Desperate and Fatal Encounter With a Burglar in California.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

The Arizona Wool-Growers.—A Lumber Mill Destroyed by Fire.—Chinese "Bonanza," Etc.

A snowslide carried away part of the People's Electric Light company's flume at Ogden, Utah, leaving the west half of the town in darkness. Travel is said to be recording dangerous in the mountains.

The loss in cattle in this county, says the Saratoga (Wyo.) Sun, has been small up to date, when the state of the range is taken into consideration. There will be more cattle die after green grass comes than heretofore. Green grass seems to weaken range cattle when they begin to feed on it in the spring.

The big mill at the rolling mill was shut down Friday night, says the Laramie Boomerang, and it is understood that a number of the men connected with its operation have been discharged, some men having been spotted during the day. New men will be secured, it is understood, from the East Laramie men are retained.

Monday was the hottest day seen this winter, says the Weiser (Idaho) Signal, the snow falling all day, accompanied by a howling wind of extreme coldness. About eight inches fell in the upper country, and on the Middle valley hill Tuesday it was drifted to a depth of four or five feet, and with difficulty the stage was got through.

W. W. Hunsley has come in from Hyskness's ranch, says the Evanston (Wyo.) News-Register, where he has been spending the winter, taking things easy and hunting bobcats. He and Jack Haslem have killed thirteen over altogether and have some remarkably fine heads and enough bobskins to keep them in clothes for two years.

At a meeting of the Arizona Wool-growers and Sheepherders' association, held at Flagstaff, A. T., it has been decided to reduce the wages of herders to $20 per month, to take effect July 1st, and to reduce the price of shearing to 4 cents per head. The reduction is made on account of the depressed condition of the sheep business, owing to the threatened removal of the duty on wool.

John Ward and his two sons own 480 acres out far from Greeley, Colo., upon an exchange. They will plant this year 80 acres of potatoes, 100 acres of beans and 30 acres of oats. They have 80 acres of alfalfa and the rest of the land will be kept for pasture. Last year they had 80 acres in that vegetable but 20 acres suffered from grasshoppers; from the remaining 60 acres 4,000 sacks of unusually fine ones were dug.

The Fairhaven Lumber company's lumber, shingle and planing mills at Fairhaven, Wash., was entirely destroyed by fire on Sunday morning, the fire catching from a spark produced by the friction of the big flywheel belt. The mill was built in 1889, and has since been operated more constantly than any other mill on Puget sound. The loss is estimated at upwards of $60,000. There is only $8,000 uncancelled insurance. Forty-seven men are thrown out of employment.

The question of holding a charter election is again being agitated at San Francisco. The election commissioners at one time decided to hold a special election for freeholders in April, but a doubt as to its legality was raised, and the board let that reason, and for the additional one of lack of funds, there being but $25,000 available to conduct an election which it was estimated would cost at least $50,000, a resolution was adopted deferring the election until the general election next November.

William Cushman and W. W. Russell, farmers, were shot on Friday morning at Lake Tapps, near Tacoma, Wash., by John Arnott and his son. Cushman was killed and Russell badly wounded. Both Arnotts surrendered to the sheriff. The crime grew out of a fight over the county road at Lake Tapps which has kept the entire settlement in that section at war for many months. One of the Russell family visited the office of the county commissioner, Bartholomew, and was thrown out of the commissioner's office. Russell, Cushman, the Arnotts and other neighbors renewed the quarrel later, and it resulted in the murder.

Mrs. Julia S. Hughes of Oakland, Cal., did not think much of American morals. She was taken quite ill last October, when she sailed in Dr. Ah Gang of San Francisco to administer for her. The Chinaman has been attending for her right along and on Saturday the woman died. She died not be buried and an inquest could be taken in regard to her death until the coroner passed on the case. Dr. Lang could not give a death certificate, because was where all the trouble came in. An autopsy was held and it was learned that the cause of death was consumption. The Chinaman stated that he had a number of white people on his list of patients.

Last week a train of about four cars was ordered out from Evanston loaded with cinders to repair a piece of track on the other side of Piedmont, says the Evanston (Wyo.) News-Register. Wm. Hamilton was engineer, Wm. Hopkins, fireman, John O'Hara, conductor, and Henry Wheelan, trainman. About three miles this side of Piedmont, while running at a high speed down grade, the engine ran upon a rock that had rolled down from the hillside and lay in the middle of the track. The engine and tender turned a complete somersault and with the train was completely wrecked. Neither of the men had time to make even a move toward saving himself. Conductor O'Hara was injured, however, and Brakeman Wheelan was slightly hurt. Fireman Hopkins found himself lying underneath and between the engine and tank with a sprained ankle and more or less bruises, while Engineer Hamilton was quite severely hurt about the head, and at first was thought to be totally hurt inwardly, but under the careful medical treatment he is slowly out of danger and rapidly recovering. The men were caught in two by the tank on opposite sides of the track, and those who saw the wreck pronounced it one of the most remarkable escapes for the firemen they had ever seen.

Andrew Carson, a citizen of Wheatlier, Cal., was mortally wounded early on Sunday morning by a man who he caught attempting to rob his residence. Carson retired about 10 o'clock Saturday night and about noon next morning, when he was awakened by the sound of someone rifling a stocking. Upon hearing this he had his pocketed by burglars, and rushed down the front stairs. As the latter he observed the figure of a man. Carson sought to shoot, but caught sight of this. A terrible struggle ensued. The burglar was soon into a corner and Carson attempted to strike a blow in the face of resisting one, when three shots were fired, rapid succession, and the murderer exclaiming, "There, now you, I shot through a window and escaped on a back main stairs from the house exploded. Carson sank to the floor with a deep groan, the blood running from a bullet wound in his right lung and from several deep wounds in the soft part of his side. In the excitement that followed attention was turned to aid the unfortunate man, so far was rapidly bleeding to death. The physician worked hard and finally succeeded in staunching the flow of blood. A posse was organized, starting at once to overtake the fugitive. The murderer has not been a few miles from the scene of the tragedy. The injured man is now said to be sinking, as the attending physicians state that it is entirely impossible for him to recover. The murderer's entire effort is expected.

SUNOL!

ROBERT BONNER

Is overloading the showing of Sunol with the Putnam Nail.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 1, 1894.

PUTNAM NAIL CO., Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen: Your Nail Stock Taken with Sunol, and shod with your Putnam Nails, Hammer-Pointed and Sheared, has been with us for the past two years, and we have found it to be the best we have ever used. We have shod our entire stable with your Nails, and we find the Putnam Nail to be the best Nail we have ever used, and we believe as good a Nail that does not, and consider it the most economical.

Very respectfully yours,

Chas. Marvin

The Putnam Nail is the only exclusively Hot-Forged and Hammer-Pointed nail.

Look in your smith's shoeing box, if the nails have smooth edges for the whole length they are the PUTNAM, for they are Hammer-Pointed and are not sheared.

The above picture, from a photo representing Mr. Bonner in the act of knocking the shoe off a Putnam nail, which unceremoniously flies from the horse's foot, with no harm to the horse, or loss of a nail, and, as he kicks, white paper, which he has placed in his shoe, falls out, showing it is not sheared or pinched.
