A Colony from Java, in the Indian Archipelago, Going to the World's Fair.

The special train with the Javanese colony destined for the World's Fair failed to reach Ogden this morning, but a dispatch announces that it will arrive at the Junction city tomorrow morning without fail, and proceed eastward. This colony is the first of the race to enter the United states. The Javanese are an interesting people, and their native island, while it is the third in size in the Malay archipelago, is the first in commercial importance. Its breadth varies from 56 to 120 miles, and its greatest length from east to west is 600 miles. The formation of the island is highly volcanic. A range of mountains runs from one end of the island to the other, with peaks varying in height from 4000 to 12,000 feet. The range of the thermometer in the parts chiefly inhabited is from 70 deg. to 90 deg. Fahrenheit, and the change to this climate makes the new comers shiver, even with additional clothing.

The president of the Java World's Fair syndicate is E. J. Kerkhoven and the vice-president G. Mundi. Both men are wealthy plantation owners of western Java. The former owns plantations, which contain about 5,000 acres of coffee and tea lands, and the latter 6,000 acres of similar land. The natives who comprise the colony are with one exception, plantation hands, and they will inhabit the Javanese village in Chicago. They have a head man or prince among them. Whenever any question arises he becomes the arbitrator for the occasion. His name is Raden Adnen. On the left side of his face is a long and wide birthmark. The agent who is with them all the time and acts as head keeper is Carlo Ferrari, a noted Italian hunter of the tiger and rhinoceros, who lays claim to having bagged twenty-two of the former and thirty-two of the latter animal. He speaks the Javanese dialect fluently.

The Javanese are small in stature and have dark copper-colored skins. They closely resemble Chinese and Japanese. Their features, however, are more pronounced, and their eyes are sharp, bright and intelligent. They are splendid imitators in every way, and the World's Fair is no exception. The men wear a sort of cotton blouse, cloth trousers tight in the legs, a short cotton skirt or sarong, which falls nearly to the knee, and a woolen coat. Their head is adorned with a sort of turban made from a large handkerchief, and they wear leather boots. The average height of the men is about five feet two inches. The Javanese women are much smaller than the men, and when full grown seldom reach five feet. They have a strong feminine taste for jewelry. Their clothes consists of a low cut waist and a skirt of batik, or loudly figured cotton, that reaches to the ankle. Over this is worn a woolen coat, which is left open, although provided with buttons all the way down the front. All the women wear shawls. Their hair is done up in a Grecian coil. American hosiery has found its way into Java, and all the women wear stockings. They have not learned, however, the advantage of elastic bands to hold them up, and suspenders are an unknown quality, so that the women have considerable difficulty in keeping their hosiery in place. Their footwear is yellow leather shoes.

Among the special things to be exhibited will be four Buddha idols, fine specimens of tiger skins, huge rhinoceros feet, a Javanese blacksmith shop in active operation, the peculiar tools that go with it for the manufacture of daggers and other weapons, and the manufactured bark fabrics of Java, matting, art decorating and weaving. The last, but not least, of the Java exhibit is an orang-outang. It is about four and a half feet in height, has an almost human face and is almost human in its actions. It is now four years old. On the trip across the ocean this animal bit Mr. Mundt on the hand and leg. The strength of the orang-outang was so great that it took the combined efforts of four men to put him back in his cage. The following day Mr. Mundt thrashed the animal, and it cried like a child and was so ashamed for several days after the whipping that it hid his face with its hands every time Mr. Mundt went near the cage.

OBSERVATIONS FOR APRIL.

Compiled From a Record Taken at the Local Station Covering a Period of Nineteen Years.

The chief of the weather bureau directs the publication of the following data, compiled from a record of observations for the month of April, taken at this station during a period of nineteen years.

It is believed that the facts thus set forth will prove of interest to the public, as well as the special student, showing as they do the average and extreme conditions of the more important meteorological elements and the range within which such variations may be expected to keep during any corresponding month.

TEMPERATURE.

Mean of normal temperature 50.8°.

The warmest April was that of 1889, with an average of 55.2°.

The coldest April was that of 1883, with an average of 45.5°.

The highest temperature during any April was 84° on April 27th, 1888.

The lowest temperature during any April was 15° on April 5th, 1875.

Average date on which last "killing" frost occurred (in spring) April 1st to 5th.

PRECIPITATION.

(Rain and melted snow.)

Average for the month, 2.36 inches. Average number of days with .01 of inch or more, 10. The greatest monthly precipitation was 4.42 inches in 1880. The least monthly precipitation was 0.99 inches in 1874. The greatest amount of precipitation recorded in any 24 consecutive hours was 1.41 inches on April 6, 1882. The greatest amount of snowfall recorded in 24 consecutive hours (record extending to the winter of 1884-5 only) was 32 inches on April 14, 1888.

