ENTICED FROM HOME.

Mary Jane Haag, a Parsons Reform School Inmate, Escapes from Home.

SAID TO HAVE RUN OFF WITH A MAN.

No Trace of the Couple Has Been Found Yet They Were Equipped for a Journey.

A young woman known by the name of Mary Jane Thorson, but whose real name is Haag and who for the past three years has been an inmate of the Reform school at Ogden, leaving home one night last week in company with a man, or an accomplice, escaped last night from the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Fisher, at 464 west Sixth South, while on parole.

The missing girl is the daughter of Mrs. Fisher's deceased sister, the latter also being dead.

Mrs. Fisher is feeling sorry for the girl and claiming that she could keep her without the restraint of the school, went to Ogden and brought her to their home since the works began.

Since then she has been at their home and proved to be untroubled and happy. Last night Mrs. Fisher and her husband went to a week day prayer meeting, leaving the girl in the house alone. They were only gone a short time, as was their custom, for when they returned they found the door open and the girl gone. Mr. Fisher went to the police station shortly afterward, and informed the chief of the couple, but as yet no trace has been found.

This morning some neighbors informed Mrs. Fisher that they had seen a man and a woman come out of the house and go east on Sixth south. The man was carrying a valise, and they supposed the two were Mr. and Mrs. Fisher going to the depot. Mrs. Fisher then found that her own valise had been taken thence without the one missing carpet for girl's clothing. "How Mary could have got acquainted with a man" said Mrs. Fisher this afternoon, "I cannot make out, as she has not been out of the house while here without myself or her aunt to be by with her."

It seems now pretty certain that the girl, who is seventeen years of age, and rather good looking, has been enticed away. Who the man is the case is not yet been learned.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

Miss Ethelyn Webber and Mr. George L. Nye Married Last Evening.

The residence of Col. T. G. and Mrs. Webber was a scene of loveliness and animation last evening, the occasion being the wedding of their youngest daughter, Ethelyn, to George L. Nye, a well known young lawyer of this city. The young couple were married under a canopy of smilax and ferns in the large parlor window by Rev. Clarence Y. Brown. The nuptial knot was tied through an aisle of white satin to the accompaniment of the wedding march played by Weber's orchestra. Throughout the ceremony the orchestra also played very softly the "Immortal." The bride wore a gown of ivory Duchesse satin with skirt trimmed with ruffles, and waist with bertha of lace. The gown was made with high neck and train, the train was also trimmed with a spray of orange blossoms, and she carried bride roses and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaids wore gowns of different colors, and carried flowers to match. Miss Georgie Webber, as maid of honor, Miss Alice Young, Miss Kinsey of Ogden in pink, Miss Katherine Lowe and Miss Margaret Park in pink. The best man was Mr. S. A. Lowe of Lincoln, and the ushers, Messrs. Shirley Webber, Grant Hampton, Cassius Brooks Jr., Alden Kimball. The bride was given away by her father.

After the ceremony, those present crowded around the happy pair to offer best wishes, and in half an hour the guests commenced to arrive for the reception, which was a very large affair, as well as a brilliant social event. The rooms were elaborately decorated with flowers, in the parlor, which is to be the bridal decorations of yellow chrysanthemums and the green among the plants were covered by the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Webber, Mrs. C. F. Middleton, Mr. and Mrs. Frankes, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Lowe.

The bride and groom left on the round Lincoln this morning for Chicago and a visit to the groom's old home in Iowa. They will return in two weeks, and will reside on Third South street near Second East. The "News" warmly congratulates the happy pair, and joins with their numerous friends in wishing them any happiness and prosperity.

AMUSEMENTS.

Tomorrow evening the management of the Salt Lake Theater will present Julius Cahn's company in Sydney Grundy's strong play, Sowing the Wind. It is a play of genuine human interest which gave it a hold on popular favor that is lasting. Beginning of month London on social Politics and Politics, it will interest all classes. Performances will be given also on Saturday afternoon and evening.

The railroad scene in The Heart of Chicago, which will begin at Bohn's Theater engagement at the Grand this night, is advertised, modestly, as one of the most complete effects at realism ever put on the stage, the engine is said to be exactly the same as the locomotive used on the railroad for the scenes. It grows from almost an imperceptible speck on the horizon to an almost full-sized engine which it reaches the footlights. A portion of the effect is gained by a cleverly constructed illusion. It is impossible to tell where the illusion ends and the engine, as fully shown to the audience, begins.

It appears as though Mr. Dorothy Lelp will secure a flattering reception at the Congregational church tomorrow evening, when he gives what is called an evening of Scotch song and story. The name reminds of genius that has followed his appearance in other cities beyond the Rockies in a good audience here.

WAS KILLED BY A WIRE

A Western Union Telegraph Co. Lineman Instantly Killed This Morning.

