THE SHERMAN FUNERAL.

General Schofield Addresses His Old Comrades.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 20.—At Denison, Ohio, a large crowd gathered at the train at 10 o'clock this morning. The coffin of the funeral car was opened and they were allowed to take a look at the casket. A Newark paper says: Hundreds of school children lined all the streets that passed, with flags in the air as the train passed, with heads uncovered, and carrying small flags signed with black.

At 11:20 the train stopped at Newark, Ohio. Mrs. Judge Granger and her son, Sherman Granger, got on the car. The coffin of the dead General was then. The cover of the casket was opened, and the G. A. R. veterans passed by, each one taking a look at the casket as he passed.

The entire trip from Pittsburg to this point has been interspersed with demonstrations of sorrow by all classes of people. The family of General Sherman became, as the day progressed, more and more impressed with the great love the people have for the great dead. As the train rolled into the station at Columbus, the space on either side was crowded with people and for square away was a solid mass, calisthenics were at work, struggling to get sight of Billy Sherman's coffin, as the cars of the train. The contrast of the McCoy Post, G. A. R., were in the station, accompanied by a drum corps. Senator Sherman, ex-President Hayes, General Lowing and others of the party alighted from the train and had a chat talk with the relatives and friends of the man who died in the train. Quite a number of relatives of the deceased general from Lancaster and Zanesville joined in the sacred party at this point.

AT INDIANAPOLIS.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 20.—The rain is falling in torrents and a high wind is blowing. St. Paris was reached at 1:30. Flags could be seen at half mast on many buildings, and the school and church bells were tolling. A large crowd, including a company of G. A. R. men and one of the Sons of Veterans, was at the depot.

At Pipe, a small town just west of St. Paris, a repetition of the scenes at the former place was witnessed.

Just as dusk was over, Richmond, Ind., was reached. Governor Hovey here boarded the train to escort the body to Indianapolis. It was the people of Richmond who gave the train the ground, regardless of the reception they received since it left New York. Over ten thousand people were at the station. Arms at the side soldiers on the platform beside that General Schofield was to be from the city called for him. General Schofield came to the platform and in a brief speech, said: "There are thousands of my comrades here that I know. It is under sad conditions that we meet. We have all lost a comrade and friend. The good care of yourselves, boys, and goodbye."

When Schofield finished speaking, men were rolling down the cheeks of many of the groups of old soldiers. When the train started the boom of cannon was heard, church bells began to toll and the Richmond Light Guard fired a salute. Indianapolis was reached at 6 o'clock.

AT ST. LOUIS—SEANCES.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 20.—The storm of hail and sleet ceased tonight, and was followed by a cold wind, which promises to put the streets in a presentable condition for the funeral procession tomorrow. The pallbearers were selected this evening, as follows: Military, General Pope, General Beckwith, Brevet and A. J. Smith, General Turner, General Weme, Brigadier-General Barger, Commander Cutton, U. S. N., Admiral Jenkins, Judge Samuel Treat, Daniel R. Garrison, Isaac H. Sturgeon, Thomas E. Tutt, R. P. Tansey.

Mining Acres at Land Purchased by an Oil Company.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 20.—The Hannah Oil Company has just purchased 1,000 acres of land in Green County, twenty miles from Monongahela and Marion Counties, this State, in the entire County of Gilmer, outside of the county seat, and nearly all of Doddrige County and part of Mason, and is negotiating for other tracts.

A Fight for $2,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20.—George La Blanche, "Jim Marine," and John Mitchell, fought tonight at the California Athletic Club for $2,000. Five and a half rounds were fought. La Blanche was knocked out in the fourth round.

Throughout Mitchell seemed to stop La Blanche's blows and countered his blows with much ease. There was a good deal of clinching and some hot infighting, but not much damage was done.

In the seventh Mitchell sent the Marine to the floor with a right-hander on the nose. Near the end of the round, however, Mitchell himself went down under a like tap.

In the fourth round, after a few blows were struck, Mitchell hit La Blanche lightly with his left on the face. La Blanche stopped, and raising his arm on his face, remained on the floor until counted out. He was nearly purest on leaving the ring.

THE IDAHO LEGISLATURE.

