No motive is known for the assassination.

The United States civil service commission announces, says the Denver News, that the supply of male stenographers and typewriters for the department service at Washington is equal to the demand. There are requisitions now which cannot be filled for want of eligibles. Appointments to these places are usually at salaries of $1,000 or less. There will be an examination at Denver, Colo., on March 19, at which persons desiring to compete may be examined.

At South Riverside, Cal., on Tuesday evening the wife of Henry Fraser was terribly gored by an infuriated cow. Mr. Fraser was milking the cow when his wife claimed to observe the animal's ear. The cow instantly rushed at Mrs. Fraser, tossed her high in the air and nearly disembowered her. When Mrs. Fraser fell to the ground the enraged cow attempted another toss, but Mr. Fraser, for as she to protect. Mr. Fraser rushed up with a club, whereupon the cow turned upon him, tossing one of his arms. Mr. Fraser's injuries are severe, but not fatal. The extent of Mrs. Fraser's injuries is doubtful.

While Frank and Fred Jackson, two loggers, were moving a large cedar log on Tuesday near Camas, Clark, Wash., they saw a piece of iron. On splitting the log open they found an old flat lock musket and an old-fashioned pistol. The pistol contained twenty-one twenty-dollar gold pieces, its mountings gold plated and a few silver pieces. There were several old coins in the lock, but the writing was so thin that it was not legible. One of the coins bore the portrait of Collamingus, N.Y. The date is illegible. The musket was pronounced at San Francisco and was some 100 years old. There was also found a piece of newspaper printed at San Francisco in 1848. The musket and English musketoon and was made in 1816, and is yet in a fair state of preservation. How the strange relics came to be in the tree will perhaps ever remain a mystery. The log looked as if it had been split at some time and had then grown over and in the split was found the things. It was about fourteen feet from the ground.

A most informal ery greeted the ears of John Gurney, a Greaser, as he was passing in front of a house in Chicago street in Denver on Tuesday morning. He ran in the side of the yard and observed a woman coming a big bundle of rags. When she saw the Greaser the woman dropped her bundle into the house and the cries and appeals for mercy continued. Gurney mustered a moment and then entered the house and found the boy crouched in the floor and still weeping. The Greaser immediately, but he was informed by the woman of the bundle, Gurney then reported the case to the secretary of the Humane society, who hastened to the house. He was greeted at the door by a man who said that his name was J. H. Butler, a warehouseman by occupation. The woman was cited with and to be found, but witnesses of the affair were to such. A hatchet was attached by a heavy staple to the wall. On the end of it was a padlock. Butler was placed under arrest. He refuses to tell where the women had log have gone. The boy, he says, is eight years old and his stepson and that his mother passed him because he has no way.

John Maloney, alias H. the Moline has been arrested at Oroville, Cal. He attempted to obtain Hellmer bros., of San Francisco, out of $12,000 by means of a forged letter of credit purporting to have been issued by the Union Bank of Australia. Then he went to Oroville, where he represented himself to be an English capitalist, from whom he proposed to purchase from Superior Judge Gray a tract of 160 acres, and in payment therefor gave a draft for $4,000 on the latter, who, he said, occupies an important judicial position at Cape Town, Africa. Finding the sufferings of the draft he was in possession of the property. Dee Mattie also based claims of land adjoining Judge Gray's tract which belonged to Dr. Kepner, a dentist on Powell street. He was married to the sister-in-law, Emily S. Dee, in a house on that property when a boy. Mattie's father-in-law, Mattie was in Oroville extended in getting into the good graces of several of the leading business men, and when he left town in the company of a detective there was a will attached to place attachments on his baggage and other valuables. Dee Mattie is known the world over as an expert forger. In appearance he is a typical English tourist. He is tall, well built, dresses stylishly, and is the last man in the world a person less wary than a detective would pick out as a criminal.
