FRAGMENTS.

THE members of the Union Glee Club are requested to assemble at the usual place of meeting, on Friday, at 8:30 p. m. C. J. Thomas, committee.

Rails on the Salmon road have now been laid to within five miles of the lake. It is expected that the track to the beach will be completed by the close of the month.

THE sale of seats for the Robert Orpen company performances at the Theatre commenced today, and visitors were in great demand. "The Chimes of Normandy" goes tomorrow, (Friday) night; "Pinafore" Saturday matinee and "Olivette" on Saturday evening.

A PARTY of excursionists consisting of the following persons left for such points over the Union Pacific today: John Sears, Mrs. J. Washington Young, Mrs. M. A. Sears, Willie Sears, Nellie Cawston, Mrs. Selena Clawson, Mrs. E. Y. Davis, W. G. Hampton, Mrs. W. G. Hampton and Miss Allie Davis.

MRS. DR. PECKHAM, Miss Jennie Hawley, George Pryce, Willard Squires and Hans Gunther have volunteered to sing at the Pioneer club concert, Friday, Aug. 12, at Garfield Beach. Professor Kroeger has kindly consented to accompany the soloists and direct the programme. The concert will begin at 8 o'clock and last one hour, when the floor will be turned over to the dancers. The fireworks and the eruption of Vesuvius will take place after the concert.

CHARLIE TOBLER, colored waiter at the Knutsford, called at the Police station shortly before noon today, and swore to a complaint charging Emma Johnson, a somewhat notorious shapely, with assault with intent to kill. Tobler said he had a friend a few days ago that the dusky maiden was not a decent woman. Miss Johnson was afterwards informed of Tobler's statement and went to him. Last evening he observed the summons and he declares that she set upon him with a knife and policeman's club. His head was badly cut, bruised and swollen, and was covered in some bathing and fresh bandages. An officer was sent in search of the woman.

SALOONKEEPERS ARRESTED.

A Warrant Issued For the Arrest of Ed. Kelley.—Laggett Fined. —Other Cases.

William Merbitt and Joseph Carney, proprietors of the "B. B." saloon are registered at police headquarters as having violated the law prohibiting the sale of liquor on Sunday. They will probably be tried late this afternoon or tomorrow.

The case of G. C. Ryer charged with destroying property was dismissed. Ryer subsequently swore out a complaint charging Ed. Kelley with using abusive language. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

William Westcott charged with assault and battery will be arraigned this afternoon.

George Harbin, Henry Mack and Joseph Howard a trio of alleged trespassers are escaping the rays of the glaring hot sun by fighting fleas in the "drunk" room of the city jail.

James Robinson, a decrepit but troublesome person with belligerent tendencies, is boarding at the city's expense pending arraignment for disturbing the peace.

R. W. Laggett, convicted yesterday of obtaining goods under false pretences, was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 and $12.50 costs.

Harry Brown, Charles Ford, John Doe and William Wallace, each came before the court for drunkenness. All plead guilty and all were discharged and thanked the court for his leniency towards them.

KNIGHTS OF THE ESSENIC ORDER.

Earl D. Gray, the Knutsford Druggist, Discharged.

Immediately on the resumption of the Essenic order case before Commissioner Pratt this morning, Attorney McDowell renewed his motion for the discharge of Earl D. Gray.

Mr. John M. Zane, in opening his argument on the part of the prosecution, stated that he would refer to the motion other no. He then proceeded to prese.. an analysis of the complaint and the evidence so far produced. He referred to Judge Blodgett's rulings in the famous "Fund W." case in Chicago, given a few years ago. The mails in that case were used in a similar manner to what they were in the present case. It was not necessary to show that the defendants actually deposited the matter in the postoffice. It was sufficient to prove that they were beneficiaries of the fraud perpetrated by the parties in question.

Mr. Zane next referred to the motion for Gray's discharge. He said that through all the documents in the case show that Earl D. Gray was a partner in the insurance scheme, yet the evidence clearly established the fact that Gray was the tool of Weatherby and others. Hence he was in favor of Gray not being held to the grand jury.

