ASSAULT ON GREEK LABORER

John Toney Waylaid by Fellow Workman and Barely Escapes With His Life.

OBSEQUIES OF MRS. BROWN.

Impressive Services in Fifth Ward Hall—Coasting Accident—C. W. Scott and Wife at Liberty.

Ogden, Dec. 30.—A murderous assault was made upon John Toney, a Greek laborer, Saturday afternoon by a fellow laborer known as "Jake." The trouble occurred along the railroad tracks in the southern part of the city. The object evidently was robbery, but Toney's assailant was frightened away by the cries of the victim before he could complete his plans.

Toney and the man "Jake" had been employed for some time on the Ogden-Lucin cut-off work at Lakeside. They came to town Saturday after drawing their month's wages. Inasmuch as they had been friends while at work, Toney suspected nothing when "Jake" informed him that he knew of a place where they both could get good jobs. Neither did he suspect anything when he was asked to accompany his friend a distance east of the city, where the place of employment was said him to be located. Together the two men started along the tracks from the Union depot. They talked in a friendly way as they walked and there was nothing to indicate to Toney that he was being led as a lamb to the slaughter.

When the two reached a point about a mile below the city, "Jake" excused himself for a moment or two and when he next came to where Toney was waiting he had a stout club in his hand. Without any word of warning or explanation he dealt Toney a fearful blow on the head with the club. Apparently "Jake" expected that he would render his victim unconscious, but in this he failed and Toney cried loudly for assistance. His assailant became frightened when he saw that his plans had miscarried and after muttering several oaths, directed at fate, between his clenched teeth, he took to his heels and so far has escaped detection.

Toney was in a pretty bad way when he first informed the police of the affair. It was difficult at first to get a connected story from him, but after a time he was able to give the officers enough to work on. In the hope of capturing the thug the news of the assault was withheld until yesterday. They now have a good description of the fellow and declare that his escape is virtually impossible.

"Jake" was with Toney at the time the latter drew his wages for his work on the cut-off and knew what amount he received. The police believe that the whole affair was premeditated and that he had counted on his ability to render Toney insensible with a single blow from the club. Descriptions of the fellow have been sent out in all directions and his apprehension is expected at any time.

FUNERAL OF MRS. BROWN.

Impressive obsequies were held Sunday in the Fifth ward meetinghouse over the remains of Mrs. Harriet Brown. The spacious edifice was inadequate to accommodate the large number of relatives and friends who gathered to pay their last respects to the deceased, who had held their respect and love in this life. The members of the Weber stake Sunday school board attended the services in a body. Many floral offerings were laid upon the casket. The services were presided over by Bishop John Watson. Mrs. S. D. Bradford and a double quartet rendered several selections, as did also Mrs. Mary Farley and a male quartet. Those who eulogized the life of the deceased were Elder David O. McKay, President C. F. Middleton, Elder C. J. Ross, Bishop John Watson.

The police at first determined to prosecute the fellow on some minor charge, apparently on general principles, but later had a change of heart and Scott was allowed to go with his girl bride.

Since the death of his wife, Joseph Householder has married again and petitioned the court to set aside the appointment of Phoebe Adams as guardian to which the children strongly objected, not wishing to be forced to live with their stepmother. They remained in the eastern states until 1862 when she and husband started for Utah. They staid a few days in Salt Lake City, coming almost direct to Franklin, being among the very early settlers of this place. Her husband, during the times of Indian troubles and reckless white men, was accidentally killed, leaving her soon after her arrival here to fight life's battles alone. THE BARBER SAVES THE CLIPPINGS.

The barber as his patron arose shook from the apron to the floor the short locks that he had clipped from the man's head and a boy appeared, swept up the hair and placed it carefully in a large bag.

"Has it got any use?" asked the patron, with an interested and pleased smile.

"Of course it has," said the barber. "Would I save it otherwise?"

"But it is so short."

"No matter. It has its uses."

"What is it used for?" said the man. "What will become of that short hair which I have been carrying about under my hat?"

"Well," said the barber, "some of it will go into mortar, some of it will stuff furniture, but most of it will be made into those fine strainers which are used to clarify the best syrups. There are no strainers equal to those woven of short human hair, and for all the hair that we barbers can supply the strainer makers keep up a steady demand."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

It is a careless sweeper who lets her broom wear out on one side. One that is kept straight will last three times as long as if used unevenly.

A broom should always be hung. This can most conveniently be done by screwing a large picture ring through the top of the handle.

Many householders dislike to burn organic refuse because of the offensiveness of the process. This can be overcome entirely by first drying it in the ash pit beneath the fire.

Jams of glass may be easily removed by applying soft soap to the putty which holds them. Leave the soap on for a few hours before attempting to remove the putty, which, however hard it may be, will rarely fail to soften under this treatment.

THE GYPSY CURSE.

Friday is the weekly fraud; everything goes wapper-jawed; and the sailorman who sails finds himself food of whales, and the man who killed a friend, on a Friday meets his end; on a Friday trade is slack, all the trains run off the track; William Doe, to his amaze, draws ten dollars and ten days; brickbats fall from buildings high, break your neck and make you cry; fevers, fires, and frosts abound, earthquakes come and snort around. Old subscriber, in a pet, comes to swear at the Gazette; everyone is feeling blue, everything is hand-end to; yet some comfort we may seek; Friday comes but once a week.—Emporia Gazette.
