FRAGMENTS.

The grand jury have been in session today. They expect to adjourn late this afternoon for the next few weeks.

PRESIDENT JUDGE BLACK has the unfortunate version of a most stiff neck for some time and it troubled him greatly to get around today.

A MEETING for the setting apart of missionaries will be held at the Historian's office at 12:30 p.m. on Friday next.

LIM HOW, a Chinaman who has been a resident of Salt Lake for more than a score of years, died of heart disease at his place of business on Commercial street last night and was buried after the fashion of his countrymen today.

A DENVER PACIFIC special passenger train left the Union depot at Ogden at 7:02 this morning with 300 passengers on board and arrived in Salt Lake a little before forty minutes later. The run was the fastest ever made over that line under similar conditions.

THE county clerk has issued marriage licenses to A. R. Stringham of Bingham and Mary Gilmore of Salt Lake; to John Lange, of Brighton, and Lina Rosenquist, of Salt Lake; to James W. Harrison and Emily V. Bishop, both of Salt Lake.

In the notice of the presentation of the photograph group in Sunday school Superintendent Anson B. Neff erroneously stated that the recipient had held the office of superintendent since the organization of the school. The fact is that he has been an officer of the school for that period. Brother W. D. Owen was the first superintendent and held that office for upwards of 11 years.

St. George Temple.

The re-opening of the Temple at St. George is postponed till 10 a. m. of Tuesday, the 2nd of May, 1893.

THE DEEP CREEK RAILROAD.

Meeting of the Committee to Start the Ball Rolling.

Proposition for Salt Lakers Officers to Go Ahead with Fifty Miles.

Last evening the Deep Creek Railway committee appointed by the president of the Chamber of Commerce to call a meeting of officers. The following were present: C. E. Westlund, secretary, Governor Thomas, W. C. Hubbard, George A. Lowe, A. C. Tomes, Richard Mackintosh, F. H. Bacon, Heber M. Wells, C. C. Goodwin, W. H. Rowe, L. F. Kelly, George Y. Wallace, C. O. Whitemore, F. H. Auerbach, M. H. Gray and Judge Colborn.

The meeting was called to order by J. W. Donnellan, who accepted the chair. C. E. Westlund was chosen secretary. L. F. Kelley was called on and explained the object that 1000 subscribers could be found to take an average of $200 each in stock. Title estimate was outlined in nearly explicit.

R. Mackintosh stated that Nicholas Trenchard was now in New York working for the Deep Creek proposition, and his prospects were bright. Mr. Mackintosh thought Salt Lake could build fifty miles of the road and would be willing to do so. The journalists would pay for their.

W. H. Hubbard and C. E. Westlund gave a short description of arrangements which he made with the Union Pacific from Ogden or Salt Lake City.

J. H. Bacon believed that freight could be secured by either the Union Pacific or Short road, and proposed that the chamber of Salt Lake build the road from one of these places to the Nevada line, then connect it with the road. He thought the road could be built for about $15,000 a mile, and that the entire company should be incorporated for $5,000,000, that the $500,000 to be subscribed should be distributed as intended in the counties of Salt Lake City. Take on that $500,000 subscribed, a mortgage for the remaining $4,500,000 would enable the company to place in New York for $3,000,000 more. With this $3,000,000 the entire road could be completed and put in operation in fifty days.

J. W. Donnellan stated that he was informed that the Rio Grande Western had filed in the office of the secretary of the territory for the building of a line from their present terminus at Tuilla to the Deep Creek country and on further. He thought Tuilla an undesirable point to commence at. At Salt Lake was the place to start from, either from the city or by proper freight arrangements westward.

C. C. Goodwin suggested that the cost of second-hand rolling stock and rails be ascertained by a committee. He also thought that a subscription committee would meet with a hearty response in Salt Lake if their object was stated to be the building of a Deep Creek road.

Mr. Bacon made the following motion, which was unanimous in carried: That a committee of three be appointed to confer with the railroads as to secuing of proper traffic franchise from Salt Lake to Central or Junction, that a committee of five be appointed to draft a suitable bond for the Deep Creek railroad subscription list and that a committee of three be appointed to draw up articles of incorporation of the road; all these committees to be appointed by the members of the committee present, Chairman J. W. Donnellan to be ex-officio chairman of each committee.

