The officers and member of the Stake will please govern themselves accordingly.

Your Brethren,
ANDRW M. CANNON,
JOSEPH E. TAYLOR,
CHAS. W. PENROSE,
Presidency of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion.

NOTICE.

To Sunday School Superintendents.

We desire to call special attention of superintendents of Sunday schools, that annual Sunday school reports have been received from the following Stakes and missions only: Alberta, Bear River, Bear Lake, Beaver, Cache, Davis, Emery, Juab, Kanab, Millard, Malade, Morgan, Parowan, San Juan, Sanpete, Sevier, Snowflake, St. Joseph, Star Valley, Wayne, California, Indian Territory, Mexican Colony, Netherlands, Northern States, Samoa, Scandinavia. We urge that the delinquent superintendents of Stakes and missions forward their complete annual report for 1895 at once, to Elder John M. Whitaker, general secretary, No. 203 Constitution Building, Salt Lake City, Utah. We should take a pride in this matter and be prompt as well.

Very truly,
GEORGE Q. CANNON,
GEORGE CODDINGTON,
KARL G. MAESER,
General Superintendency of Sunday Schools.
February 27, 1896.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Four Recently Returned Missionaries Speak—Elder Heber J. Grant Also Addresses the Congregation.

Four recently returned missionaries addressed the Saints at the Tabernacle yesterday, the services being presided over by President of the Stake Angus M. Cannon.

Choir sang:

On the mountain top appearing,
Lo! the second David stands.

Prayer was offered by Patriarch Alonzo H. Raleigh.

Choir (other verse):

Lo! the angel this appointed,
Come on high Jehovah spoke.

Elder Charles H. Hallock was the first speaker. He had just returned from a mission to New Zealand was the first speaker. He felt that the work devolving upon the Latter-day Saints was a great one, and being such it should be appreciated by those who have embraced it. There is one duty which the Latter-day Saints owe to the world—that they who are living here should acquaint their relatives in distant lands with their condition in Utah. Throughout the earth the work is being opened up for the spread of Gospel principles, and the great prejudices which formerly existed against the Church, are now being broken and the Elders are meeting with kindness and hospitality on every hand. The speaker bore his testimony to the truthfulness of the Gospel and urged the Saints to press onward to the end that God's blessings would be poured out upon them.

Elder Christian Petersen, another recent arrival from New Zealand, was the next speaker. The Maories, said he, are a hospitable people, and a people who are rapidly disappearing in the line of civilization. During the three years and a half which the speaker spent in their midst, he had gathered that they were a people who were striving with all diligence to serve God and keep His commandments. While in that land he had gained a knowledge and testimony of the divinity of the latter-day work and knew that obedience to God's laws would bring the own reward.

Elder Lewis L. Hoagland next addressed the congregation. He had been upon nearly three years and a half in the New Zealand mission—the first year and a half in the Waikato conference and the remaining time in presiding over the Manawatu conference. A vast change is noticed among the people in that land. Although they have peculiar habits and customs, they are easily led into the paths of truth and righteousness and are fast becoming elevated in the scale of intelligence. At the present time the Saints of New Zealand number 2,400 souls. God has been with the Elders in their labors in that part of His vineyard, and has blessed them unto the doing of much good in that locality.

Elder Amos Keeler who had been laboring as a missionary in the London conference said that the people in England were very devout in their religious worship. In the county of Canterbury, in the county of Kent, Elder Keeler had had the privilege of preaching the Gospel for the first time in thirty years. Although had a city of about 30,000 inhabitants, it has represented therein, besides of every church in Christendom, but that of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. In that locality there is still some prejudice against the Saints, but it is gradually waning and the prospects for a good work there in the future are quite encouraging.

Elder Heber J. Grant, in speaking to those assembled, felt that the testimonies of the previous speakers must have been a source of joy and satisfaction to those present. Such testimonies are within the reach of every young man and woman in the Church, if they apply themselves to the Gospel principles with that purpose in view. The speaker bore testimony with all solemnity and sincerity that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God; that the Gospel work which we are now engaged in, was the work of God, and that inasmuch as the Saints would obey the commandments of the Lord, they would receive such a testimony and would virtually gain for themselves an exaltation in God's celestial kingdom. Since the dedication of the Salt Lake Temple, the promise which was there made, that from henceforth prejudices against the Saints would be allayed, was being virtually made manifest. The Elders on returning from the missionary fields, bore witness of it, and as every hand a vast change of heart had taken place with regard to the feelings of the outside world towards the Latter-day Saints. Today the Saints are one, and stand as a living testimony to the divinity of the work of God.