Mr. Zane then took up the charge against Weatherby, and in reviewing the evidence presented claimed that he was the head and front of the scheme. He novel scheme, unique work of this kind for many years in various parts of the country, in Missouri, in California, in Oregon, and finally in Utah. He made himself Supreme Grand Sinophant of the order in Salt Lake, and, as the evidence showed, attended all the sacrifices, and collected all the offerings.

Mr. Zane spoke for over two hours, dwelling on the constitution, by-laws and articles of incorporation of the Essenic order, and its insurance scheme, giving a clear exposition of its alleged fraudulent features. At 12:30 p. m. recess was taken until 2 o'clock, when arguments for the defense were to be made.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Essenic Order case was resumed at 2 p. m. Mr. Morse, for the defendant, followed Mr. Zane. He claim is that there is nothing fraudulent in the order; that it is simply in hard luck. All schemes which fail are not fraudulent. Mr. Morse was speaking as the News went to press.

STRANGE REVELATIONS.

Hearing of the Charge Against Detective Carson and Peter Bannon.

THE DEFENDANTS' TESTIMONY TODAY.

Dan O'Connell's Name Figures Prominently.—The Accused Held to Await The Grand Jury's Action.

Subsequent to the proceedings in Commissioner Greenman's court yesterday afternoon, in relation to the remarkable charge of conspiracy against Detective Dan B. Carson and Peter Bannon, and reported in Wednesday's News,

Mrs. Carson, wife of the defendant Carson, was called. She said she had been married four years, went to the postoffice at Richfield and received a letter for herself and one for Bannon; opened both letters and read them; knew her husband's handwriting; the original letter was sent to Bannon through the postoffice by Commissioner Phillips; Carson sent Bannon from Salt Lake to take care of the garden; came to her house on June 17; roomed there; she objected to Carson employing him; he had attempted to take liberties with her; came to her room while she was in bed; made indecent proposals to her; she threatened to write to Carson, and after this Bannon behaved himself; didn't write to her husband because she thought he would blow Bannon's brains out. She had some trouble with her husband last December, at which time a separation was spoken of. She had asked Bannon if he had received other letters, and he told her he had, but not as bad as the last, which one, he said, "would make the devil blush." She had Bannon arrested, but agreed not to prosecute if he would confess, which he did. She denied going to Bannon's room, dressed only in her night clothing, but said she passed through his room in going to the kitchen; she had a large shawl wrapped about her at the time, but was only dressed in her night garments. Bannon had kissed her, she said, but she never kissed him. She had never made complaint to Carson of Bannon's conduct.

United States Commissioner Phillips identified a copy of the letter and said Bannon had owned it was a true copy of the original; the oath was taken before him; had mailed the original letter to Bannon; there were four persons present when Bannon swore to the truth of his statement; heard no threats made to Bannon.

William H. Rix arrested Bannon; found no letters when he searched him.

Deputy Marshal Clawson said he told Bannon he would do all right if he told the truth; if he did not so he was likely to be sent up. This was after Bannon had confessed.

This closed the case for the prosecution, and Attorney Stump, on behalf of the defendants, moved that they be discharged.

This application was overruled by the court, and an adjournment was taken till today.

THIS MORNING'S PROCEEDINGS.

When the investigation was resumed at ten o'clock this morning,

Mrs. Carson was recalled, and in cross-examination by Attorney Stump said that the defendant Bannon kissed her probably a dozen times, and also got his arm around her about as often. She told him to have a care himself, she had nothing more that she could tell.

The defendant Carson was then called by Mr. Stump and was shown a letter written to him by his wife on July 25th, which he identified. It was then offered in evidence. The answer to this letter, which was written on the 26th, was also identified and offered in evidence, subject to the objection of prosecution.

