ANSWER TO BRYAN.

Attorney General Harmon on the President's Action

DURING THE CHICAGO RIOTS.

It Was Strictly Conformable to the Constitution and Laws.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. — Attorney General Harmon today furnished a statement for publication as follows:

I have concluded to give a public answer to the many inquiries made of me upon a subject of great moment, to which general attention is now directed.

Mr. Bryan, in his letter accepting the nomination for President by the convention at Chicago, amplifies the protest with that convention made as to the national action taken relative to local affairs, which, strangely enough, is outlined in the platforms of the other conventions which have also nominated him. As nothing else has been proposed to which the protest could plausibly apply, these protests were interpreted and are understood to be directed against the remote action of the President in forcibly suppressing the disorders which had stopped the storage of the mails and interstate commerce, and were carrying the civil officers of the United States. The President took this action not only without the requests but in some instances against the protests of the authorities of the states in which the riots occurred, and Mr. Bryan, taking action 4 of article 1 of the Constitution to be the law on the subject, judges himself against any repetition of the violation thereof, which his letter necessarily charges. He vindicates the wisdom of the framers of the Constitution by declaring that the local authorities "are better qualified than the President to judge of the necessity for Federal protection."

This is, in my judgment, a far more serious matter than the money question or any of the other questions that are now before the people, grave as they all are. Our form of government may survive a wrong decision on those questions, and the people may endure it a time the evils which will result from the systems of finance and taxation, if the President has deliberately congested the instrument upon which the Union is founded by repealing the authority of a sovereign state by armed force, a precedent has been made which threatens our form of government; while if a candidate for President properly pledges himself in advance, as Mr. Bryan has done, to do nothing to protect the property, malice or transitory rights of the citizens of the United States, unless and until the officers of another government request or consent, then we really have no Federal government, for a government which is not entirely free to protect and maintain itself in the discharge of its own proper functions is no government at all.

The section of the Constitution to which Mr. Bryan refers is as follows:

"The United States shall guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion, and on application of the legislature, or of the executive, when the legislature cannot be convened, against domestic violence."

This section plainly relates merely to the guaranty of a state against invasion by foreigners with their authority, law of property or domestic violence, and they are wisely made the sole judges whether and when they need such protection. Mr. Bryan betrays a consciousness of the limited operation of his provision in the expression "Federal assistance" in the clause I have quoted.

But by the express terms of the Constitution, a state has nothing to do with the maintenance of the authority or the execution of the laws of the United States within the territory of the state. The prevention and punishment of offenses committed within the bounds, with inter-state commerce, with the administration of justice in the federal courts, are committed to the general government, and Congress, the President and the other officers of the general government of the state within to which they are committed. Therefore the state cannot require protection against them. For the same reason it cannot discharge in some matters. Therefore it can require no Federal assistance with respect to them. Of course, in case of such offenses, as in the recent riots, a disaster against both state and Federal authority intervenes, so that either or both may require it. In such cases the action of each is substantially in its own authority over the subject committed to it in both and the other. But in each case the state is dealing in its own independent right as a sovereign government and on its own behalf. It would be as absurd to claim that the United States could expect to use national troops in protecting from those of a state may be necessarily required, as to claim that a state might call upon the United States because it happens to be contrary to Federal rights or officers as well as its own. This would limit and hamper the sovereignty of both governments. Impotence in imperia would be the result.

According to Mr. Bryan, there is nothing implied in the Constitution, for it is content to speak of a provision of the law to be force by the United States against process when, within the limits of a state, may be necessarily required by its officers and completely paralyzing all its operations as a government unless the local authorities shall first make request or give consent.

This is contrary to the settled principle that while the Federal government is one whose operations is confined to certain objects, it has, as to those subjects, all the attributes of sovereignty, and one of them is, always and everywhere within the territory of the states which compose it, to enforce and punish those who in any way interfere with the exercise of its lawful powers.

This sovereign right of the United States necessarily follows its officers and agents everywhere they are transacting and maintaining them in the discharge of their duties. Congress has accordingly, by section 5297 of the Revised Statutes, authorized the President to use the armed force of the government in aid of state authorities when requested by them, as provided in the Constitution, and has also, by the following section, 5298, authorized him to employ such force, upon his own judgment alone, against "unlawful obstructions, combinations or assemblages of persons, or whatever state or territory thereof, when the laws of the United States may be locally opposed or the execution thereof forcibly obstructed."