A Bill for the Purpose of Keeping Life in the "Room of Freedom."

Boise, Idaho, Feb. 20. [Special telegram to the Herald]—One of the worst crimes committed in Idaho was today, when the house passed the Anderson ballot law, revised edition, for a special session. It defines the qualification of electors, provides for nominations in public office, authorizes the proclamation of rules to govern and regulate elections, to specify the duties of election officials and their fees, to regulate the expenses in contesting elections, govern and regulate contests for changing county seats and boundaries, provides for printing and distributing ballots and other election supplies at the public expense and for the publication and distribution of copies of an election law to be used repeatedly at every ballot law at elections. This it will be seen how creeping the law is. Not even one amendment was made in the bill as the Republicans had framed and decided to pass it through without delay. A few days ago when the senate was taking up the work of the house, the bill for the law, reduced the Anderson bill, which was passed, by striking out "class" and inserting "bill," which amendment was voted down, Sharp signing with the Democrats from Bannock voting who were guilty of those crimes up to that time.

Senator Wilson argued that it was an ex post facto law and that crime should not be punished by a law enacted at this day, not have reference to crimes committed in the future. Before the passing of the telegrams about the ballot was concerned, he was as much in favor of it as Sharp and that he favored any clause that would prevent crime from being committed in other ways than by ballot. Sharp said the necessity of changing the Mormon question before the legislature for a purpose, and it was not by accident. It was for the purpose of putting a little fire under that question and to keep the Mormons quiet from rising out, thus answering two purposes, one to keep the Republicans party in power in Idaho, and the other to calm the Mormons. The Salt Lake Tribune is not yet, for it has been able to do for many years, and he again reiterated the Mormon question the bill had taken the bill by accident.

This afternoon in the House the bill came up for final reading and action, and the members of the hall. Like Thousandth chair were interested listeners and were amused by being invited within the bar among the legislators. When the oath was being read, a glance over in their direction showed they were listening closely and catching every word. When the reading was finally finished, Ballentine objected to section 3 and took the same grounds as member White and thought it should be stricken out and said he had in his heart forgiveness for the wrongs or supposed wrongs these people had done, and now polygamy had been dropped, he did not believe in continually hounding.

Emery said he would some time forgive, in his heart his, as the Mormons never gave up their cases, and the section suited him.

Jones said he was an anti-Mormon democrat, but was opposed to the section, as the present laws were all right.

Steunebrg said he was opposed to the bill, as it prevents those unable to read or write from voting. He said the democratic party was pledged to support the Australian ballot bill, but not into hind. He said among his constituents were well-informed men and thousands of other persons who could not read, and these, too, were disfranchised and it was a most unfair measure. The bill passed by a vote of 29 to 5.

The bill also passed for dividing the (Ada) county and creating Canyon, with Caldwell as the county seat.

A bill was introduced, and passed both houses, appropriating $1,000 for legislative expenses. As today is the end of the sixty days session, and no one can tell by reading the constitution whether this is a regular or special session, they will continue about ten days longer and the pay of some member for to morrow will be refused by the auditor who will claim the session was through today. The members will then be taken before the supreme court and he brings suit, and if it is decided in his favor, the session is not ended, but if against him the auditor, it is but sixty days.

All parties indebted to us will please note that our office is temporarily located with Spencer Clawson & Co., Broadway. Prompt settlements are requested.

THE FREE COINAGE BILL.

It Will go to the House with the Recommendation not to Pass.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—When the free coinage bill came from the committee on finance to the senate, Free Coinage bill, Carter moved as a substitute, first, a bill for the free coinage of the American silver bullion, and for the purchase of one millions of silver for three months and the silver bullion such month thereafter. Both were defeated. Only Carter, Dubois and Stewart voted for the first, and Carter and Dubois for the second proposition.

Senator Wilson argued that it was an ex post facto law and that crime should not be punished by a law enacted at this day, not have reference to crimes committed in the future. THE SLEEP SIGNS.

Trains Running on Best they Can With Out Snow.

THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

The Nicaragua Canal Bill in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Senate today passed 116 pension bills and then resumed the consideration of the Nicaragua Canal bill.