Proceeding, he said he was a police officer of this city, having been appointed in March last. He was formerly a conductor on the D. & R. G. railroad. Himself and his wife had no domestic trouble, but in December last, in the course of a conversation, something was said between them to the effect that if married people could not agree, and were not suitable for each other, they should separate. His wife had never had any jealousy, to his complaint of his accompanying a woman named Charpale to Butte, but he was once officially engaged in a divorce case in which that person figured. His wife had displayed feelings of jealousy toward him, but there was no cause for it. He had become acquainted with the defendant Bannon in January 1891, at Thistle Junction, where they were both working. Witness came to this city in December, 1891, and next met Bannon in May last. Bannon was owing him money at the time, and he he wanted employment. Witness offered him a job to work in his garden at Richfield. He wrote to his wife, who approved of Bannon going there, and said he would be all right. All her letters to witness were quite friendly after Bannon went to Richfield. Witness had been trying to get a furnished house in this city for his wife to come to, as soon as he could make arrangements. He wrote about four letters to Bannon while the latter was at Richfield, and they were purely integral to the work he had to do, "the weather," and such like. In none of the letters which passed between himself and Bannon was anything said dishonorable to his wife.

Mr. Stump—You are charged in the complaint with conspiring with Bannon for him to have carnal knowledge of your wife. I will ask you if that subject matter was at any time, in conversation or by letter, mentioned by you to him?

Defendant—No, sir, at no time; I had no cause to it at all.

Examination continued—He would swear that he did not write the letter offered in evidence against him. He first heard of this "Pronto" in July 29th, when he was arrested, and thought it was merely a joke.

To Attorney Richards Carson said he and Bannon, after they became acquainted, associated together, and they "boozed" a good deal for him. Bannon owed him about $4 when they met in Salt Lake. Bannon said he was not feeling very well and the witness offered him the job to go and work for him at Richfield. There was no fixed compensation. He was to work in the garden and do chores generally. Witness did not force or driven Bannon much more than his board for his services there.

Q.—Did you think him a proper person to be placed in your family?

A.—I had every reason in the world to think so, or I would not have sent him there.

Q.—You had not been to see your wife since March last?

A.—No, I had not; I could not afford to go very often. It cost me much money.

Q.—Had it been arranged, however, to go there before Christmas, and in June or July I wrote that I might be there in August.

Cross-examination continued—He sent no money to Bannon while he was at Richfield, but did to his wife, so that she might get "Pete" a couple of dollars if she liked.

Q.—Did your wife write and ask you to send for Bannon—for him to leave the house?

A.—Yes, and I said I would do so.

Witness was shown an envelope addressed by Bannon, and said he believed it was his handwriting. He was then shown a letter addressed to his wife, but did not think for a moment they were written by his wife's sister.

Q.—Did you ask on one occasion write and ask your wife how Bannon was behaving himself?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you suspect that he was misbehaving himself?

A.—No.

Q.—Then what did you mean?

A.—I didn't mean anything. I only wanted, naitively enough, to know how he was conducting himself there.

To Mr. Stump—By the question he asked his wife he meant, was Bannon doing his work around the place satisfactorily; that was all. He had had no quarrel himself with his wife's sister, Mrs. Hansen, but she and his wife had had disagreements and he had reason for believing that she had urged his wife to be unkind between husband and wife.

Commissioner Greenman ruled that this line of examination was not pertinent. They did not want to ventilate any scandal in a case of this charge.

Mr. Richards—Did you ever consult an attorney with a view of securing a divorce from your wife?

Witness—Never.

Jas. O'Brien and W. N. McCurdy testified to the effect that Carson was looking around the city, about a month or six weeks ago, for a house in order, as he stated, to bring his wife here.

Capt. Dennison said, that about three weeks or a month ago he heard defendant talking about getting a house and say that he wished that his wife was here.

Peter Bannon, one of the defendants—a good looking young fellow about twenty-four years of age—then took the witness stand. He said he went to Richfield, by arrangement with Carson, on June 17th last. He was to work around the house, and for meals there until he felt in better health. Witness denied most emphatically that there was any truth in the subject of the charge preferred against Carson and himself.

Mr. Stump—Was there at any time any agreement, or even suggestion, before you and Carson as to your relations with his wife?

A.—Never; the only arrangement was as to the work I should do about the house and garden. He got letters from Dan O'Connell, he said, while at Richfield, as well as from Carson. The former wrote him respecting "a change."

Q.—Did you and Mrs. Carson used to talk about this woman?