It was under the power conferred by the section last named that the late rebellion was suppressed. Mr. Bryan's doctrine that this law is unconstitutional is more dangerous than that of secession; the latter at least left the government some power and authority in its territory which these in remain. Mr. Bryan's would reduce it to the sole minstry of the State.

What I have said is well known to lawyers and students of the Constitution. It is strictly limited for the people at large, hence whom the subject has now been brought.

I will recall in this connection the following resolution proposed by the Hon. John W. Daniel of Virginia, who was president of the convention which nominated Bryan, which was voted by the Senate July 12, 1894, (Congressional Record, page 8033) without apparent dissent:

"Resolved, That the Senate indorses the prompt and vigorous measures adopted by the President of the United States and the members of his administration to repress and repress by military force the outbreak of lawless men with the due process of the laws of the United States and with the Typewriting Machine Patent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—There has been issuing to the patent office for about twenty years a controversy between W. O. Dowland and Orlando Morgan, dealer as to priority of invention in blue ceiling machines, in regard to "First, the matter for having a series of type bars mounted on a common, easily moving, swinging, compounding mechanism for assembling the type bar, in a line and for a series of keys to select the matter at the proper place on the line; latter, mechanism for selecting and conducting the matter to a printer or recordingpoint and adjusting them individually in order into a common line."

The commissioner of patents finds in the issue, covering also few minor points, in favor of Scudder, and closes a long opinion and decision as follows: "And I find that not only Scudder is entitled to the invention as an original product of the inventor as early as May, 1885, but that he proceeded therein, under all the circumstances of the case, with reasonable diligence, to the construction of his complicated, costly but entirely successful second machine in October, 1887, and thereafter reduced to practice and perfected to Scudder and the decision of the examiners-in-chief is reversed."

Strychnine Combine.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—A local paper says: "Two hundred Chicago manufacturers and jobbers and over 20,000 retail merchants outside of Chicago have but completed the greatest mercantile alliance that the history of the country has ever known. Articles of incorporation of the association, which is called the National Association of Merchants and Traders, were received yesterday from Springfield. A board of directors and an executive committee have been chosen and the officers are to be elected next week. The temporary meeting of the alliance will be held in this city September 21st to 25th. Profit to the retail merchants who buy goods here is one of the main objects.

Rail-Carriers Win.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—The strike of the Lake Shore switchmen has ended in an almost complete victory for the men. All the men return to work pending the settlement of the working rules.

Traveling Students.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—For the purpose of deriving educational benefits from a tour around the continent, fifteen students of Puget Sound university, at Tacoma, have stopped in Chicago. Of the fifteen students six are women. Each student will travel 7,000 miles a year. The scheme is getting very popular, and it is thought other universities will follow.

Bryan for South and East.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 11.—The silver clubs of this city, headed by a brass band, escorted William Jennings Bryan to the depot this evening, where a large crowd had gathered to say good bye to the nominee of three parties. Mr. Bryan spoke a few minutes, giving trip through the South and East at 11 tonight, taking the Missouri Pacific train for Kansas City.

Watson for Colorado.

IOLA, Kan., Sept. 11.—Hon. Thomas E. Watson will not go to Nebraska, as he expected to do when he left Georgia. From Iola, where he will speak tomorrow, he will go to Colorado to spend a week in the campaign there. He makes this change in his itinerary at the request of ex-Gov. Waite.

Suing Wells, Fargo & Co.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11.—Nim Gerald Dunphey, the prima donna who has been singing at the Tivoli during the grand opera season, sued Wells, Fargo & Co. yesterday in the justice's court for $25. On July 29th she sent $250 to the Union Dime Savings institution in New York. When the receipt was returned at the bank only $250 was credited to it. There was a $50 bill in the envelope which had disappeared. She has a receipt from the company's clerk for $250.

GERMANY TO ACT.

It May Be in Opposition to Great Britain in Africa.

