IRRIGATION CONGRESS.

Meetings Will Begin on September 1st, at Cheyenne, Wyoming.

THE BASIS OF REPRESENTATION FIXED.

Details of the Congress—Transportation Rates and Accommodations—Distinguished Attendance Expected.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 1.—The people of Cheyenne are joined with the Wyoming people in the work of preparing for the joint meeting of the irrigation congress and the trans-Mississippi congress, which will be held in this city on the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th days of September next. The work of preparing for the congress is being pushed forward with all the energy and enthusiasm of which the people are capable, and it is safe to say that the congress will be the most successful one ever held in the United States. The congress will be called to order by President Francis E. Warren, who will also be the first speaker on the first day. The remainder of the time will be occupied by addresses by men who are prominent in the work of the congress, and who are well known throughout the country. The following are some of the prominent men who will be here: Governor Stanford, of California, who is president of the congress; Senator Carter, of Montana, who is president of the trans-Mississippi congress; Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, who is president of the irrigation congress; Senator Perkins, of California, who is president of the committee on irrigation of the senate; Senator Pettigrew, of South Dakota, who is president of the committee on irrigation of the senate during the last congress; Senator Teller, of Colorado, who is president of the committee on irrigation of the senate during the present congress; Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, who is president of the committee on irrigation of the senate during the next congress; Senator Morgan, of Alabama, who is president of the committee on the Nicaragua canal; Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, who is president of the committee on the Pacific railroads; Senator Cullom, of Illinois, who is president of the committee on rivers and harbors; Senator Hale, of Maine, who is president of the committee on appropriations; Senator Frye, of Maine, who is president of the committee on commerce; Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, who is president of the committee on pensions; Senator Hansbrough, of North Dakota, who is president of the committee on public lands; Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, who is president of the committee on foreign relations; Senator Proctor, of Vermont, who is president of the committee on military affairs; Senator Shoup, of Idaho, who is president of the committee on mines and mining; Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, who is president of the committee on Pacific islands and Porto Rico; Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, who is president of the committee on coinage, weights and measures; Senator Wilson, of Washington, who is president of the committee on agriculture and forestry; Senator Warren, of Wyoming, who is president of the committee on public buildings and grounds; Senator Vest, of Missouri, who is president of the committee on claims; Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, who is president of the committee on finance; Senator Cullom, of Illinois, who is president of the committee on foreign relations; Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, who is president of the committee on judiciary; Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, who is president of the committee on naval affairs