The Commissioner ruled this out.

Mr. Richards—I want to see Dan O'Connell, and I think the United States wants to see him too.

Witness further said that O'Connell's letters were written from Salt Lake. They were disgusting and he burned them. O'Connell wanted to send the woman referred to in his letter to Richfield "to see her folks," as he said he wished to get rid of her. Mrs. Carson once told him that she wanted to get Carson "behind the bars" so that she could keep her little boy.

Mr. Stump—Mrs. Carson stated yesterday that you took undue liberties with her.

A.—I don't believe I ever have. Mrs. Carson, he added, had come into his bedroom and chilled, but "he took no notice." Said nothing wrong ever passed between them.

Mr. Richards cross-examined the witness, who said he did not know the woman referred to in the letter to Richfield "to see her folks," as he said he wished to get rid of her because she "wanted to get Carson behind the bars."

The following certificate was shown to the witness: "This is to certify that this is a true and correct copy of a letter received by me from Dan Carson, where I was Postmaster at Richfield." Tale referred to the horribly disgusting letter which Carson, it was alleged by the prosecution, wrote to Bannon. Indignantly denied that he was in regard to the proposed seduction of Carson's wife. It was signed by the defendant Bannon in the presence of Commissioner Phillips, at Salina, on the 27th of July.

Bannon now swore, when shown the certificate, that he did not know the contents of the letter he had signed it, and claimed that the letter was written by O'Connell and came from Salina.

Deputy marshal Clawson and United States Commissioner Phillips, however, testified that Bannon told them, before signing the letter and swearing to the certificate, that he had received the letter from Carson, and that O'Connell's name was not mentioned at all.

The arguments of counsel followed, and at their conclusion the commissioner said in substance—There is no need of my commenting much on this case. It has been well constituted by counsel, and from the evidence adduced I should be derelict in my duty if I failed to hold these defendants to go to the grand jury. This letter appears to have been written by the one defendant to the other, and it also shows there must have been some previous arrangement between the parties. Bannon's testimony about O'Connell and the woman I consider a myth, and I think he might to have posted himself a little better concerning the parties in question before testifying, as it was of vital importance to himself, if O'Connell was in existence, and could have been secured, to have had him present here. These defendants should have kept track of him and produced him if his appearance here would have kept them out of jail or the penitentiary. There is probable cause for supposing that the offense charged has been committed, and I consider it my duty to hold the defendants over to the grand jury in the sum of $500 each.

Mr. Stump asked that the bond be fixed, and that the Commissioner would not hear of it. He (Bannon) remarked that the alleged offense was one of the most heinous and outrageous that had ever come before his notice.

It looks as though the defendants would languish in the penitentiary until their case is reached by the Third District court.

The Indian Attendants on the Queen.

The Indian attendants who now increase the queen are a source of great trouble to the court officials who have charge of the various arrangements. The Indians, who are fitted by Government in a separate house, and their needs and all refreshments send to several in them in the room at the stopping stations instead of their going to the buffets with the rest and the European servants.

Special arrangements have also to be made for the Indians at the hotels, which cause much bother and considerable extra expense. For they have positively no duties and are perfectly useless except for show.—London Tit-Bits.

Taking Off a Horse Collar.

It is not always amusing persons who fail to understand the ways of Yankeedom and Workworth took a drive with a friend. After great difficulty the horse was harnessed, except Guy could not get the collar off. One of them said it was a "downright impossibility" and that the horse's head must be cut before the collar was put on. "La, mister," said a girl, "turn the collar upside down."—Housekeeper.

They Beat the Record.

The Rio Grande Western train, which left Salt Lake Sunday morning at 9:00 a.m. arrived at Denver at 7:30 a.m. Monday morning, thus making the run between Salt Lake and Denver in 22 hours and 30 minutes, surpassing all previous records of any regular train between these two cities.

The Rio Grande Western people claim they can make this time with ease, comfort and safety, and were it any advantage to put passengers into Denver at an earlier hour, they could arrange their schedule to do so. Their people are anxious that the ties between Utah and the Colorado metropolis should be encouraged by all classes of travelers.