The Elders go out into the nations of the earth, and preach the Gospel without any pecuniary remuneration whatever. They leave their homes, together with their dearest friends to take up the labor of bringing souls into the fold of Christ. When they return, if they have applied themselves diligently to God's service, they make it known unto all whom they come in contact, that the best moments of their lives were those spent in the missionary field. No man or woman has ever had a knowledge of the Gospel will ever lose that knowledge if they will bow in obedience to God and His servants here upon the earth. To the extent that we yield obedience to God's laws and ordinances, just to such an extent will He give unto His blessings for our benefit.

Choir and congregation sang:

Our God we now to Thee
Vouch for Thy blessings free
We here sing.

Benediction was pronounced by Elder George Goddard.

County Teachers' Meeting.

The usual semi-monthly meeting of the teachers of Salt Lake county was held at the University on Saturday. A class in language was conducted by Miss Effie Riddle, teacher in the Murray schools, and proved a very efficient exercise. Prof. Angelroy spoke in his usually interesting manner, upon the utility of drawing, and was recorded close attention. The singing by pupils under the direction of Mr. Horne was most interesting, and the association would like to be favored again by Mr. Horne's pupils. The meeting was one of much profit to the teachers.

Health Department.

The health report for the week ending Feb. 29, is as follows: Deaths, 7; males, 3, females, 4; births, 8; males, 3, females, 5. There are 10 flags containing scarlet fever. One case of typhoid fever is reported.

Back From Turkey.

Elder Frederick A. Hoth, of Payson, called on the News Saturday this being his first visit to Salt Lake City since his return home from a mission to Turkey. He left for that distant part of the world on April 12, 1893, and visited various places in Turkey, notably Jaffa, Haifa, Smyrna, Aleppo, Damascus, Antioch and Constantinople. He enjoyed good health during his absence and met with some success, although his experience there confirmed the observations made by previous Elders in the field that missionary efforts among the Asiatics must be essentially different from those among European nations. Armenians are desirous of learning and advancing while the Turks as a general rule are not. Elder Hoth returned home on October 21, 1895, after a profitable sojourn in the mission field.

Fermentation and Foods.

In the lecture by Prof. J. T. Kingsbury, at the University lecture room Friday evening on the subject of Fermentation and Foods, the speaker said alcoholic, acetic acid, lactic acid and butyric acid fermentations are all important, not only for the use to which they may be put in the line of manufacture but on account of such chemical changes taking place in the body. An understanding of these different kinds of fermentation enables us to comprehend the important chemical changes undergone by the various kinds of food. The kinds of food were discussed regarding their nutritive value, the animal needed by the body daily and how to determine the amount of meat and other kinds of food necessary to be taken into the system to supply it with the requisite amounts of the several bodybuilds. Many hints were given regarding the composition of the various kinds of food, their digestibility and nutritive values. Meat and eggs each contain the proper proportions to enable supply the tissue and the creations while resting upon them, but they do not contain the bones and any and a certain combination for the wheat germ. The reason that infants suffer from the fact of this character for the infant is because it has no starch ferment in the pancreatic juice with which it would be enabled to convert the unchanged portion of starch ingested upon by the pepsin in the saliva. Many other points were spoken of concerning baby food. Alcoholic fermentation in the stomach and the intestines. The effect of alcohol upon the system, its concurrence to the fresh mucous of the rabbit, its and liver, and its effect upon digestion were dwelt upon. Many other important points were brought out bearing upon the health and proper condition of the body.

Tuesday evening, March 3rd, Prof. D. R. Allen will lecture upon the "Utility of Mathematics" and on Friday evening, March 6th, Prof. Geo. Q. Cannon will lecture upon the "Rise of Industrialism: A review of the economic history of Europe, showing the influence of economic and the industrial arts upon modern civilization." The public is invited.
