RULES FOR VOTERS.

With the recitation elapsed of the balloting comes rest, and we again present these general rules on the guidance of voters:

1—If you wish to cast a straight party ballot, put a cross in ink in the circle opposite to the right of your party emblem, and make no other mark.

2—If you wish to make any change whatever from a straight party ticket, do not make any mark opposite either party emblem.

3—When you do not vote a straight ticket but pick your candidates, put a cross in the space at the right of each candidate you wish to vote for, and make no other mark on the ballot.

4—You do not vote directly for President and Vice-President, although the names of candidates are on the ticket; you vote for electors on the State ticket, one-step three of the party whose presidential candidates you wish to support.

By following these rules you will have no difficulty whatever in having your ballot just as you want it to be.

THE ELECTION RETURNS.

It is probable that this year the full election returns will be slower than usual in coming in, and the result in the presidential election may not be known here till Wednesday evening. In most of the states the Australian ballot law is in force. Under this, the count of ballots is necessarily slow. In this city, for instance, it is estimated that in some precincts it will take twelve to sixteen hours to canvass the vote. The Associated Press now announces a salved service than usual from other parts of the country, and gives its reason therefor in the following dispatch from Chicago this afternoon:

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—The public must be prepared for a late service for numerous reasons that most. Illinois is presidential election. New York has been the pivotal state. The polls closed there at 4 o'clock. Telegraphic facilities were of the highest order and the difference in time between that city and the West accounted the Associated Press practically in the same time as the rest of the country. This year the interest will centre chiefly in the states west of the Alleghanies, and particularly the same west of the Mississippi. Thus much advantage in time is lost. As a rule, polls close at 6 o'clock here, and the telegraphic facilities are comparatively limited. In Illinois, there is a provision for sounding the state convention, and in Chicago another for the issue of local tickets, both of which tables the law must be counted first. This will necessarily involve some delay. In comparing relative comparisons for gains and losses will be made with the presidential election of 1892.

TIME TO DO SOMETHING.

The matter of hoodlumism in some parts of this and other cities in the State has been called attention to often, and sometimes with good results. Unfortunately, however, this vandalism is not kept down to such a point that it is not a serious injury to the people now and a menace to the community hereafter. The experience of this city on Friday and Saturday evenings, especially the latter, amply illustrates this. Crowds of youthful people engaged in tearing off and carrying away gates, breaking down fences, uprooting trees and shrubbery, and other depredations, the occasion being Hallowe'en. There were not only hope-scattered in this reprehensible business, but numbers of little girls ranging from fourteen years of age downward. Some of the latter have been known to boast of having been members of a company that carried off a dozen gates, besides doing other damage, and their parents have listened with amusement, and contrary a word of reprimand, to tales of these pranks. In the sum of property injured or destroyed on the evenings mentioned, hundreds of dollars have been lost to the owners, and the burden has not always fallen on those who could afford it, in some instances that we might name, widows and orphans must have a county supply of food or clothes made still more acute by the expense necessary to repairing such damage.

We wonder what parents are thinking of to allow their children to engage in such proceedings. Not seldom there were many instances where fathers and mothers had no idea that their offspring were committing such pranks; but there are clearly better in future. If the names of large lists known to have indulged in the boisterous compliment were published, they would reveal the fact that there were many instances where such belief in formal parents stand in high positions of responsibility in the localities where they reside—men in public positions. Where their example is directly before the youth. In these cases know that by their attitude they are encouraging their own children and others off-road by their example into disreputable and criminal paths. If not, it is time they did, it is time they taught their families that to destroy five cents' worth of property in a fence or garden is as much and dishonest as to steal five dollars from a house or individual. Without going into a long dissertation on the wherefoness of this hoodlumism, it is sufficient to say that if parents will not care their children in this respect then it is full time that at Hallowe'en and similar occasions the police should direct special attention to the antipodes, arrest and give these prominent hoodlums the treatment they so richly deserve.

EYE OF FAITH (?).

The great presidential campaign of 1896 is over today, so far as concerns anti-election worry, and strife, and work; and tomorrow's sunlight will find on the millions of voters in the contest of the world's republics, as those voters perform the high duty of deciding by their ballots what Ship of State policy shall direct the country till another election then rolls around. Even among the most secretive people there is a measure of anxiety for the outcome, for all have a deep interest in the country's progress, however they may sometimes deplore its occasional political experiences.

In the outlook for President, it appeared six months ago as if Hon. Wm. McKinley of Ohio surely would be nominated by the Republican convention, and would as surely be elected, as there was a general feeling of discontent in the nation at the existing conditions in the government's administrative affairs. O the candidates of the opposing party, there were Bland, and Boies, and Blackburn, and some few others, more reasonably sure of the nomination, but none more prominent than the one named, and the outlook for the one selected did not appear bright as to success. Then came the Republican nomination, which did not vary from the anticipated program; also the bolt of the silver Republicans, and the nomination of Hon. Wm. J. Bryan as the standard bearer of the Democrats, Populists, Silver Republicans and National Silver parties; and with the consideration of these the prospect of their candidate's success brightened up to a remarkable extent, until now there are millions who truly believe he will be the next choice for President, and who may not be disappointed.

