ACTION UNDER NEW POLICE LAW.

Council Committee of the Whole Approves a New Ordinance.

FULL TEXT OF THE BILL.

Measure Provides for Re-creating the Office of Police Captain—Other Amendments.

The City Council, sitting as committee of the whole, met last evening to consider the new fire and police ordinances as submitted by the committee on municipal laws. By consent, the police department ordinance was first taken up and the hour being somewhat late by the time it was finally approved of, consideration of the fire department ordinance was postponed until next Tuesday evening.

Quite a discussion was had on several proposed amendments to the police ordinance, but very little change was made in the bill as submitted by the committee.

Exception was taken by some of the members to recreating the office of police captain. Chief Pratt was present and was given the privilege of speaking on the question. The chief said that the captain would be expected to perform the duties of a duty sergeant and take charge of the department in the chief's absence. Howe offered an amendment setting forth the duties of captain, one of which was that he should take charge of a relief.

The amendment carried. The captain will get $5 more per month than the two duty sergeants.

Robertson wanted the salary of the chief increased from $1,500 to $1,800 per year, but the majority of the members voted against it. Robertson said $1,500 was not enough, and a good chief of police was worth more. It was a responsible position. The chief had no home or home life, and was at the beck and call of people all hours of the day and night.

Diehl moved to raise the salaries of the three desk sergeants from $920 to $960. Carried. The full text of the ordinance, as passed, is as follows:

TEXT OF THE ORDINANCE.

The ordinance as approved is as follows:

An ordinance creating and organizing the police department of Salt Lake City and repealing all conflicting ordinances and resolutions of the City Council.

Section 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of Salt Lake City: That the police department of Salt Lake City shall consist of the following officers, men, employes and agents, each of whom shall receive the monthly compensation as provided by this ordinance, which shall be in full payment for all services rendered by them to the city:

1 head of department or chief of police.

1 assistant head of department, or captain of police.

First duty sergeant.

Second duty sergeant.

2 desk sergeants.

1 jailor.

1 assistant jailor, who shall also be janitor.

Twenty-five policemen, of whom not more than two shall be matrons.

One matron.

Sec. 2. First—The head of department or chief of police shall be ex-officio the jailor and have charge of the city jail. He shall receive and safely keep all prisoners properly committed to his custody. He shall file and preserve every process of commitment and keep a record in a book to be provided for that purpose, of all persons committed to the city jail, showing the date of arrest, offense charged, term of commitment and the prisoner's name, sex and place of birth, but he shall have no duty to perform or interest in the preparation of or in the supplying of the prisoners with food.

Second—The assistant head of the department or captain of police shall perform the duties of the head of department or chief of police in his absence. He shall also take charge of a relief.

Third—In the absence of the head of department or chief of police and the assistant head of department or captain of police, the ranking duty sergeant present shall perform the duties of head of department or chief of police.

Fourth—The mounted police must provide at their own expense their horses, horse equipments and feed for their animals, all of which must be to the satisfaction of the head of department or chief of police.

Sec. 3. The head or chief of the police department, shall by and with the advice and consent of the City Council and approval of the Mayor, appoint all subordinate officers, employes, men or agents in his department, and in like manner fill all vacancies in the same. Any subordinate officer, employe, man or agent may at any time be removed without cause and without charges being preferred and without a trial, hearing, or opportunity to be heard, by the head of department, with the consent of the Council, or by the Mayor with the consent of the City Council, whenever in their opinion the good of the service will be subserved thereby, and the same shall be final and conclusive, and shall not be reversed or called in question by any court. The city recorder shall forthwith notify in writing the removed person of the removal, and it shall not be necessary in stating any cause for such removal, and from the time of such notification the person so removed shall not in any case be entitled to any salary or compensation whatsoever.

Sec. 4. The head or chief of the police department of this city may at any time be removed without cause and without charges being preferred and without a trial, hearing, or opportunity to be heard, by the Mayor, with the consent of the City Council, whenever in their opinion the good of the service will be subserved thereby, and the action of the Mayor and of the City Council in removing the head of the department shall be final and conclusive, and shall not be reviewed or called in question before any court. The city recorder shall forthwith notify in writing the removed head of the department of his removal, and it shall not be necessary in stating any cause for such removal, and from the time of such notification the person so removed shall not in any case be entitled to any salary or compensation whatsoever.

Sec. 5. The head or chief of the department may at any time suspend any subordinate officer, employe, man or agent employed therein who, in his judgment, the good of the service demands it, for a period of time not exceeding fifteen days, and during the time of such suspension the person or persons so suspended shall not be entitled to any salary or compensation whatsoever. Whenever the head or chief of the department shall suspend any subordinate officer, policeman or member of the department, he shall report the same immediately to the City Council.

