The apothecaries of Santa Clara, Cal., have organized a club of fourteen members.

A. Greeley, Colo., inventor, has invented a seed potato mining machine, which will do the work at tripely and so well as hot. [illegible]

An Oregon specialist recently performed 8,000 cases of cataract operations in Nebraska using. The price paid for it is more: $122,000.

The deputy internal revenue collectors and his associates have registered 4,000 Chinese at Fresno. They are now registering at the rate of sixty or seventy per day.

A woman lecturer in Pasadena, Cal., has showed her hearers by declaring that there are more churches and less charity in the town than in any other place she ever visited.

There were 153 deaths in San Francisco last week, as against 127 during the corresponding week last year. The mortality was the greatest among persons between 65 and 70 years of age.

The late storm has floated many hundreds of cords of wood into the bay of Monterey, Cal., and nearly all the "wood schooners" map a lively one moonlight beach, where over 100 cords were wanted in.

A combination has been formed in Pendleton, Or., by the local dealers to organize to fix the price of hogs expected to 12 cents, then, so it is announced, discontinuing the sale of the pestiferous articles.

James Davidson, of Dell, shipped over to the city last week, says the Dillon (Mont.) Examiner, on his ranch from Dillon where he sold 300 tons of hay. He is getting $15.50 per ton delivered on board of the cars.

Fagged parties are the rage in Tucson, A. T. Each invited guest brings a stick of wood and tosses it in the fireplace while he tells a story. All the wood that is not ever gone into the blazing pile. During the late cold snap they were very popular.

There have been a number of cases of scarlet fever in Ashland, Or., during the past three weeks, and quarantine has been in force, stopping the public schools and all public gatherings. The disease has been about stamped out, however, and quarantine was raised on Saturday.

Captain W. C. H. Graham, an Englishman distinguished for his military record, has just died at Whatcom, Washington, having long been in ill health as a result of wounds and fatigue. He was a member of Famous Light Brigade, immortalized by Tennyson, and one of the survivors of the six hundred who rode into "the Valley of Death" in the great charge at Balaklava.

The Cheyenne (Wyo.) Leader says that twenty-four farms at Wheatland have just been disposed of by the Wyoming Development company to actual farmers who will settle upon their lands. This brings the total of farms sold up to 115 this winter, which means that just 115 families will be added to the population of the state. It is the intention of the company to put in about thirty-five more farmers, or 150 in all, before spring.

George H. Phillips was brutally beaten and robbed at Ashland, Oregon, on Saturday night. Phillips had been working with the section men on Siskiyou mountain, and came to town in the evening to spend some of his wages. At a saloon he fell in with two young fellows who willingly offered to show him the sights. They took him around, and finally about 11 o'clock led him into a dark alley, where he was brutally beaten and robbed of about $40. Phillips regained consciousness, and of course, found that his assailants had skipped, but both are in custody now.

The mate of a big mule mountain lion killed at a ranch near Hailey two weeks ago, has met the same fate, but in a different manner, says the Hailey Press. It was believed that she would appear in search of her lord, and two days after his death her tracks were seen in the sandstrip of the town. She had traced the male's hide. On Saturday, the 4th inst., while a nephew of Thomas Miner, who lives two miles north of Hailey, was going along the road with his dog the lioness appeared and sprang upon the latter and began to rend him. The young man, a 19-year-old tenderfoot recently from Kansas, pulled a rail off the fence and beat the lioness to death. Her skull measured 7 inch 8 inches from tip to tip.

At Bertram's Mill, some nine miles from Placerville, El Dorado county, Cal., there is a small ranchería at Digger Indians. Last week one of the squaws was taken sick and there was a medicine man were promised, who performed the customary incantations and drum beatings, but without success, as the squaw died. Two days Hall an hour later her bereaved and exasperated husband procured an axe, and, going to the hut where the medicine man lay exhausted by his labors, he deliberately decapitated him. This is an old tribal custom and what every Indian doctor expects if he fails to effect a cure. Officers have left for the scene of the murder and are scouring the woods in search of the murderer.

Mary Miller, a 15-year-old girl, was horribly burned by a gasoline stove explosion at Los Angeles, Cal., that she died on Sunday afternoon. She was cooking when the terrible accident occurred. There was no alarm, and her mother running in from another part of the house found the kitchen all afloat and her daughter in the midst of it with her clothing on fire from head to foot. Mrs. Miller tripped the bewildered girl and got her out of the house as quickly as possible. A large white blanket wound her in its folds. Her clothing had all been burned off, even to her shoes. The hair was all turned off her head. Her face, hands and entire body were shockingly roasted.

The Pima Indian is taking naturally to hats, trousers, shoes and all the things that a decade ago he despised as civilized and useless incumbrances, says the Pomona (Ariz.) Gazette. He has tasted of the white man's fire water, and he carries some acquaintance with a people who can do far more information and pay minimum from a single pass of grain. He has seen that the pale faces, whether a little traveled or living in the mountains, working while the Indian rested for food. The experience of many has convinced him that he can do as much for himself as the white man has proved to accept in payment for a horse, and even to the extent that brought such a price in the Indian one cigar instead of [illegible]. Another thing to be considered is that the Indian is a breaking race, and the Pima was would have soon been done if [illegible]. They have a quite come to the point where the white men are kept for working purposes, but they will of there long time. Within our other decade will scarcely time will [illegible] the Pima entire may be [illegible] busy hundreds who will tear such a every quarrelsome tale. [illegible]