HE RECEIVED SHOCK OF 10,000 VOLTS

George Sibbett is the Unfortunate Man's Name—Deplorable Indifference as to His Death.

About half past ten this morning, while Western Union linemen were engaged in stringing wires on poles in the construction of a new telegraph line from this place to Park City, one of the men, George Sibbett, was instantly killed. It seems he had stepped off the platform on which he had been standing and his wire came in contact with a line that was live. The current passed from his right hand through his system with a force of 10,000 volts and he dropped dead. His companions escaped, only his glove being scorched. The dead man had a wife and six children living in this city, residing at 1027 Jefferson street, on the right point, where the mortality occurred.

The companions, whose name could not be learned, called the attention of the Pacific Express company people, whose office is in the immediate vicinity, of the occurrence, and they immediately sent for help. The body of the deceased, however, was allowed to remain in the neighborhood for fifty minutes and still was no effort to undertake the rescue of Joseph E. Taylor and Will Jones, who were officers of the Western Union. Telegraph company visited the scene to know anything about the accident further than that some man was killed and this was all the information company or the company would vouchsafe. The deceased appears to be about 40 years of age and was possessed of a strong robust constitution.

As fast as the soldiers took a town the postal commission would go in and establish postal facilities. Major Stewart also said that everything was progressing speedily, Porto Ricans taking to American institutions kindly and adapting themselves to conditions in this country readily. The only thing unfavorable was the climate. The members of the commission will leave immediately for Washington.

THIRTY THOUSAND SOLDIERS.

Pass in Review at the Quaker City Peace Jubilee.

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—There was unprecedented labor for the dockyard men in the national quarantine of Philadelphia, which had been established for yesterday. The rain storm which started early yesterday, continued until nearly midnight, when the wind shifted to the west and quickly blew the clouds out to sea. Today opened with bright sunshine and with every possible favorable opportunity for the assembled crowds to witness the great military parade which was the program for the day in the week's peace jubilee.

From 25,000 to 30,000 soldiers had reached the city to participate in the grand pageant and all were promptly at the assigned points of assembling to take their places in the great procession. The President and Vice President of the United States with the members of the President's cabinet, the diplomatic corps and navy officers and hundreds of thousands of residents of Dos city and other localities honored the occasion with their presence and almost the entire population of the city cheered the soldiers as they moved over the line of march. President McKinley graced the grandstand in front of the south Fourth East street of heart troubles. His death was sudden and unexpected.

Mrs. Esther Yeadon, aged 71 years, an aunt of M. H., J. R. and David F. Walker, died about a week last night in her room in the Walker building. The remains were taken to Evans & Early's undertaking establishment, and the funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Hines vs Hines.

The suit for separate maintenance brought by Mrs. Kitty A. Hines against her husband, Charles W. Hines, was commenced yesterday before Judge Dusenberry. Mrs. Hines is represented by Messrs. Bartch and Charles De Mont, and defendant's interests are being looked after by R. R. Thurman and E. E. Corfman. Plaintiff asks for the use of homestead property, which is located in Provo for herself and her minor children, of whom she asks custody, and $150 a month for the support of herself and children. The complaint recites which this is asked is credits and failure to provide, she alleges that defendant is worth $50,000.

Defendant denies the charges of cruelty and failure to provide, and in a cross-complaint asks for a decree of divorce on the grounds of cruelty, which he charges consists of filing a divorce suit against him in February, 1896, in which she charged him with specific acts of cruelty, which were published to the world, and also that at one time when he was sick she refused to care for him. He claims to be worth about $5,000.

Mrs. Hines was on the stand nearly all day, and testified to threats to kill her, made by defendant on various occasions. He had drawn a knife on her several times, and the children had interfered, and on one occasion had gone to the neighbors for assistance. Witnesses had proved threatening words used by defendants to plaintiff, and to the children, was also testified to, and threats that he would make her get a divorce. Since she left the home she has heard that when he became angry he would take his meals away from home and would not furnish her any supplies for the house. She testified that defendant was a drunkard and sip drinker, and would drink about a pint of liquor during the night, and would also drink in the daytime when plaintiff was with him.

The divorce suit above mentioned had been withdrawn at defendant's request, and she had returned to him and he had been good to the family for about two months after.

On cross-examination Mrs. Hines was asked as to whether she had been furnished with a number of items which Mr. Hines had charged to her on his books, and she admitted that she had some of the items, and denied having received others. And several charges, such as hay, shoeing horses and Mr. Hines's clothes, she objected to as being charged with as household supplies.

Several other witnesses were examined and corroborative the testimony of Mrs. Hines in regard to threats against her life.

In the case of Allan O. Campbell vs Philip H. Morse et al. after the evidence was all in, further consideration of the case was continued until ten days hence, when arguments will be heard after Judge Dusenberry returns from holding court at Vernal. It will be in Salt Lake in the interim.
