THE SEMI-WEEKLY NEWS

The Great Country Paper of the West.

Issued Mondays and Thursdays and Contains All the Cream of the Daily and Saturday News.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Gas Remains In Transit—The Utah Gas & Coke company has now nearly 40,000 feet of mains in transit from the east, to be laid this winter.

New Office Building—F. S. Lawson has the contract to build the $12,000 office building to be erected on Second South street, between Fourth and Fifth West.

Talked on "Turbine Practise"—A. A. Rogers lectured last evening at the state university on "Modern Turbine Practise," before the Utah Society of Engineers.

Will Erect Warehouse—The Zang Brewing company of Denver will begin this month the erection of its proposed warehouse and bottling plant on the west side, to cost $50,000.

High School Dance—There was a large attendance last night at the High school sophomore dance. The decorations were in class colors, and the walls were covered with blue and white pennants.

Shettler Bank Dividend—Referee in Bankruptcy C. B. Bickely, paid out yesterday, nearly $23,000 from the assets of the late B. H. Schettler to the latter's creditors. This dividend will bring up the total distribution or dividends since the failure up to 42½ per cent.

First Visit to Fort—Mrs. Leo V. Merl, granddaughter of the late Gen. P. E. Connor, and a resident of San Francisco, is in the city, and visited yesterday, for the first time, Fort Douglas, which was founded in 1862 by her grandfather. Mrs. Merl's father is foreman of the San Francisco grand jury that has made things so interesting for the local grafting syndicate.

To Intercede With Faculty—R. W. Young and Earl Havenor have been appointed by the executive board of the student body of the state university, to ask the faculty that more power be given the eligibility committee as it at present has no discretionary powers to exercise in extenuating circumstances, where students are shut out of athletics for failure to maintain a certain percentage in their studies.

Sunday School Singing Contest—In order to advance the musical interests of the Sunday schools of Pioneer stake, the stake board of that stake has perfected arrangements for a singing contest to be given next Wednesday evening, Nov. 20. Most of the wards of the stake have entered and are practising almost nightly. Great interest is being taken in the coming event and an enjoyable program is assured.

Freezing in Brighton—John W. Clawson, Sidney Wells and Frank M. Whitney have returned from a visit to Brighton, which they were anxious to see in the winter time. They found the hills stripped of their verdure and the lakes entirely frozen over, the weather being frigidly cold at night, but quite warm in the day time. W. S. Brigton still keeps the postoffice open and the delivery is made from Park City several times a week.

Postal Employes Demur—The postoffice employes demurred yesterday afternoon, on being paid half their two weeks' salaries in cashier's checks, which can not be exchanged for money. Cashier Walker of the postoffice says that he will redeem the checks when there is sufficient currency in hand, but when that time will come he is uncertain. The matter has been laid before the U. S. district attorney who will confer with Washington.

CHANGE MADE IN OGDEN YESTERDAY

Division Superintendents and Other Officials Appointed By W. A. Whitney.

EVERYTHING GOES ALONG O. K.

Numerous New Offices Will be Restored to Junction City Its Importance Grows.

Special Correspondence.

Ogden, Nov. 15.—At 12:01 a. m. today, the management of this part of the Harriman system between this place and Rawlins, Wyo., which, for more than four years has been under the jurisdiction of the Oregon Short Line, was turned over to the Union Pacific, thereby creating a new division of that line with headquarters in Ogden. At the same time the jurisdiction of the local Harriman yards was turned over to the Southern Pacific from the Short Line.

W. A. Whitney, the new superintendent of the Union Pacific, was at his offices in the Union Depot building this morning, bright and early. Before most people were about matters pertaining to the operation of that part of the big trans-continental line coming under his jurisdiction were arranged for and traffic was moving along as if nothing unusual had happened.

SOME NEW OFFICIALS.

About the first official act of the new superintendent was to appoint D. C. Olmstead as his chief clerk. Mr. Olmstead was formerly chief clerk to Assistant Superintendent E. N. Botsford of the Short Line. Mr Botsford has been transferred to a similar position under Mr. Whitney, but his chief clerk has not yet been named. As chief clerk to the superintendent Mr. Olmstead spent most of yesterday arranging the office forces for the Union Pacific here. All of the former clerical force has been retained and a number of new clerks will be added.

Mr. Whitney next announced a few appointments of division officials for the new Utah division. He named G. E. Maitland as division engineer and J. Ottman, assistant division engineer. J. A. Beck was appointed supervisor of bridges and buildings and D. E. Sullivan, master mechanic. All of these named with the exception of Mr. Sullivan will have their headquarters in Ogden. Mr. Sullivan's office will be at Evanston.

OGDEN GAINS IMPORTANCE.