The committees are to report to the general committee Thursday at 8 o'clock. Chairman Donnellan appointed the following committees, with himself as chairman of each:

To confer with railroads—J. H. Bacon, W. H. Rowe and George Y. Wallace.

To draft subscription list—C. C. Goodwin, A. L. Thomas, Heber M. Wells, James A. Lowe, James R. Gillespie.

To draw up articles of incorporation—E. F. Colborn, C. O. Whitemore and C. E. Westlund.

The general committee then adjourned to meet with the special committees Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, at the office of the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

BEE KEEPERS' ASSOCIATION.

Topics Discussed and Business Transacted at the Convention.

The Utah Bee Keepers' Association has concluded its convention. Three meetings were held commencing at 2 p. m. April 10th, at which the following topics were discussed and business transacted:

It was decided that one gallon cans for local trade and five gallon for shipping are the best to be used.

The association was in favor of patronizing home manufacture in the way of sections, hives and cans, if they can be made as cheap and good as the imported article.

Mr. O. W. Minkel of Provo represented the wood working part in the way of hives, shipping crates and sections.

J. C. Simmons of Ogden told the convention that he found manufactured cans as cheap as they could be had from the east.

Wintering was discussed at some length, and it was concluded that ventilation was necessary.

From the reports given, Salt Lake County lost about 75 per cent of its bees, Utah county 12 per cent and the rest of the territory from 5 to 20 per cent last winter.

The number of colonies of bees reported in each county was: Salt Lake, 3000; Utah, 8000; Davis, 4000; Juab, 1000; Weber 2000. The balance were not reported.

It was suggested that the inspector be more thorough in the future than in the past in looking after foul brood.

Yellow jackets and moths were reported as being a great nuisance to bees and for the latter a farmer suggest the method of setting a tub of water and a lighted lantern hung in it at night as being a good method for killing them.

The majority of the members were in favor of using full sheets of foundation instead of starters.

C. D. Boothby of Chicago, introduced the Ferguson patent hive, manufactured by E. Kuchemeir, Red Oak, Iowa.

James Hawkins of Benjamin, and W. L. Worsencroft of Payson, introduced a new self reversible extractor, invented by the former.

The meeting passed a resolution to the effect that it was the best extractor yet invented according to their knowledge. It will be manufactured by S. Worsencroft & Son, Payson, Utah.

Meeting adjourned until some time in October.

Wonderland.

This is the last day and opportunity for the public to see John Hanson Craig, the heaviest man living, as his engagement terminates today. He is a wonderful curiosity, and this opportunity should not be lost to those who have not seen him and hear his very interesting lecture. An entire change of program will occur commencing in the early part. Rollair's original palace of illusions will be on exhibition, it being the most elaborate and expensive display as well as the most mystifying ever seen in this country. On the stage stage will appear the Davenport sisters, Stella and Josie, also Miss Julia Walcott, the Bristol Queen. In the theatorium the beautiful domestic play, Kerry, will be produced by the Avonia stock company.

Samoan Mission.

Missionaries will be leaving for the Samoan islands on the 23rd of the present month. Those desiring to send packages to their friends on the islands should forward the same immediately to Bower, Morris, Secretary Oceanic Salt Lake City. Parcels and packages must be well packed, and of no really bulky or heavy nature, not to exceed, say fifteen pounds. Nothing of heavy packages can be sent with the missionaries.

NEW YORK POULTRY SHOW.

The Eight Days Exposition the Second Was Most Impressive with.

The official catalogue of the New York Poultry and Pigeon association shows about 2,500 birds to have been on exhibition at Madison Square Garden. A few of them were for sale, but most were put up in competition. This was one of the finest poultry shows ever given in America. It was a satisfaction to observe that many American bred birds were even handsomer than some which had been imported.