In the claims set forth by the respective chairmen of the leading political parties there is little on which to base an opinion as to the result. The Republican chairman claims 271 electoral votes as sure for Mr. McKinley, representing twenty-eight states, with five other states, having an electoral vote of 38, as doubtful; this silver convention states for Mr. Bryan, with 135 electoral votes, of which only twelve states and 76 votes are certain. On the other hand, the Democratic chairman claims for Mr. Bryan thirty-one states, with 252 votes, and five doubtful states, with an electoral vote of 76; this leaves to Mr. McKinley fourteen states, with 186 electoral votes, of which only nine states and 120 votes are granted as sure for him. Thus both claim an overwhelming victory, which if possible neither will have. A majority of the electoral college is 224, there being 447 votes in all.

In these respective claims as set forth by states, it may be noticed that the North and East, which over the great centers of population, industry, trade and commerce in this country, are the strongholds for the support of Mr. McKinley; while the South, West and Northwest, which embrace the more sparsely populated sections, the gold and silver mining industries, and the great grain growing and stock interests, give their allegiance to Mr. Bryan's candidacy. O course such conclusions as have defined how a very large vote in behalf of the figures set as the minority candidate therein, and it may be that "Sandbiles" of voters will bring some big surprises. On the face of the matter, however, voice from any sight and respectable development, the chances may be said to favor Mr. McKinley. But the fact that from the almost certainty of Republican success six months ago there has been a development to a condition of great doubt as to the outcome indicates a remarkable evolution in that time in favor of the free and independent coinage of silver; and this evolution may not have reached so deeply into the minds of the masses of voters as to bring with it an overwhelming victory at the polls. Even the most sanguine politicians are at sea as to the outcome, notwithstanding the entirely hopeful expressions that occur with their votes on either side.

As to Utah, there is no question that the electoral vote of the State will go to Bryan and Sewall. All parties agree on that; about the only change from the status at the time for such actions were made, that Utah would be credibly unanimous for Democratic electors in the present name that the McKinley electors will poll 20,000 votes in the State, and some seven 10,000, the vote will go to them mainly in other towns than that of Ogden, while the vote for the Bryan electors will range at Bryan at as all the way from 40,000 to 60,000. On the congressional, legislative and county tickets, there is much uncertainty, as the number of voters has doubled since the last election, and therefore has not been placed definitely on party lines, which to some extent have been obliterated by the action of the national parties.

Concerning the division on party lines, the majority of the people of Utah have shown their good faith in that matter, and the fit sincere desire to have it remain so permanently apart from all religious character. There are some persons, however, and they are not in the Mormon people, who have not shown our faith by abstaining religious discussions in politics. Even at the time there are occasionally sounding "Church Houses" and rousing of "treachery," with covert threats of direful results on somebody's head. They are in the position of the robber who shouts "stop thief," the proof of this attitude being both heavy and abundant, should there be occasion to use it. There are also tricks and schemes to deceive the unwary voter. The intelligent and reputable portions of the community, however, recognize the real situation, and thereupon proceed toward a complete harmony with conditions elsewhere in the nation.

So far as any action from the NEWS is concerned, it is that there be a full and free vote in behalf of parties and candidates; that every legal voter should go to the polls and there vote according to personal conviction of duty, independent of any interference or coercion whatever; that no attention be paid to pretended "revival" schemes, got up to suit some one's idea and pitched off as having responsible backing; but that every voter be absolutely free from improper influence from any source, and vote as an independent American citizen; and that this be done without strife or anger, or unnecessary partisanship, remembering that while there are differences of opinion as to the merits of parties and candidates, these differences are such as sincere lovers of good government may have honestly.

REVIVAL OF JUDAISM.

The movement among Hebrew women in this country for a revival of the Mosaic faith to its primitive purity is a remarkable one. Woman has often played a important part in the history of Israel and on more than one occasion—notably in the days of Queen Esther—saved the nation and the religion from extinction. There is today among the Hebrews a great mission to perform for a new Deborah, or Hannah, or perhaps not an Esther or a Judith to take the lead and inspire new hope.

The revival of the Mosaic faith in its original purity involves, however, the gathering of the people in the land of their fathers and the construction of the Temple. It presupposes the restoration of the ancient Priesthood and the theocracy, all of which is impossible without divine interposition. When Moses received a command to build the sanctuary in the wilderness, he was charged to do everything in accordance with the pattern shown to him in the mountain, and when the Jewish nation as a church is to be reinstituted, it will be done according to a heavenly pattern. For the importance of that new step in the development of human affairs is such as to prompt the inviting hell to human wisdom.

To well-wishers of Israel it is a matter of joy to notice the awakening interest in all that pertains to that people. And the movement among the ladies, if conducted in the right spirit, cannot but result in good for the people. It has long ago been stated by a Christian writer, "that blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in, and so all Israel shall be saved."

A THOUSAND tribes, among one profession or another, to infuse or help the cause of certain candidates, are used in all the states, and Utah is having a taste of some of them. As usual, they are withdrawn until the eve of election, and then have the effect of needlessly igniting some folks who give such "fireworks" more attention than they deserve.

DON'T get mad at the tricks of your political adversary, and above all, don't charge them to somebody else, candidate or otherwise, who is entirely innocent of any complicity therewith, to his injury.

IN UTAH, every voter is entitled to a full, free and independent expression of his or her desire at the polls, and should make good use of the privilege.