Vest, in opposition to the Nicaragua Canal bill said if Great Britain assumed that the Monroe doctrine was in existence (also the Senate had no intention that it did not) then it was not to assume that the Government of Great Britain would not invite intervention of the United States would come within the intervention. If Great Britain should, in spite of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, undertake to build a canal upon the Isthmus without the consent of the United States, would Great Britain be justified when said that her conduct was the Belize and Mosquito Coast and violated the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. If the situation were prepared to say to the British Empire that they would without any reference to her interests or wishes, then let them say that, and accept what would be the consequences. If, on the contrary, it was a question of sympathy, sentiment and interest which would operate injuriously on the interests of both countries and of the world.

Edmunds stated Vest if he thinks the bill is a violation of any obligation of the United States toward Great Britain or any other foreign country.

Vest—I think, unless Great Britain has itself abrogated the treaty, this does.

The remainder of Vest's speech was directed to an argument that the interests of the United States were identical with those of the commissionaires of the canal company, who had organized among themselves a new corporation company, with which the Maritime Canal Company made contracts.

SHERMAN EXPLAINED

if the work had to be done by a company, it would cost (as the bonds would have to be sold at 60 per cent and interest have to be paid on the stock while the work was in progress) $240,000,000, while under the pending bill the cost would be the shippers having to pay $2.50 a ton, they would not have to pay more than $1 a ton.

Stewart moved to strike out an amendment providing that the chief of engineers of the army shall have supervision and control of the canal, and the work be subject to the terms, rules and regulations of Congress or the War Department.

Davis opposed the bill. The pending proposition was, in plain terms, a subsidy to the extent of $100,000,000 to build a work lying entirely out of the national domain and traversing a foreign country. It was his opinion, if the canal was to be constructed at all, it should be done by the government directly, like any other work of public importance.

Edmunds spoke in defense and advocacy of the bill, and without action the Senate adjourned.

IN THE HOUSE.

In the House Cannon reported from the Committee on Rules a resolution for immediate consideration of business reported by the Committee on Judiciary, the first bill to be one for the relief of the Supreme Court, with the Senate amendments.

After an ineffectual effort by Blount and Breckinridge to defeat the resolution, Cannon took the floor, saying that he would say a few words on the merits of the proposition.

McMillan (Tenn.) inquired whether Cannon's object was not the prevention of the forty-minute debate allowed under the rules.

Cannon replied in the affirmative, in view of the dilatory methods employed made on the democratic side under the lead of McMillan. The republicans accepted the notice from that side that it did not choose to facilitate business.

McMillan said the democrats would meet Cannon's programme at every point.

Blount moved to recommit the resolution, and on the yeas and nays a great body of democrats voted.

THE VOTE REVEALED

Yeas 12, nays 156, the clerk ruling a quorum.

The question then recurred on the motion for the previous question, and having demanded the yeas and nays McMillan called the democrats from the clerk room to his support. Having secured the quorum, he then proceeded to accomplish McMillan's object the democrats once more disappointed. The motion was carried, 153 to 5, a quorum being failed.

The resolution was then agreed to—155 to 5, and the court bill was immediately taken up. Senate amendments were non-concurred in and a conference ordered.

The House substitute for the bill fixing the salaries of United States District Judges was withdrawn, leaving the Senate bill in the original form, providing that the salaries shall be $3,000 per annum.

McMillan offered an amendment, reducing the salaries to $2000. To this, J. D. Taylor offered an amendment, providing that the salaries shall be increased $500. No quorum voted and the House took a recess.

The Flooded District.

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 20.—The river is falling here very rapidly. The scene in the flooded district is one of desolation and ruin. There is much suffering among the poorer classes. At Parkersburg and points between Wheeling and that place the situation is very discouraging. At Parkersburg the water is still rising. The damage cannot now be estimated, but it is continuous and the suffering is great. The deluge has partly set business and the city of Parkersburg is cut off from the outside world.

The situation here at Riverside is still covered and the inhabitants are camping on the hills until the water subsides.

A special from Findlay, Ohio, says: The Blanchard river is driving all the records of the lower section from their boxes and doing considerable damage to property. Not for twenty years has the water been so high.