CLOUDS AND WEATHER.

Average number of cloudless days, 8. Average number of partly cloudy days, 12. Average number of cloudy days, 9.

WIND.

The prevailing winds have been from the northwest. The highest velocity of the wind during any April was 33 miles on April 13 and 22, 1889; 17 1889; 7, 1891. GEO. N. SALISBURY, Observer, Weather Bureau.

COUNTERFEITERS' OUTFIT.

A Brace of Spurious Coin Producers Arrested by the Police.

Captain Donovan and other members of the police force on Saturday night arrested a couple of suspicious characters on the charge of passing counterfeit money. They were apprehended near the Valley house corner, and when commanded to throw up their hands lost no time in obeying the injunction. A search was immediately instituted and in their pockets were found ten counterfeit silver dollars and five spurious nickels.

Both men were taken to the police station and subjected to a rigid examination as to their antecedents and business, but neither would answer the questions propounded to them. They, however, gave their name as A. C. Albert and J. H. Patterson. The latter was subsequently identified as a shopkeeper at No. 158 west, South Temple street. His place of business was raided by Detectives Sheets and Rhodes who found in the rear of the store a lot of cheap jewelry and a complete counterfeiting kit consisting of dyes, moulds, crucibles, chemicals and a miscellaneous lot of necessary incidentals.

LIVE STOCK POINTS.

If you wish to buy or for any reason to move colonies of bees, do it now before the warm weather sets in. The arguments in favor of the line of action are apparent without argument.

When lambs are coming daily and nightly, it is a good plan to keep hot stones on hand to warm any that are chilled. This often saves the life of a future good fat mutton. The loss of lambs is a large per cent of the annual losing of the sheep breeder.

If an ewe will not own her lamb, tie her up for a few days and feed and water her well. Exhaustion is sometimes a reason for ewes disowning their lambs. If a sheep mother is tied up, she can't get away from her offspring.

If you ship bees by rail, place the hives so that the combs will run lengthwise of the car. The severest jolts come from the ends of the car. In a wagon on a road, however, the hardest jolting is from side to side, and there the combs want to stand crosswise of the vehicle.

We hope our readers will try raising rape for sheep this year, and that this time it will not be bird rape seed that is sent to them. One acre of rape on ground not previously cropped that season, if it is good ground, will pasture 36 lambs for two months. On ground that had been before used for raising rye fodder the rape pasture has fed 15 lambs for two months.

Rape is worth twice as much as clover for fattening.

February is one of the best months of the year in which for calves and lambs to come. They and their dams get a good ready for the spring pasture.

Do not let manure remain in the sheep sheds till it heats and the ammonia escapes noticeably. If it begins to do this, clean it out at once. It will injure both the fleeces and the sheep in that condition.

The best weeders are in many cases hogs in a field. They will slowly root out the pestiferous wild morning glory vines that almost ruin so many gardens. Roots of all kinds are a delicacy to them.

Hood's Cures

Saved From the Grave

Scrofula in Face and Neck—Blind at Times

Hood's Sarsaparilla Restored Health—Gained 33 Pounds in Weight.

Mr. Wm. Erdch
West Duluth, Minn.

"I have been a very great sufferer from a serious case of scrofula. First, a large bunch came on my neck growing as big as a good sized apple. It was so hard as bone, and after doctoring it to a head the doctor lanced it, and for two years

It Was a Running Sore

Then we succeeded in healing it up, but the disease began to appear in my face, which would swell up and affect my eyes so that every morning they were so inflamed and swollen that I was blind. The swelling would subside in the middle of the afternoon so that I could see a little. Well, I was in this condition for about a year. I went to every physician in my town, all of whom failed to help me and said nothing could be done to cure me. But I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had used a bottle and a half, the swelling in my face had entirely gone down. I kept on taking the medicine, and gained 33 pounds in weight.

I Have Been Perfectly Cured

am now in good health, and confidently say Hood's Sarsaparilla saved me from the grave. Today I am looking as stout and hearty as ever

Being Beautiful

Is the least of being—that's all right for us hardware folk; we only think of being good and of how many nails we can give for a dollar. But with the women it is important to be too sweet for anything, and the MAJESTIC RANGE or RELIABLE GASOLINE STOVE will sweeten the temper of any woman. They too have wound their way into the hearts of many a housekeeper solely on their own merits.

They may not be as beautiful as some, but who looks for beauty in a range? It is quality and price that are looked for, and the Majestic Ranges and Reliable Gasoline Stoves possess both, something never before found.

When not too busy drop in on us and we will tell you the little we know about steel ranges and gasoline stoves.
