DESERET EVENING NEWS.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1895.

THROWN FROM A STREET CAR.

Mr. J. H. Bennett Meets with a Serious Accident.

Mr. J. H. Bennett, former passenger agent of the Rio Grande Western, met with an accident last evening, which will incapacitate him for business for a few days at least.

He was riding on the rear platform of a Rapid Transit car, when it suddenly struck the curve at the corner of Second South and State street, throwing the gentleman off, face forward, from which he sustained numerous painful cuts and bruises. Mr. Bennett was rendered unconscious by the force of the fall, and it was not until he received proper medical treatment at the hands of Dr. Hensel that he regained consciousness. The gentleman's injuries consisted of a bad bruise on the temple, cuts on the left hand, and a severe internal hemorrhage.

WANTS A DIVORCE.

Mrs. Charles Cooper Applies for Relief From the Bonds.

Mrs. Charles Cooper alleges, in a complaint filed with the clerk of the district court, that her husband is a very cruel man, and treats her in a very inhuman manner; that he applies to her vile and abusive names, accusing her of being an evil woman and of conduct towards him which would entitle him to a divorce. About a year ago the lady was obliged to undergo a surgical operation, but that her cruel husband refused to allow the necessary medical treatment and was very angry when he discovered that the operation had been performed. Other allegations of cruelty are made, and the defendant is asserted to own property to the value of $25,000. The plaintiff therefore asks for a divorce and a restraining order to prevent the defendant from disposing of his property pending the hearing of the suit for divorce, alimony and costs.

A Veteran Honored.

As a sequel to the reception given Bishop Thorn, of the Seventh ward, at his residence on Friday evening last, October 25, on which occasion he was honored by the presence of President George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith, the presidency of the Stake and presiding Bishop Preston, from whom he received many kind congratulations on attaining his eightieth year, and words of eulogy for his energetic and fatherly labors in his bishopric, another reception was held in the ward meeting house where numerous members of his flock, old and young, gathered on Sunday evening last to further do him honor in greater number than could possibly assemble at his home. Many pleasing musical selections were rendered under the leadership of Elder Wm. H. Foster, who has filled that position many years. The program was enlivened by other musical selections. Many of his old time associates were present, among them being H. Dinwoodey, George Whitaker, Thomas Woodbury, Wm. McLoughan and Sister Lambert. In short speeches they reviewed his particular and untiring diligence for the temporal and spiritual benefit of those over whom he has so long presided, and many reminiscences of the "days of auld lang syne" were brought from the mental storehouse of the speakers. A few hours of much enjoyment were spent together. May there be many more such.

It is contemplated, it is said, to present the worthy Bishop with a life-size portrait of himself, and also to adorn the walls of the ward meeting house with a fac simile.

AMUSEMENTS.

Return of Jim the Penman at the Lyceum—The Grand.

Indications are that the Theater will be filled again when Mr. Paul Potter's Trilby appears on Saturday next, for a matinee and evening performance. The charm of Mr. Lackaye's characterization of Svengali is best explained in Mr. Potter's own words. After an early rehearsal of the piece, he said: "The man does not play it as the majority of stage villains would. There is nothing cringing about his villainy. All through the play Svengali shows his superiority over those around him. When he says 'I am Svengali,' we is great."

THE GRAND.

The Bailey stave is a drawing attraction at the Grand, notwithstanding the fact that the public on the eve of the election naturally is occupied by interests of a public nature.

THE LYCEUM.

Jim the Penman was presented last night at the Lyceum to a fair sized audience and proved to be the strongest play so yet presented by the stock company. The first act plunges in medias res and interests the audience from the start without a lengthy introduction of complicated and development of the plot, which is inseparable from the average first acts of the majority of plays. The scene opens on Jack Halston's (Jim the Penman) palatial home a residence after twenty years of a successful criminal career and married life, both of which were secured through the medium of Jim's artistic penmanship. Baron Harfield, the instigator and general tutor of the forgery company appears upon the scene, together with Louis Percival, one of the heaviest sufferers from the depredations of the gang and otherwise Nina Halston's old lover, also Captain Redwood, the Pinkerton detective, who is onto the game and bides up serenely through the rest of the play until the finale. Jack Halston contracts heart disease and remorse, but is induced by his Frankenstein to make one grand final coup and secure the family diamonds of Lord Dettlemont, who is engaged to marry his only daughter, Agnes, which is successfully accomplished. From there on his villainy is exposed and he commits suicide in his castle, whilst the wedding party are making merry in the next room.

Mr. Sheridan Jack Ralston gives evidence of careful study and an even rendition. His play, while never rising to great brilliancy, stamps him as a capable actor. Miss A. A. Dwyer's interpretation of Mrs. Halston was a finished piece of artistic work. Mr. Charles T. Richards made the best of his part as the wronged man, but as the plebian American, Louis Percival, he lacked and asked more of an artistical character. Mr. Wilmer's Lord Dettlemont, Jim Kelly as the detective pleased the audience very much, whilst Mr. Brewer's Baron Harfield was a good piece of character work. The remainder of the cast including two local faces were evenly balanced. Jim the Penman has not been played here since its presentation by Palmer's company five years ago.
