Young Man from Iowa Easy Prey for Pair of Smooth Grafters. Thomas Rouke, a young man on his way home to Iowa, was fleeced out of $175 and a ticket to his home state yesterday afternoon by allowing himself to be roped into a "brace game" of draw poker by a couple of smooth grafters. Rouke came in from the west yester-day morning and as he had a few hours to spare, concluded he would take in the sights. He wandered up to the Temple grounds and there fell in with a couple of well dressed "tourists." a couple of well dressed "tourists." They, too, were taking in the sights and prepared to take in anything clas that was not spiked down. The three men strolled about the grounds for some time, and began to discuss re-ligion. The question of whether card playing was right or wrong was dis-cussed, and it developed that Rouke's view on the subject was that card playing was all right, whether on Sun-day or Wednesday. He accepted an in-vitation to accompany the two "tour-ists" to their room for a quiet little game with the limit at $5. Rouke played in with the limit at $5. Rouke played in good luck but whan he was about $20 to the good, one of the men became an-gry and wanted the limit raised to $29. Rouke and the other man were willing.

Rouke and the other man were willing, and the game proceeded. The windup came when Rouke put up his lowa tick-et for $25 worth of chips. In a short time he was out the ticket and $175. He left the place and walked out into the cool air to think. Before long a great light broke upon him and he made a race against time to the police station. He told the police of the little game and they smiled. Officers accom-panied him to the room where the game was played but the affable strangers had quietly departed. No trace of them could be found. Rouke will prob-ably have to send home for funds.
