AYER, the today show was billing at Park City. The thermometer marked 30 degrees.

A RUNAWAY on upper Main Street at 2 o'clock this afternoon caused pedestrians on the crossings to seek safety on the sidewalks. Fortunately the animal which was attached to an empty road cart was caught without doing any damage.

The wounded Indian who was "smuggled" from St. Mary's hospital yesterday was found by the police last night and the cutting scrape in which he was the victim was to have been investigated this afternoon, but was continued by consensus till Friday next.

CITY RECORDER STANTON and wife were on a little surprised today on the arrival from New York of Mr. Edward St. Clair Swain and wife. Mr. Swain married "Charley's" sister, and their visit is as pleasant as unexpected. They were viewing some of the people of interest in the city today and will remain as guests of their relatives for a week or more.

New Ogden Daily.

THE Ogden daily Pod is a very neat and newsy contribution to Utah journalism that made its first bow to the public on Tuesday. It is Democratic in politics, respectful in its tone and looks as though it might live in spite of the many premature deaths that have occurred among papers in the Junction City. We wish the Pod success.

Honored in Israel.

Sister Bathsheba W. Smith reached the good age of seventy years on Tuesday. In celebration of the event a number of her intimate friends met in the evening at the residence of her granddaughter, Mrs. George H. Horne, on Second West street. The First Presidency with a number of prominent ladies and gentlemen were present, and congratulations, blessings and prophecies of future good things for her in time and eternity were showered upon her head. Sister Bathsheba is among the noted women of Israel, identified with the Church from its earliest times, and is honored not only as the widow of President George A. Smith, but for her sterling qualities, kindly spirit and unswerving integrity. We say amen to all the good wishes and predictions on the occasion of her birthday.

PIE CRUST PROMISES.

Jack Flone Escapes Punishment Once More.—Police Court News.

An individual named Jack Flone, whose drunken and boisterous demonstrations have given him an excellent acquaintanceship with the police officers, was again taken before Justice Kesler today on a charge of inebriety and disorderly conduct. He frankly confessed his guilt. He always did. He plead hard for mercy. He knows how to do it. He made promises of future good conduct. At that he has few equals. After pleading with him for several minutes the court suspended sentence on a promise that he would leave town forthwith and go to work.

Steve Hicks, the fellow who had room on Main street, was arrested by Sergeant Randolph today on a charge of assault and battery preferred by a boy.

Pat Kahaler was fined $5 for drunkenness.

"TOLD ME TO DO IT."

Young In Years But Old In Experience, "Did It For Money."

About noon today, officer Seighrist attention was attracted to a lad of six years named Daniels, driving a horse, attached to a light vehicle, up the street. He knew the little fellow, and was well aware that he had no right to the outfit, so he hailed the youth and asked for an explanation. At first he gave no reply, but finally the child admitted having taken it from where the owner had left it, with the intention of driving it to some other part of the city, and returning without it, and then propose to discuss its whereabouts for fifty cents.

The officer immediately came to the conclusion that this young aspirant to Hebrew School honors ought to be taken care of, and accordingly escorted him to the police station, where he was held in custody this afternoon awaiting instructions from his parents.

When asked by the reporter why he had taken the outfit, he indifferently replied: "Cause my brother told me to steal it and I wanted some money, that's all."

PIGEON STEALING.

It Has Been Reduced to a Fine Art in the Twenty-first Ward.

There is a resident in the Twenty-first ward who has a great fancy for pigeons, and his coop is one of which many would be proud, containing, as it does, a number of valuable birds. Some of the gamins in the immediate neighborhood appear to know this. Between eight and a dozen of the feathered favorites have lately been missed, and the mind of the owner has been greatly exercised thereby. On Sunday morning several of the stolen pigeons unexpectedly turned up again, and last evening, as the gentleman to whom they belong was walking up South Temple street, he chanced to overhear the conversation of a small band of boys who were exchanging confidences in regard to the "catches" they had recently made. Going up to them, he told them that he knew their game, that their little game of stealing had not for less the remainder of his birds were restored to him by the next day, he should have them arrested. This morning, bright and early, two of the pigeons were brought to the house and there deposited, but those who returned them did not wait long enough to receive the reward. It may be added that the young gentlemen who constitute this form of pigeon "fancies" in the Twenty-first Ward that detective work still at once be inaugurated in the area in which they dwell.

TOOK FRENCH LEAVE.

They Got Tired of School and Ran Away But Were Captured at Ogden.

C. L. and Silas Bradberg aged fifteen and seventeen years respectively, have been attending the Salt Lake Seminary, while their parents live in Wyoming. Some time ago they grew weary of hard studies and close confinement and resolved upon running away. Finally their plans matured and on the 2nd inst. they made their flight.