On entering the Garden a sound utterly indescribable met the ear. It was the cooing of multitude of birds, the cackle and shrieks of hundreds of hens. The noise was such it made the head ache. Pigeons cooed, ducks quacked and geese honked. Only the majestic turkeys were decidedly silent. Among turkeys the admirable American Bronze was easily king as to general purposes qualities. Some of the gobblers must have weighed not less than 40 pounds and were of course useless for breeding purposes, just only to show how for a Thanksgiving turkey can be made by care and feeding. Next in size to the Bronze came the dark colored turkeys and the buff and White Hollands. But the Bronze is most nothing always.

In the bird fancier's sense of the birds at the show we mention chiefly those we think would be profitable to the farmer and market breeder. But there were some singularly beautiful specimens of the kind that ornamented a lawn or poultry house. There were dazzlingly brilliant red and yellow golden pheasants, silver pheasants and ring necked pheasants. Hundreds of pigeons of every shape, size, color, attracted the eye, while perched near the great glass dome of the garden a white dove circled round and round in its flight, whirring and cooing and making one think somehow of the ark and the wonderful poultry show Noah must have had. Some of the full grown bantam chickens weighed no more than a pound, but, on the other hand, there were also American-Asiatic cocks that weighed from 18 to 20 pounds. Some of them must have been quite as heavy as a good sized hen. Of chickens alone there were 67 different breeds.

Looking at the breeds from the point of utility alone, the casual observer would decide from the appearance of them all that if he wanted a big, heavy fowl for meat production he would choose the light Brahma, the Buff Cochin or the Partridge Cochin. The two last named were the handsomest of all the big birds, however, both of them strikingly beautiful. You looked at one article then at the other, and could not make up your mind which was most attractive in appearance. Breeders of both the Buff and Partridge Cochins declare they are each respectively the finest in existence.

The Leghorns are among the best layers, particularly the White Leghorns, so it will have. But any one who saw the families of Single Combed Leghorn Spanish and Minorca fowls would be impressed so disagreeably by the sight of the wrinkled combs dangling over the face's sides that it he knew nothing of chickens beyond the looks of them he would never go in for these breeds. The comb is many times shaped over one of the hen's eyes in such a way as to make more the sight of her eye altogether, while the poor bird was obliged to keep up an incessant flirting, struggling movement to throw the thing to one side that was enough to give the hen hooter St. Vitus' dance. Besides that, these combs are dead sure to freeze in cold weather if they have half a chance. At the same time the Leghorn eggs are large, most delicately beautiful and very individual, and it is to be remembered that they come to order when engaging the highest price.

But the fowl for the farmer, the general purpose fowl, as it were, is undoubtedly the beautiful barred Plymouth Rock. In size the specimens at the New York exhibition make no mean showing even alongside the giant Brahmas and Cochins, while their eggs are abundant enough, considering what excellent laying breeders the Plymouth Rocks make. The eggs are exceedingly handsome, too, with fine rich color, the shade of color with plenty of cream in it. Most striking in appearance were the massive blue Langshan fowls, but which are not blue at all, but a fine dark gray.

Among game fowls other than pit fowls the Pollen game fowls is one of beauty. But even the Indian game is not so alluring for good as the fancy poultry breeders who have it for sale represent it in their circulars to be poor mothers. The breed is undoubtedly hardy and pretty, but there is such an enormous length of leg that the casual observer concludes there is more leg than anything else, and that the Indian game would beat the champion in a running match. The opinion does therefore seem unpolitic most bearing creatures with very much leaning legs.

Among geese of course the Toulouse and Embden are first in market value. The Pekin and Mammoth duck were the largest and most apparent, but the Cayuga duck held its own very well too. The Pekin and Mammoth drake were quite as large as the goose familiar to us in our chicken yard.

Every patent medicine for poultry that brain of man has as yet concocted was there. Incubators with lifeless eggs peeping out of the shell were in plenty. Each elegant agent assured the gaping visitor that his particular kind of incubator and brooder combined all good qualities for hatch. It may be remarked in passing that most of the visitors, being city people, were green.

The display of eggs was a very beautiful one. The eggs laid by particular breeds were put in themselves in handsome pyramids and the different pyramids placed together, in a group, each labeled so that the visitor could tell at a glance what breed of hen produced this or that omelet. The pale blue green shade of the blue Langshan eggs contrasted handsomely with the brilliant white of the Leghorn and the almost mottled brown of the Plymouth Rocks.