ZANZIBAR, Sept. 11.—[Copyrighted, 1896, by the Associated Press.]—The belief is prevalent here that Germany does not intend to acquiesce in the action taken by the British government, through Rear Admiral Henry Rawson, in appointing Hamed bin Mohammed bin Said Sultan of Zanzibar, vice Khalid, who escaped unarmed, leaving at the German consulate everything the 1-4 of the police on August 27th, and in spite of the request of the British consul for the surrender of Khalid, has been so excitedly mentioned on the part of the German officials to give up. Rumors are now in circulation here that it is the intention of the German authorities to locate Sultan Khalid on the throne from which he was deposed by men of Britain arms. These rumors have caused great uneasiness here.

There is a feeling that Germany is not acting in a friendly spirit and is seeking to make an issue with Great Britain.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—A dispatch from Aden says a port official there has received information from the Somali coast, inside with stars for Zeila, entered the R. S. Ros, and direct instructions in the subject have been cabled to the official received to.

CRIMINAL OR INSANE.

An Englishman's Designation of Turkey's Purposes.

Britain Cannot Longer Hold Terms With the Sultan in the Present Policy.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Mr. Henry Asquith, formerly secretary of state for the home department, has addressed the following message to the Chronicle:

"The time has come when Great Britain should refuse to hold further terms with a government which has become a mere instrument for executing the purposes of a will either criminal or insane. The European powers, by whose favor the sultan holds his throne, cannot overdone his great crimes or ignore further changes without sharing the guilt of the one and incurring directly responsible for the most. I hope we shall witness such a manifestation of opinion here as will give Great Britain from any such complicity and will give strength and authority to decided action on the part of our government."

Mr. Gladstone, in another letter on the same subject, declares:

"The time which the six powers have made it unnecessary in the past year has not been a mere failure or a mockery, but a great instrument of miscalculation. It was decided that such a matter can be disposed of by discussion and has thereby supplied wanderable and deliberate murder with the security of a shield, and with the assurance of impunity. In my judgment, even silence would be preferable to such discussion."

A dispatch from Constantinople to the Daily News says: An official communication to the newspapers has chosen a remedy. It contemplates the certainty of Armenian things in the previous but holds all officials responsible if matters develop into massacres, pillage or destruction of property, and it says that the officials are authorized to use their arms in self-defense against all who attack them. This is the first time that an official communication has mentioned the massacres and pillage.

A Mad Governor.

DENVER, Sept. 11.—A special to the Republican from Santa Fe, N. M., says: The New Mexican tonight prints a letter from Gov. Thornton, in which he declares Congressional Delegate T. B. Catron to be a politician, a liar and a coward. The affair grows out of the ex-Sheriff Chaves assassination case, wherein political supporters of Catron are charged with the cold murder of a leading Democrat of this county in 1892. Catron is alleged to have decided to be a Albuquerque citizen an anonymous communication, which seriously reflects upon the personal and official character of Gov. Thornton. Harmony through out the two parties tonight fear a financial smashup between them.

A Washington Killing.

ROSLANDS, Wash., Sept. 11.—J. H. Buckman, one of the most prominent farmers in Lincoln county, was killed near here last evening by Walter Fairman. A threshing crew was at work on Buckman's place and Fairman was measuring grain. Buckman accused Fairman of swindling, whereupon Fairman called Buckman a liar. The latter struck Fairman, who retaliated by knocking Buckman down. He then jumped upon the prostrate form of Buckman and stomped him until he died for help. Buckman walked away, apparently satisfied with the beating he had received. About ten minutes later Fairman looked up and saw Buckman coming toward him with a knife. The spectators say Buckman made a rush at Fairman with the upraised knife, when he raised a pitchfork and struck Buckman a blow over the head with the handle. Buckman fell like a log. He bled profusely from his ears, nose and mouth. Without recovering consciousness, Buckman expired within half an hour.

For this year the total assessed value of real and personal estate is $4,308,712,903, as against $4,292,082,107 last year.

Syrup of Figs

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the gentle laxative action of the most pleasant fruit, the California product of the genuine article—pure, wholesome, sweet, delicious, rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that the family can use it when sick or well, and that it will not weaken the system, whether the peasant family laxative, or the fashionable family remedy. This is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and why it is the most popular laxative. By all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without weakening the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to make sure that you possess that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, the best of all is the fig, and of the well-informed, everywhere, syrup of Figs stands highest and in most liquid good and gives most general satisfaction.
