

is it my present purpose to inquire; but one thing I do know, that so far as I have read or heard there are but two planks in the Liberal platform in Utah. All other so-called planks are subordinate. The planks I refer to are religion and the control of the people and their public funds. I place the making of religion a political hobby where it rightfully and truthfully belongs, with the "Liberals." The party is a conglomeration of malcontent republicans and democrats, with sectarian bigoted priests and their anti-"Mormon" missionary flocks. Nor is this all, the whole concern hangs on the so-called "Mormon" religion. It may all be summed up in this: "You Mormons have a religion we malcontent Gentiles don't like and because we don't like your religion we don't want you to hold office nor control the public money."

There is no greenback nor fiat money party, no gold or silver party, no north nor south, bond or anti bond party, but like Pilate and Herod, all of the anti-"Mormons," and even our governor seems not to be an exception, join to tell us while we observe our religion to which, under God and the Constitution, we have as good a right as they have to the food they eat or the air they breathe, we shall not become a State or hold an office in the gift of the people if they can help it. The religion of the Latter-day Saints then is the great political question between the People's and the "Liberal" party, and that issue the last named party is responsible for making, hence it, as I view it, is a duty the old settlers owe to themselves religiously as well as financially to defend themselves at the polls and pay no attention to political humbug.

DANIEL TYLER.

Popular "Christian" sentiment is well illustrated by the following paragraph from an eastern paper: "For six days while the cell of Chastine Cox was being decorated with expensive flowers, and he was receiving no end of sympathy and presents, a poor woman was lying in the attic of a tenement house only a few squares away, with her dead babe on an old trunk, because she could not get money enough to bury it. But then, she had never killed anybody."

According to the coast papers, "The returns at the office of the Supervisor of Census make the population of San Francisco 233,066, inclusive of 20,549 Chinese."
