusion with the gang. McCarthy skins his cattle East. Where they are sold, and for reasons the stocks in return by mail. Those checks are cashed almost daily in Western banks, though always through a third party.

* * *

For some time there has been a standing reward of $500 offered by the Governor of Utah for certain notorious members of the gang, dead or alive, and for the reward to be shot and carried to Salt Lake. Several of the outlaws have been tried for murders committed in the vicinity of Moab in the town of Moab itself, but the juries invariably acquitted the accused. People say that no one can be found who knows of the gang and there is never a trial but that one of them gets on the jury. The gang has a number of gentlemen always pass as mountain herders and drive as such. McCarthy has spent large sums in getting the best of lawyers, and many of his men who have been placed on trial.

A former United States deputy marshal of Utah in authority for the statement that there are 300 outlaws living in a guide and protected by the band of McCarthy's canyon. The marshal says that he saw the place himself, and that the outlaws represent persons of all ages of the law by robbers, who feared they would reveal secrets they had stumbled across. McCarthy is said to encourage such crimes. The story is told of him to the effect that a prospector one day wandered too near the hiding place of the gang. It is said McCarthy sent Mrs $100, with instructions to leave at once.

TO PAVE BRIGHAM STREET.

Wealthy Residents of That Thoroughfare Want to Do So.

The people residing on Brigham street east of E street are determined to have their thoroughfare. A careful canvass among the citizens of that locality is to be made, and if everything is favorable a petition for the pavement will at once be presented to the City Council asking that the work be begun without delay. It is said that the property owners in the enterprise—from a financial standpoint—can be appreciated when the work is completed, and the pavement, which would be something like $100,000. The estimates to be paved is about one-half the cost, and the balance will be assessed about the rate of $15 per foot, but the city would pay half of the cost of grading and assume all the expense of paving the intersections. It is also estimated that the Salt Lake City Railroad company would be required by ordinance to lay a single track and car, and for a double track. The track which is now being laid on that street would be in the way, and it is said it is different rail is used on paved streets. The gentlemen who are at the head of this movement feel confident that their hopes will be realized, and that they will then have a nice drive.

LEVY ON MINING CLAIMS.

Sheriff Howells yesterday filed a notice of levy in the county recorder's office on W. L. Pickard's interest in a number of mining claims, situated in the West Mountain district. The property is on a delinquent judgment of $2,331 and interest, due the Walker Bros.

BANKRUPTCY OF MR. KIMBALL.

As foreshadowed in the "News" a few days ago, J. Golden Kimball filed a petition in bankruptcy in the preliminary afternoon. His liabilities aggregate $11,635.35, and his assets $1,02, claimed to be exempt. His creditors are Mrs. Ellen Lee Kimball, $1,000; Barnes Banking company, $1,000; State bank of Utah, $1,000; O. J. Kimball, $1,000; Mrs. Ellen Kimball, $1,000; and a number of others, amounting in action against petitioner, J. Z. Stewart and E. A. Kimball.

The Kimball property consists of real estate valued at $1,750 and household goods aggregating $50.

CONFERENCE PROCEEDINGS

The Deseret News, by direction of the First Presidency, will issue a pamphlet giving a complete account of the proceedings of each General Conference, including verbatim reports of the discourses. It also contains, as an appendix, an account of the conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Union. The next issue will be the fourth of the series, and will be ready immediately after April Conference.

The reasons for this publication, in the opinion of the undersigned, are:

It is a means of making the saints more familiar with the views, sentiments and teachings of the Church authorities, thus placing them in closer touch with each other.

Such a publication is of great historical value.

It can be made useful abroad through the medium of missionaries, and by those who are not by nature or habit prone to read the Deseret News.

The price of the pamphlet is nominal, it will be sent to any address, postpaid, free, for fifteen cents. Agents will be allowed a discount of 50 per cent. Please send orders for the next issue as early as possible.