The police were notified and it was ascertained that the young truants had taken the "dummy" to Bountiful and continued their journey from that point towards Ogden, on foot. Marshal Metcalf was co-incidented with by telephone and given a description of the lads and today he received them in Ogden and Principal C. L. Baxter, of the Salt Lake Seminary was to go in that town on the 5.30 train this afternoon and bring the youthful adventurers back with him.

A MUTILATED BODY

Discovered on the Street Car Track.—It Creates a Sensation.

There was considerable excitement down at the City Hall for a short time today. A policeman came rushing into Captain Donovan's office and exclaimed breathlessly that there was a dead man on the car track in front of the Theatre. "Way," continued the the officer, "one of his legs is cut clean off and his head—well, he ain't got any—Oh, its awful, its awful."

He wanted to ring up Coroner Harris but it was fortunate for him that he didn't. An investigation was made by some of the "blue coats" and it was ascertained in short notice that the "dead man" was only a stuffed dummy, one of the dolls by some practical joker last night. The same hideous thing was there when the Theatre audience departed and created a sensation of no small proportion at that time.

Its Little Brother.

On Commercial street, close to the People's Theatre, is a little alcove near the sidewalk, not more than thirty inches wide, in a lunch stand around which hungry herds of denizens on that thoroughfare satisfy the pangs of hunger at irregular intervals from early morning until late at night. Directly over the entrance to said alcove is the inscription, "The Little Kingdom." The title is a happy and profitable hit to the proprietor who avers that the place is run in opposition to its big brother down the street.

TODAY'S TELEGRAMS.

The Delegate to the Milwaukee Democratic Convention Instructed for Cleveland.

A BUSINESS TRANSACTION AND A MURDER.

General Hawley's Speech to the Connecticut Convention.—Various Political Gatherings.

By Telegraph to the News.

INSTRUCTED FOR CLEVELAND.

Platform of the Democratic Convention at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, May 4.—The following is a synopsis of the platform of the Democratic State convention. The platform endorses the administration of the Harrison administration, denounces the McKinley bill, and declares tariff for revenue only. On the currency question it says: "We maintain that the true interest of the people demand a return to a sound, safe money, composed of base and redeemable in gold and silver coin of equal intrinsic value; we therefore oppose the issue of any paper currency exchange of silver dollars of less commercial value than gold dollars as unconstitutional, dangerous and especially injurious to farmers and laboring classes, who are the first and most defenseless victims of unsafe money and fluctuating currency. We condemn the Republican legislation on this subject, and more particularly the Sherman act of 1890, and the incredible waste of national resources in useless purchase and storage of tens of million per day, and as the manifestation of sound, stable currency, we demand the repeal of that act."

The platform opposes compulsory education and compulsory laws, instructs the delegation to the national convention to vote as a unit for the nomination of Cleveland.

Shot to Death.

GREENVILLE, TEXAS, May 4.—Capitalist J. M. Cook, a prominent citizen, was shot to death by a Mr. Tutwell, a mill and gin owner. A disagreement over a trivial business transaction was the cause.

The Connecticut Convention.

HARTFORD, CONN., May 4.—The Republican convention assembled this morning. The committee on permanent organization recommended the list of officers headed by Hawley as permanent chairman. They were elected.

GENERAL HAWLEY'S SPEECH.

General Hawley began by predicting a hot campaign, greeted the young voters party, reviewed the party history, referring to the war record, and said that in none of those things have we had the cordial co-operation of the Democratic party.

Referring to the possible candidates at Minneapolis, the speaker said: "I am not here to say who will be or should be the nominee of our party for the presidency. I know a warm place in the hearts of many of you is always occupied by James G. Blaine. I know well that all Republicans are enthusiasts by the announcement that he withdraws from the candidacy; since he has the goodes to be loved, let him have the justice to be honored.

"Benjamin Harrison has proved himself one of the ablest statesmen in the line of Presidents. He conducted the treasury when the Secretary was disabled; he became secretary of State when Blaine was compelled to close the portfolio; he is a well qualified candidate for a second term of his cabinet."

General Hawley then paid a tribute to the wisdom of Harrison's appointments from the cabinet down, and the prosperity of the country in the journeys through the country.

The speaker then took up the tariff. Said he: "We are not deceived by the cry protecting home material. Time one at $3 a ton is 90 per cent. labor. It is one man's finished product, as truly as as the exquisite hair spring of a watch is another man's. The wool of sheep is labor, the perfected product of the farmer. If there be any eastern manufacturers who think the enormous and interests of the country will consent to be left without any degree of protection, while upon the finished woolen goods heavy duties are levied, let him undeceive himself after election. Tariff cannot create monopoly in anything which 65,000,000 of people are free to produce."

