Historical Society of Utah.

Addresses Delivered at the Second Annual Meeting, January 10th, 1899.

At the second annual meeting of the Historical Society of Utah minutes of which have appeared in the "Deseret News," addresses were delivered of which the following give the full text.

Governor Heber M. Wells sent the annexed communication which was read by Hon. O. F. Whitney.

January 10, 1899.

Hon. Franklin D. Richards, President State Historical Society, City:

Dear Sir—Owing to a press of business it will be impossible for me to attend your meeting this evening, but I write you this to assure you of my sympathy with the objects and aims of the State Historical society, as I understand them.

The history of Utah has been so singularly different from that of any of the other states—so full of interest both to those who have helped to make it and to the world who will read of it, that it ought to be preserved and handed down to posterity.

The history of the Pilgrim Fathers who plowed across a perilous ocean to an unknown land for the sake of God and conscience, is written and well known. Every detail of their embarkation, their pilgrimage and their sacrifices is preserved in prose and poetry, in song and literature; nay more, it is inscribed in the hearts of the American people. Yet comparatively little has been written and less is known of that other pilgrimage across a thousand miles of trackless wilderness into the heart of the Great American Desert fifty-two years ago.

The little band of pilgrims who came over in the Mayflower were not more persecuted, not more weary, not more heroic, and more courageous, not more confident of deliverance, nor more grateful in the goodness of God than were the Mormon Pioneers. [illegible]

The breeding of orchids has received much attention in recent years, both in Europe and America, with results of the greatest interest to the natural history student. Up to 1860, states Mr. C. C. Hurst, but four flowered orchids, raised from distinct crosses, were recorded; in 1890 about 200 had been enumerated; while there are now on record no less than 500. Of these 500, about 100 are generic hybrids, the parents belonging to different genera. About 300 are primary hybrids, that is, [illegible]

thousands of them, are suffering from lingering diseases induced by life in poisonous southern camps, the result of changes of climate, or of imperfect nutrition caused by improper and badly cooked food. Sleeping on the ground has doubtless developed rheumatism in hundreds who were predisposed to the disease. In such cases the Boys of '98 may take a lesson from the experience of the Hundreds of the Boys of '63 have testified to the efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in driving out malaria, rheumatism and other diseases contracted during their days of hardship and privation in the army. These pills are the best tonic in the world.
