NEWS OF THE WEST.

Heavy Windmill Blown to Pieces by a Premature Explosion.

MONTANA FORGERS ARRESTED.

To Prevent Desert Tragedies from Thirst in Arizona and California—Miners Crushed with Ore.

An unusually large acreage of flax has been sown in the vicinity of Lewiston, Wash., this season, aggregating from 1,200 to 1,500 acres. Last season a large acreage of seed was shipped from that point.

The San Joaquin ranch in Orange county is nearly as big as an average European kingdom. It contains 110,000 acres, nearly 172 square miles, of which this year there were 35,000 acres planted to barley. The field stretches for 40,000 yards, width at greatest average 17,000 yards.

Congressional Quinn estimates that $50,000 out of the $60,000 silver taxes in San Diego county within four years is over seven years. They should their average, at a low estimate, five hours of labor to the ton, at a cost of $100 per hours. At $30 a day to be conducted this will make 2,000 earloads.

A Trinidad, Col., dispatch says that two fatal accidents occurred on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe near here. The side rod of a freight engine broke near Nolan, demolishing the cab and killing G. F. Barkhouse, a brakeman. The engineer and fireman were badly injured.

G. W. Hughes, an aldine Colliery mine and prospector, well known in Southern California, was killed Tuesday at the Cerro mine, where he was employed. Hughes was attempting to dislodge a ledge of ore which had become jagged in the chute when the mass came in contact with the side of the chute, killing him instantly.

After deliberating five hours, says a San Jose, Cal., dispatch, the jury in the case of Joseph Dolan, charged with assault to murder James Pierce, Tuesday evening returned a verdict of guilty of assault. Dolan, during an altercation with Constable Greenhalgh, shot Pierce, who, it appears, had attempted to enter Dolan's cabin, when the latter emptied the contents of a shotgun into his left breast.

A Butte, Mont., dispatch says: Two forgers, who gave their names as William Mercadien and H. A. Sloan, and claimed to be representatives of a so-called Andrew's industrial Guards, were arrested tonight after they had swindled a large number of big firms on forged contracts for advertising. The contract provided for payments after the appearance of the advertisements, and the forgeries were so well executed that the assistant to Sheriff Mitchell, who presented, accompanied with a copy of the book with advertisements, did not question their genuineness until the men attempted to work a back and were caught.

The San Diego Sun says: Arrangements to meet California bull wagons carrying desert tragedies from Yuma, this will have sign boards erected at different points on her side of the Colorado giving directions as to the nearest sources of fresh water. The 115 or more miles made desired some time ago by our previous board of supervisors to be placed along the desert trail are awaiting our new road fund, which will be available in July. These poles are iron gas pipes, painted red, so that they can be seen the longest distance, and have sheet-iron signs fastened, with the distance from point to point and the direction to water holes.

A Prescott, A. T., dispatch says: The premature explosion of a blast in the United Verde copper mines at Jerome, Saturday evening, terribly mangled Henry Williams, a miner employed in the mine. Both his legs were broken, his left arm was torn completely off and his body badly bruised and filled with small pieces of rock and sand. Oscarlo his serious injuries the wounded man lived until Tuesday morning. He had just finished loading two holes and was preparing to shoot them off. He ignored his first fuse and an explosion followed almost instantly. A detective force is supposed to have been in the mine.

George Fox, a quiet young man of Santa Rosa, Cal., was shot and probably fatally wounded by Dennis McCarthy Tuesday afternoon in the fields of Samuel Crooks, three miles south of the city. Fox went out to the barn after dinner and commenced harnessing the horses. McCarthy, who was in the loft, came down and walked rapidly to where Fox was working. Disarming the plowboy, he exclaimed, "I will give it to you!" Fox stepped behind the horse and cried, "Don't! Don't shoot! Don't shoot me!" McCarthy without further words fired the pistol against Fox's left shoulder and fled. He then went back into the loft. The officers were notified and McCarthy was placed in jail. No reason was given for his action, as the two men have apparently got along well.

On Saturday, at the headgate of the Idaho canal, says an Idaho Falls dispatch, a gathering of the Shoshone tribe, about 1,000 people assembled to celebrate with speeches and songs and a grand program the opening of the dam to turn the water from Snake river through the headgate of the canal. This is the largest canal ever built for irrigation purposes. Its bed is 100 feet wide, eight feet deep and carries six feet of water at the lowest mark. The capacity of this mammoth canal is 2,541 cubic feet, or about 110,000 miners' inches. The canal is between three miles and 24 miles northeast of Idaho Falls and is about 1 mile in length where it runs into what is known as the "Dry bed," and has a capacity sufficient to supply all the canals drawing their supplies therefrom. The headgate of the canal is the largest one in the state of Idaho, being 100 feet long and contains eight mammoth pieces of solid masonry. The construction of this new canal cost $50,000 or so it is said.
