OGDEN.

Ogden, Jan. 14.—Edward H. Anderson, city recorder of Ogden and assistant to the Weber Stake historian, has just published a work entitled "Local Chronology and Church Directory," a brief memoranda of the leading events of 1898, and a Church directory of the Weber Stake of Zion. The beginning with the first day of the year, a record of the happenings of each succeeding day is given. The record closes with a brief history of the inception and successful carrying out of the plan of building and operating the sugar factory. Of this enterprise the writer says that the fact of 1898 being twelve months, 2,000,000 pounds of first class granulated sugar was manufactured by the perfect machinery, demonstrates that the enterprise is a complete success. Saturday night between ten and twelve o'clock, the money drawer of Jennings Bros. cigar store in the Utah Loan & Trust building on Washington avenue, was robbed of a sum of money by a man who had secreted himself in the closet and been locked in when the store was closed for the night. About midnight a policeman discovered that the doors were open and notified Mr. Hettrick, who came down and made an examination of the premises and reported that over $14 had been taken. He had a suspicion as to the perpetrator of the robbery and had a telegram called the Ogden house and found he was not accounted for in disposing of the coin which the gent dropped out of town. A considerable bit of the proceeds revealed that another money drawer, belonging to Walter Webb, the clerk in the store, and who was in charge during the department has been robbed of his contents, about $5. The name of the alleged thief is Max Meyer.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Susanna Pettifer Hill, wife of ex-Constable Richard Hill, were held at the Episcopal church of Ogden at 3:30 p. m. yesterday. A meeting of the Utah county fish and game preservation association was held here Saturday. Hon. Marinus Larsen of the House committee on fish and game sent word that he was unable to be present by the association in the fish and game laws now talked over and another meeting will be held next Saturday for the purpose of adopting amendments to be formulated by the following committee: R. A. Barney, M. C. Newell, M. P. Madsen, A. Grant, J. Cain and J. Hastings. The association is in favor of asking for the removal fish in Utah lake, believing that it is impossible to take enough out in this manner to endanger the source of supply, and believing that if they are left they will crowd out the game fish. There is a source of revenue in the lake, the lake being able to produce about a million pounds annually. The association is also in favor of permitting fish to be shipped out of the lake, believing that this will make a better market for bass than now exists, and the bass are so well established that no possible amount of fishing will look and bass can prevent the lake from being well filled with this class of fish. The fishing gentlemen were appointed a committee to wait upon the Legislature in the interest of such legislation as may be desired.—R. A. Barney, M. C. Newell and M. P. Madsen.