The Disestablishment of the church in Wales.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—In the commons this evening Morgan's resolution in favor of disestablishment of the church in Wales was defeated, 295 to 267. The announcement of the large vote in its favor was greeted with hot applause from Gladstone made a speech in consequence of which he was greeted with mass applause, in favor of Morgan's resolution.

Pens.

The town of Pens, though far inferior in dignity of aspect, and natural importance and natural beauty to Nice, Newport, Kissin and other towns on the Volga is not altogether devoid of its fair and secret. Situated on the elevated bit back of the "mother river," as the peasants call her, it commands a heavenly but pleasant prospect, extending over fifteen miles of the ancient land "Mavra," with its old fashioned churches and houses.

In Pens you will see the old fashioned velocipede, 100 years ago, called bonesyke, the most ungainly machine for locomotion that was ever devised for mortals to sit on, especially for ladies. As the name is long, high and narrow one can easily all actuate, but the unfortunate women are obliged to sit sideways, with their legs hanging helplessly down, if they do not happen to be long enough to reach the foot board.

Having no support for the back, they can keep their equilibrium only by a firm grip in the modern corset-lacing and finking their arms through, or in the country dress. It is a lady who does the stitches best of the dozen wooden pegs, with which he gets up his long Russian tallow, and is jerked and jolted along over the rough roads, to most sinner in mortal terror of being thrown off every minute.—Murray's Magazine.

A Tamed Eagle.

My eagle is named Rosalind, after the bill in Sweet Lyd, where he was hatched. He is a male, and a very fine bird. I have had him now for four years, and he has assumed his white tail. He is allowed to fly about at large, but he is very much in the habit of returning home at the end of the kitchen door, who feeds him, and for whom he shows the greatest affection. She can manage him even when in most ungovernable temper. He has a particular aversion to small boys, and will fly at one going near him. The only animal he is afraid of is the pig, and he will not go near enough to make him fly off, even if it should not be in sight.

A well dressed friend ventured one day to teach him with the point of his fashionable light umbrella, which so offended Rosalind's majesty that he flew at the offending instrument and literally tore it to pieces, using the stick and treating the silk to tatters. Usually, however, he is affable enough, and does no more mischief than occasionally killing a hen or two if his own dinner is not served punctually enough, and this is really great forbearance, considering he actually lives at large in a poultry yard.—Birds of Lore and Moll.

The Work on a Needle.

Large coils of wire are cut until each piece is the length of two needles. These pieces are made straight, and sharpened at the ends; then two eyes are stamped near the middle, with a cross cut between. The twin needles, now head to head, are filed apart, and each is by itself. But it is far from being ready to begin the work for which it is intended. It must be carried where the filing was done; heated to redness and plunged into oil to temper the steel; and said cooer, pretty powder and oil must polish it bright; soap and water must cleanse it. And even then it is not ready for use. The eye is to be made smooth, that the thread may not be cut; and the barbed spring is required to make it dainty enough for the work it must do.—Harper's Young People.

An Electric Time Stamp.

A new use for the electric time and date stamp is that of automatically registering the exact hour and minute on which an employe enters the work shop. The workman drops his card in a slot, and the machine registers the time upon it. The register is so arranged that the time clerk can open the apparatus whenever convenient, and the cards will show the exact time when each man entered the place.—Boston Transcript.

A Thoughtful Spouse.

Mr. Bickle—Here are a great lot of queer letters from members of your sewing circle, addressed to me. Mrs. Bickle—Yes, I thought I would save you the trouble of opening them.

Mr. Bickle—Do I know you'd forget it, so I went then myself. The bills are to the library.—New York Weekly.

It was necessary, however, for them to confide in him with a view only to the welfare of the whole. I believe it a mere newspaper sensation."

The ex-President parried all additional questions put to him about the story and positively declined to define his position regarding the convention of 1892.

If Your House is on Fire

You just water on the burning timbers, not on the smoke. And if you have catarrh you should attack the disease in the blood, not in your nose. Because the lungs are not the seat of the effect catarrhal. To do this, take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, which radically and permanently cures catarrh. It also purifies the nerves. Be sure to get only Hood's Sarsaparilla. 1