Sec. 6. The head of department or chief of police shall make and adopt such reasonable rules and regulations for the government of the department and the uniforms of the officers, men and employes therewith connected as may be approved by the City Council.

Sec. 7. The head of the department or chief of police, with the advice and consent of the City Council and approval of the Mayor, may at any time appoint special police to serve without pay from the city.

Sec. 8. The salaries and compensation of the officers, employes and agents of the police department shall be as follows:

	Per year.
Head of department or chief of police, who shall also be ex-officio jailor	$1,500.00
Assistant head of department or captain of police	1,000.00
Duty sergeants, each	1,000.00
Desk sergeants, each	960.00
Policemen, each	900.00
Mounted police, each	1,020.00
Assistant jailor	900.00
Matron	240.00

Sec. 9. All ordinances and parts of ordinances and resolutions and parts of resolutions of the City Council in conflict herewith are hereby repealed, and this ordinance shall take effect upon its approval.

KAISER WILHELM'S CAIQUES

Yacht Hohenzollern Will Carry Historical Craft Presented by Sultan.

New York Tribune.

Among the many tokens of friendship that the sultan has sent to the Emperor of Germany as memento of his visit to the Dosporus are two native built caiques. These were included among the presents at a late hour, and were not thought of until the emperor, as a student of fine yacht modeling, expressed his admiration of the graceful craft. The kaiser is delighted with the two, which have now arrived in Germany. The oars of these are heavy and long, but they are made to balance on the gunwale by a curious arrangement. The inboard end of the oar between the thole pin and the handle is enlarged and in shape is like an elongated ostrich egg. This extra weight of wood inboard tends to balance the outboard part of the heavy oar, and thus takes much strain off the rower's arms. Even with this contrivance the use of two such oars at once needs considerable physical strength, and some of the professionals who take passengers across the Golden Horn, between Pera and Galata, and across the Bosporus to Scutari, are of herculean build. The oars have no rowlocks, and are merely attached to a single thole pin by a small leathern noose, as in all the Mediterranean parts except Venice, where the gondolier works his oars against an upright post that has four or five different notches to receive the oar in making different strokes.

The kaiser's caiques are built on the same pattern, coming up out of the water at both ends, somewhat like the craft that was adapted to home uses after Venice became the Type of the middle ages. The shape of the caique is not only the most ancient that is known, but also the most modern and the fastest. When they have a good deal of sheer, the shallow canoe-like hulls of the fastest modern racers are practically a reproduction of the caique, only with the fixed keel added for ballast. Some students who have studied the migration of race through Mesopotamia and Asia Minor ingeniously have conjectured that cuneus and kiak might be the same word and have stood for the same shaped boat. These identifications of Greek and Turk which connect the craft of the Euxine with that of the Bosporus have brought the suggestion that the original adaptation of the boat in quite remote ages was carried from among those Levant traders who in almost prehistoric times brought Baltic tin from the Scilly Islands and amber ornaments from the Baltic.

Now the water of the Black Sea and Aegean contain with tenacity and adhesion in the face of the most civilizations of Asia Minor is suggested by the fact that the unimportant Greek colony of Trebizond was almost but not quite able to provide boats for 10,000 men when Xenophon retreated from Cunaxa. The caique not at the time of a healthy wind in a day's sail of the Bosphorus. Like the "nuckleaver" from the Straits of Mackinaw, and other boats that take their name from the water in which they are built, the caique got its name from the River Caicus, called Kaikos in the Greek, a river of Mysia emptying into the Aegean opposite Lesbos. Here a citadel city, Pergamos, centered immense wealth and commerce, where Xenophon lived as a guest in ov B. C. 399.

The emperor has, therefore, revived a historic boat, a boat which is second "antique," and still represented in the modern Turkish as "caic" or "kaik," the word is found in later centuries in the Italian "caicco," meaning a little vessel. Commerce took the same word to France, where it was spelled "caique," which became Anglicized into the chubby cutter admired a similar boat and called it a "kaik," a rig that is now like a yawl with a large mizzen, and which was used by the Vigilant, and both Valkyries in their ocean trips. The emperor intends to have at least one of these caiques swung in the davits of his huge yacht, the Hohenzollern. Members of the crew will be taught to use the Turkish oars, so that this most graceful and small boats may be used as a dingy when the kaiser takes a fancy to go ashore in it.

FOR RELIEF OF PRISONERS.

Board of Pardons Authorized to Reduce Sentences of Prisoners.

LIBERAL AND HUMANE LAW

To Encourage Good Behavior and Aid in the Reformation of Criminals Sentenced for Crime.