Referring to money, these were the general's words:

"In our humble judgment, not only as Republicans but as Connecticut men morally, these men do err not only against economic experience, but morally, when they demand of the nation that it shall pay the holder of seventy cents worth of silver ingots or gold spoons, coin that he may push upon his employer or other creditor for a dollar. The government has paid him his extra thirty cents, or 60 per cent profit, and then holds itself bound to make it good, after the sent thirty-cents, to whoever survies the dollar."

Our silver bill at 90 cents does enough when it puts the silver dollar for every marketable dollars worth silver in the market of fifty-four million ounces a year, and which it pledges itself to make every dollar of whatever kind as good as any dollar of any kind, it is believed by the world that saw us make good our paper dollars issued in the army at war. We only not be true prophets in saying that unlimited coinage would bring non-monetable silver into market, premium in gold, derangement of our international commerce and disaster to our financial institutions, and heavily, always, of course, to the poorer people, but we see no necessity for making an experiment so dangerous in face of the belief of the wisest financiers and wheelmen of other lands. If all the civilized nations will join us in a general attempt to restore the relations taken away by the bill, we can carry out of the bargain." The general closed with a strong appeal for coast defenses and a new navy.

Michigan Democrats.

MUSKEGON, MICH., May 4.—The Democratic State convention met at noon. There will likely be more or less struggling over the platform. All agree Cleveland, but there is a section in favor of free silver and this will make an earnest effort to have a free silver plank inserted and adopted. If this element is not represented on the committee on platform, it will contest the matter in open convention. The delegates at large will probably be Don M. Dickinson, E. Uhl, F. Ryan, Spencer O. Fisher. Al Pinchot's the different districts will a caucus to be one delegates to the national convention.

The National Conference.

OMAHA, May 4.—Bishop Warden presided at the morning session of the Methodist conference. Rev. Wyley, New York, conducted the devotional exercises.

Bishop Foster then began the Episcopal address. He was listened to with profound attention.

The Wyoming Trouble.

CHEYENNE, May 4.—Judge Riner granted a temporary injunction restraining the sheriffs of northern Wyoming, especially in Johnson county, from using their shotguns.

Marshall Bartlett, with a large number of deputies, has gone to the scene of trouble.

The Case of the U. P. Against the Rock Island and St. Paul.

ST. LOUIS, May 4.—The case of the Union Pacific against the Rock Island and St. Paul railway was argued in the Federal court of appeals. It involves a contract made by the Union Pacific among the Rock Island and St. Paul for the privilege of running cars across the Missouri river in Omaha, thence over eight miles of the appellant's track in Omaha Omaha, which contract the appellants filed early in the year. The case is under advisement.

Atrocious Methodists.

PITTSBURG, May 4.—The nineteenth general conference of the African Methodist church began this morning, and will continue for three weeks. Important changes will be made in the discipline, and four bishops will be elected.

Plate-rers on Strike.

PITTSBURG, May 4.—The platerers of Pittsburg and Allegheny struck for eight hours' work on Saturday.

Congress.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The House by a vote of yeas 185, nays 19, adopted the conference report on the Geary Chinese bill.

The California Republicans.

STOCKTON, Cal., May 4.—The Republican State convention held another session last night. Reports of committees were received, and a temporary organization made permanent, after which they adjourned until this morning.

Literary Note.

Amid a great diversity of contents, the May number of the Review of Reviews is particularly strong in educational features. It contains a striking sequence of the New York college for the training of teachers, written by its acting president, Professor Walter L. Hervey, accompanied by five portraits. There is also an article on the McDonagh Farm school near Baltimore, by Mr. Charles D. Lanier, a member of the staff of the Review of Reviews and a nephew of the late poet Sidney Lanier. The McDonagh school is a most refreshing instance of a simple and wholesome method in the attempt to reform juvenile delinquents. This article is most interestingly illustrated. The number of the Review also contains a brief sketch of the distinguished geologist, Alexander Winchell, with a fine portrait of him; a portrait and sketch of the late Miss Clough, first principal of Newnham College; portraits of Dr. Cook, President of the National Educational Association, and President Andrews, of Brown University; a fine portrait of Principal Fairbairn, of Mansfield College, Oxford; announcements of various schools and colleges and summer schools, and still other features of timely educational interest.

How to Make a Monster Tea.

Henri Lebenhers published some time ago a report for an egg which is at least interesting. He says: Take a dozen eggs and separate the yolks from the whites. Pour the yolks into a small kettle which has been thoroughly scoured and well washed. Tie the kettle tightly in the shape of a bag, and it will be yolks are quite hard. (Previous experience is not too long.) Peel off the film, or. Put the yolk full into a larger kettle with the raw whites, and it will stick to it of naturally in the center of the whites. Tie up again and boil hard. Peel off the second thickness and serve the egg in a bowl of salad.
