LACKED MANY SUPPLIES

Volunteers at Camp Thomas Short On Needful Supplies, Says Gen. Brooke.

DENIES REPORTS REGARDING SANITATION

Commander of the Camp Gives the War Investigating Committee Interesting Information.

Washington, Dec. 15.—Maj. Gen. John R. Brooke testified before the war investigation committee today that most of the volunteers at Camp Thomas came supposedly with ten days' rations, but this was the so-called bold notion, and at first they were hungry. This was remedied by the commissary department quite promptly. The volunteers were supplied with all sorts of vintage, some of it antiquated, their uniforms were old and their equipment in general was thin, but been good. Speaking of the enlistment of the regiments to fill out others. Even with the exception, some of the regiments left for Tampa with 1,000 men. Gen. Brooke proved the one Hundred and Fifty-seventh Indiana regiment which left camp with 1,100 men, but together with stragglers, the war department sent at this time had exhausted all the camps and hospitals in Tampa. Canteens, forces, forks, cups and the like were also short, and, this time, too, he said, contrary to the report made by him to the end of his administration at Camp Thomas.

Gen. Brooke said that he had nothing to do with the selection of the camp site, but, being assigned there, he made it his business to look into the water supply and to see that the necessary sanitary regulations were promulgated and enforced. He inspected the camps as frequently as his time permitted, and made strictures of facts to regulate the disposition of brooms in the camp, and as a result of this, he said the sick report fell off from 25 to 10 per cent.

"I deem it proper to say," continued Gen. Brooke, "in contravention of certain reports that I have seen, that I did inspect the camp sinks and kitchens continually."

"We have plenty of testimony before us," said Gen. Dodge, "that you did this frequently."

"It was more than frequently," said Gen. Brooke. "It was daily."

Gen. Brooke said that there were in the beginning many complaints about the quality of medicines, but that the army had abundant food supplies. The army of the Potomac in 1861, he said, had not half so well supplied. While there was some shortage in shoes and some variables of clothing at times, it was only what might have been expected when three armies were being raised to equipment at three points. Charles Heath, Brooke and Frank Gardner, the commissary denied a statement by one of his staff officers that the hookworm's cause was in a shocking filthy condition.

Speaking of the hospitals, Gen. Brooke said: "In justice to myself I should say that the condition of the first division hospital was not of my own selection. I left that to Col. Hartsuff, my chief surgeon, and it was the one location I condemned. I visited this hospital and was wishing badly, but probably on the surgeon directly in charge."

Gen. Brooke testified that he gave his personal attention to the sick in the care of the camps, the striking of tents, pitching the sinks, etc., and by this means got things under control.

Gen. Beaver, read a report from James Parker, military inspector of the Twelfth New York volunteers, dated, giving an unmistakable and disgusting state of sanitary affairs at Camp Thomas during the Brooke administration, and Gen. Brooke was asked what he had to say regarding it.

"I will say," he replied, "that it is one only among, but it you will give me a copy of that report, I will see that that young man goes before a court martial for these statements, which he is protected in his testimony by this commission."

Gen. Brooke said he thought he had an efficient staff at Chickamauga, Dr. Hoddenpyle, who had been assigned to service adverse criticisms before, was stationed and elsewhere. He considered one of the best examples of the volunteer medical officers. He had been relieved because he carried out disciplinary orders.

Gen. Brooke said that in mobilizing troops in the future they should be fully equipped at the points where they are gathered, rather than scattered and then equipped. He had already asked the war department that the depots be more and nearer and supplies should be distributed to the various Armies. Dried or concentrated fruit had been given in lieu of other things, but the ration was fifteen per cent larger than his small.

MUNICIPAL SOCIALISM.

London County Council is Indulging in an Unique Experiment.

Washington, Dec. 15.—United States Consul Hyde at Liverpool has submitted to the state department some interesting information regarding the great change that has taken place in England in the matter of municipal ownership. Twenty years ago other municipalities of the country were in the hands of the aristocrats, but now municipal ownership is the rule and the exception is the exception.

He describes this movement as one feature of the remarkable "municipal activity" which has taken place in cities of British cities, surprising the citizens of Lord Rosebery than the London County council, which has undertaken the greatest experiment in practical socialism the world has ever seen. No evil was to be anticipated from the municipal railways, electric and gas lighting plants, water supply and telephones, in view of the fact that the municipalities thus had feelings for workingmen, for hours and wages and operate neither for profit nor loss.

In Liverpool the council has gone so far as to force part of what should be the very best municipal business, rather than the cause of the community.

President Leaves Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 15.—The President party left Atlanta at 1 o'clock tonight for Chattanooga. The party will be reached at 8 o'clock Friday morning and the President will address the assembled students of the national school. The institution presided over by Hoke S. Warthington.

The President party will be taken at 1 p. m. and the party will reach Montgomery at 5:45 p. m., where they will be met by a committee of citizens and legislature of Alabama for three hours.

The train is due in Savannah at 9 a. m. Saturday. Here a review of the troops in camp will be held and at noon a banquet will be given in the Pulaski hotel and party by citizens at Savannah of the Du Bois hotel.

Sunday will be spent quietly in Savannah, and the train will wait for the President's return Monday morning. The time from to Macon will be devoted to a review of the colored troops in the First Georgia regiment, and at Macon will serve the President for four hours, the time expiring on the evening train to Atlanta and at 7 o'clock Monday morning.

Atlantic Liner Shows Signals of Distress off Delaware.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 15.—A dispatch received here from Bordentown, Pa., stated that a steamship, supposed to be a transatlantic liner, is in distress off the coast there. The ship has been showing signals of distress for some time.

The White Star liner Teutonic sailed from Queenstown at 1:10 p.m. today for New York.

The Red Star liner Rhynland also sailed today from Queenstown for Philadelphia.

Gen. John B. Gordon's Eulogy.

Richmond, Ind., Dec. 15.—Gen. John B. Gordon, of Georgia, who delivered here today, said, in an interview, concerning President McKinley's speech at Atlanta:

"I have read the speech with much interest and was greatly delighted with it. It was just the right article to some of our people, but it was not so to me. I have known President McKinley for a great many years and have had the profoundest respect for him as a man and a soldier. The Atlanta speech is in keeping with what I have known to be his liberal impulses toward the South for a number of years. He is a very broad man as well as a capable one.

LITERARY NOTES.

"What do I read?" is a question worth asking in each man or woman. The Composition Magazine has taken up the question and has published the opinions of a great many prominent people where one are willing to open their minds readily. A great many other prominent people are not willing to open their mouths freely. A great many other prominent people are not willing to open their mouths freely. Being asked to fill the page would, they hesitatedness even afraid to confess to themselves what they read. In December issue of the Composition Magazine, William Dean Howells, Richard Gilder, Admiral Schley, Chauncey M. Depew, Julian Hawthorne and Edwin Markham are among the contributors. The Composition Magazine is the best one of its kind. Published by Charles Wilbur Hall, 1 Madison avenue, New York.