The following law, known as House bill No. 67, by Mr. C. W. Sorenson, was passed by the Legislature and has been signed by the Governor. It is entitled "An act authorizing the board of pardons to reduce sentences of state prisoners for good behavior, forfeiture of such reduction, and parole of prisoners," and reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Utah:

Section 1. The board of pardons are hereby authorized to extend to each convict sentenced for any period less than life who shall not have been guilty of a breach of the rules of discipline of the prison, a reduction of the period of sentence as hereinafter provided; and when the full term of imprisonment for which such convict shall have been sentenced shall be diminished by his good conduct under the provisions of this act so that his term of imprisonment has thereby expired, the warden shall immediately furnish the board of pardons a certificate stating the length of time his term of imprisonment has been so diminished, and no objections appearing to the board, the convict shall be released.

Sec. 2. The hereinafter specified deductions shall be allowed to convicts for good conduct: From a term of sentence of three months, fifteen days; from a term of six months, thirty days; from a term of one year, by a calendar months, two days; a one-year convict shall be entitled to a discharge at the expiration of ten months.

If the term be for any time greater than one year the service for the first year or portion thereof shall be as set forth in the expression of ten months, which shall stand for a service of one year; to the second year the convict shall be entitled to a deduction of three calendar months; thus, a service of one year and seven months shall be sufficient for a term of two years.

The service of a third year, or fraction thereof, shall begin at the expiration of one year and seven months; four calendar months shall be allowed on said third year; thus, a service of two years and three months shall be sufficient for a term of three years. For a term of four years, the service of the fourth, or portion thereof, shall begin at the expiration of two years and three months, and on the fourth year five months shall be allowed; thus, a service of two years and six months shall be sufficient for a term of four years. In a term of five years the service of the fifth year, or portion thereof, shall begin at the expiration of two years and ten months, and from the fifth year there shall be a deduction of six calendar months; thus, a service of three years and four months shall be sufficient for a term of five years. For all time in excess of five years there shall be a deduction of one-half of such time.

Sec. 3. In all terms of sentence terminating between those hereinbefore specified, the deduction shall be proportionate.

Sec. 4. For a violation of the rules the convict shall be liable to forfeit all his deduction time for the month in which the infraction occurs. If the offense or offenses be aggravated or frequent, the warden or other officer in charge shall have power to punish the offender by depriving him of all or any portion of his deduction time earned previous to the commission of such offense or offenses; provided, that any convict who may feel himself aggrieved by the action of the warden or other officer in charge, shall have the right to appeal, in writing, to the board of pardons, which writing shall include a statement of facts and the evidence and reasons for the complaint for considering himself unjustly dealt with. Should the board, upon investigation, deem the complaint of the convict well grounded, it shall credit back to such convict the earned deduction—time of which he shall have been deprived.

Sec. 5. When it shall appear to the board that any person sentenced to the State prison as a habitual criminal has in may issue to him a parole, which he at liberty during the remained of his term of sentence, upon such conditions as it deems best; and it may revoke such permit at any time previous to its expiration. The violation by the holder of a permit, granted as aforesaid, of any of the conditions of the permit, or of any conditions thereof, or his violation of any of the laws of the State, shall of itself make void the permit.

Sec. 6. The board shall have power to establish rules and regulations, under which any prisoner, who is now or may hereafter be imprisoned under a sentence other than for murder in the first or second degree, and who may have served a minimum term prescribed by law for the crime for which he should have been convicted (and who shall not have been previously convicted of felony and served a term in the state prison) and who may hereafter be imprisoned under a sentence for murder in the first or second degree and who may have served hereafter shall have served under said sentence twenty-five full years, may be allowed to go upon parole outside of the prison buildings and their enclosures, but to remain, while on parole, in the legal custody and under the control of the board, and subject at any time to be taken back within the institution.

Sec. 7. Full power to enforce such rules and regulations, and to retake and reimprison any convict so upon parole is hereby conferred upon the board, whose written order, certified by its secretary, shall be a sufficient warrant for all officers named therein to return to actual custody and such confidentially released and paroled prisoner. It is hereby made the duty of every officer to execute such order the same as ordinary process of law is executed. Three members of the board shall be necessary for the parole of a prisoner or herein provided; provided, however, that no prisoner sentenced to a State prison shall be considered eligible for parole, and no application for parole shall be considered by the board, until such prisoner be sentenced to the warden of such commission by the warden. In no case shall a prisoner be released on parole unless there be in the judgment of the board, reasonable ground to believe that he will, if released, live and remain at liberty without violating the law, and that his release is not incompatible with the welfare of society, and such judgment shall be based upon the record and character of the prisoner established in prison.

Sec. 8. No petition or other form of application for the release of any prisoner shall be entertained by the board, and no attorneys or outside persons of any kind shall be allowed to appear before the board as applicants for the parole of the prisoner, but these requirements shall not prevent the board from making such inquiries as it may deem desirable in regard to the previous history or environments of the prisoner, or as to his probable surroundings if paroled. Such inquiries shall be instituted by the prison board itself, and all information thus received shall be considered and treated as confidential.

Sec. 9. All laws or parts of laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.