The new order of things makes Ogden more of a railroad center than ever before and brings to this city a number of new officials and other attaches of the Harriman lines. It places that system, as far as the Union Pacific is concerned, on virtually the same basis that it was prior to the time when portions of the Central Pacific and Union Pacific were given over to the Oregon Short Line.

Superintendent E. C. Manson, of the Salt Lake Division of the Southern Pacific was busy yesterday getting acquainted with matters pertaining to the local yards which now come under his management. As yet no addition to the forces in his offices have been made. No word has yet been received as to when that portion of the line between Ogden and Sparks, Nev., will be turned back to the Southern Pacific.

FROST. NOT NEGLIGENCE. TAKES CARS COASTING

These frosty mornings, besides making getting up to start a fire in the asthmatic stove, a decidedly unpleasant task, is causing no end of trouble to street car motor men. Persons stand on the near corner and despite the cold, get hot when the car slides into the middle of the next block. The conductor hears about it—there's a sign on the front platform, "Don't talk to the motorman"—but it isn't his fault. It isn't the fault of the motorman either. It's because the rails are covered with frost and ice. Sand is of little aid in bringing the wheels to a standstill, and with everything sleek and shiney from a coating of frost, brakes will not hold. Wherever there is a hill to climb or descend, the motorman braces himself for trouble. He begins putting on brakes in one block to stop in another; yet the car slides across the corner and into the next block, passing by a bunch of indignant patrons.

Salt Lakers probably think the car goes by because the motorman didn't see them, standing in the chilly air. Some have the idea it's all due to negligence. Some, from the way they talk to the conductor, seem to think they are being maltreated and intend having every car crew turned out of the service. There are two sides to every story. It is no pleasure to stand out in the cold air from before daylight until dark—ask any conductor or motorman. So when a car skids past you a few yards, walk down to it, get on the platform and smile at the conductor pleasantly as you enter the car. It's not negligence, nor a desire of the carmen to play pranks, but frost that is causing all the trouble, and car men, you know, are not responsible for frost.

NEW M'CARTNEY STORY.

Former Salt Lake Railroader is German So "McCarthy" Raises Wrath.

Those who knew H. M. McCartney, the veteran engineer who partially built the Salt Lake Route, when he was stationed in Salt Lake will appreciate the following story clipped from the San Francisco Chronicle:

"Don't call me McCarthy" threatened Assistant Engineer McCartney of the Western Pacific. "The man dies at sunrise that calls me that!"

It seems McCartney traces his ancestors to Pennsylvania Dutch, with enough old Scotch to give some spirit to the descendants.

Scores of men apply to the Western Pacific's local offices every week seeking employment of various kinds along the new railroad, as carpenters, teamsters, surveyors, laborers and one thing and another. They are all referred to "Mr. McCartney." Woe to the applicant that misunderstands the name. He generally enters emphatically and hesitatingly: "Mr. McCarthy—"

One rates not grumbling yesterday: "Huh! Worse than last week. I take my fingers off this McCarthy button and says, 'Well, I've come back again, Mr. McCarthy, seein' if they ain't no openings.'"

"'It's behind you,' he says, 'close it as you go out.'"

PENNSYLVANIA RETRENCHES.

"Discouraging Outlook" Brings Out Order to Cut Down Expenses.

Philadelphia, Nov. 15.—The Pennsylvania railroad today issued the following statement:

"Owing to the discouraging outlook for the coming months and the very large increase in the operating expense of the company during the year, it has been decided to cut down expenses, insofar as practicable with the economical movement of traffic.

"Beginning Nov. 18, shop forces working on repairs will be put on an eight-hour day basis but all standards for repairs will be strictly maintained. While reductions will be made in the maintenance of way forces, the tracks will be put in the best possible shape for the coming winter and there will be no let up in any work necessary to insure the present standard of operation of the road."

CAR SHORTAGE AGAIN.

Officials of Western Lines Believe Danger is Not Past.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—While there are no longer complaints of a car shortage, the officials of western lines do not think the danger of one is past. It is their opinion that when confidence is restored business will be resumed on a much larger scale and the roads will be unable to meet the demands which will be made upon them.

To prepare for this the car shops are overloaded with repair work. Thousands of cars, which heretofore were in such demand that they could not be sent to the shops until the great fall rush was over, are now being overhauled and put in storage. Moreover, so far as known, no orders for new equipment have been cancelled.

There is still a strong demand for coal cars and vast quantities of fuel are pouring into the northwest. The railroad men hope the bulk of this business will be disposed of before the general call for cars to move the crops is made. There is the wheat crop of the northwest and the corn crop of the southwest to be reckoned with. As yet little of this has been moved and the longer it is held in the country the more urgent will be the demand for cars.
