HOT WORDS PASSED.

Eruption in the Third District Court Today.

HOWAT EXCRESSES HIMSELF

On the Criticism of Officers in the Grice Case—Grice is Convicted —Other Cases.

As the fire in the Third district court business today came forth in one kind, but fierce and livid flash, startling judge, jury and attorneys, and giving room to sensational gossip. It was in the trial of Samuel Grice, indicted for burglarizing Wilson's butcher shop in the Fifteenth ward. The testimony was all in, and the case was proceeding slowly to the monotony of an argument before the jury. Attorney Hamilton, for the defendant, criticised the evidence given by the police, as being tainted with an eagerness to convict. In his address he suggested that perhaps Detective Shoels and other police officers and had their emphasis crossed as to Grice at the time when Shoels and others met the murderer, Coughlin and George, north of the Hot Springs and allowed them to escape. This manner of argument was to show that somehow officers drew largely on their imaginations for alleged facts, or at least were inclined to exaggerate.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Howat followed for the prosecution. He was not long reaching the point of the sensibility of the officers, and then in impassioned language he hurl forth in scathing rebuke of Mr. Hamilton and others who similarly criticised the officers. The incident regarding Coughlin and George, said he, had nothing to do with this case. The fact that those thieves and murderers had killed moderate officers, thunndered Judge Howat, was probably what emboldened these outlaws to the contest for the defense in this illustration here. Mr. Hamilton winced under the fire and tried to dark it, but to no avail. The comparisons in the magazine had been inserted and the explosion could not be avoided. With the fierceness of the characteristic South wind and denunciation Judge Howat went on to the denunciation of attorneys who would criticise officers, assisted to maintain the peace and protect the people, and would make them appear to be less worthy of credence than murderers and thieves.

The speech was short, but fall of fire. The outcome of the case was that Grice was convicted of the burglary charges against him, and sentence will be pronounced on Thursday.

Upon the conclusion of the Grice case, another burglary case came up, and Henry Howatt was placed on trial for complicity in the robbery of R. H. Eastley's store in the Third ward. The other defendants were Mathew Curtis, Daniel Henry and Raymond Curtis. The burglary took place Dec. 11, 1894. The trial was in progress this afternoon.

Judge Sutton also made orders in other cases as follows:

People vs Joe O'Brien; larceny; dismissed on motion of the prosecuting attorney.

Martin Lanzi vs F. S. Hadre; motion for new trial heretofore submitted was overruled.

People vs Samuel Grice; burglary; jury returned a verdict of guilty; sentence to be passed later.

Peter Clark pleaded not guilty to murder in the first degree, in killing Henry R. Nugent.

BEFORE JUDGE HENRITZE.

The chief Justice conducted the civil action branch of the court as follows:

E. T. Singer vs Salt Lake City Copper Manufacturing company; order granting leave for Abraham Hangsterfer to file cross complaint, and order referred to issue on same.

Bothwell & McConaughy vs Archie Frank et al; motion of Charles England engrossed, and order that the case continue as to Charles Seaford and Curtis Seaford, surviving partners.

Geo. M. Scott & Co. vs Highland Mining Co. et al; order dismissing suit as to A. E. Holden; judgment given for plaintiff.

Lydia E. Trumbo vs Old Jordan and Galena Mining company; case dismissed, having been settled.

Taylor, Romney & Armstrong company vs Fireman National Insurance company; order setting aside entry of clerk sustaining demurrer, and order sustaining the overruling of the demurrer.

In the matter of the estate of Milton C. Alwood; petitioner demands a jury trial; court denies the request and gives leave to file bill of exceptions; time of case before court in progress.

STARTED THE MERRY-GO-ROUND.

David Nutbergall was taken into custody by Sheriff Hardy this morning on a complaint made by the proprietor of the merry-go-round which has been running on West Temple street, just south of South Temple. Nutbergall has been employed there, and a dispute had arisen between him and the proprietor. Evidently the proprietor got the better of the first encounter, for another move was taken against him. This was the "taking" of his merry-go-round, which has been unable to turn since. He accuses Nutbergall of having disarranged the machinery by removing some small piece, causing all the trouble. The accused will have his trial before U. S. Commissioner Sumner tomorrow, and will remain in jail until that time unless he can secure $25 bail.

Children don't cry for Dr. Price's Baking Powder—what they do cry for are the cake-doughnuts it makes.

ALL ARE NOT BIBULOUS.

Several of the Fair Laddies Who Do Not Indulge in Bacchanalian Revelry.

The daily and nightly high jinks that have been carrying on about fire department headquarters during the absence of Chief Devine at Augusta, Georgia, whither he has gone to represent the city at the annual convention of national engineers, and which he expects to have meet in this city next year, promise to develop into a muddle and scandal of anything but decorous proportions.

At the "extraordinary" session of the police and fire commission tonight several of the offending firemen will be put "upon the carpet" and be made to account for their so-called conduct. Chief Pratt has furnished the commission with a list of those whose behavior has brought disgrace upon the department. He states with the commissioners and the public the opinion that firemen should be engaged in better business than filling with the disreputable female inmates of the city jail, getting drunk, making punchinellos of such others there and using language that properly belongs to the scums and bowery haunts.

Many of the firemen are innocent of these indiscretions and feel that an injustice has been done them or the public has not yet been apprised who the guilty participants are. Still they will not give information against the latter class protesting that all details shall come to the public through the meetings of the commission.

The general belief seems to be that some of the old saw, "when the cat's away the mice will play."

Municipal Matters.

The City Council will meet tonight.

The new city jail proposition seems to have gone glimmering towards the distant future.

Surely, but not very slowly, the municipal treasury is being relieved of the surplus cash it has contained for the last year or more.

It is now an established fact that the gentlemen who believe in Mayor Baskin's official nod over theory are not all members of the same political party.

During these days of autumn sunshine and waning moonlight nights the beautiful grounds of the joint city and county building are freely visited by lovers of the surrounding stillness and of—each other.

ACTIVITY IN COURT.

Untold Numbers Before Judge Smith, in Today's Police Court.

A scene of activity was that behold in the police court this afternoon, an untold number of complainants, witnesses, defendants and attorneys being present who had some connection with the cases at bar. Judge Smith stood a strain very well and disposed of the following cases:

The case of Elsie St. Omar, Dora Moore and Mary Johnson, charged with prostitution, was set for next Friday and the parties allowed to go on their own recognizance.

In the case of Walter Brown, charged with vagrancy, a plea of guilty was entered and time for sentence set for tomorrow at 10 a. m., and defendant allowed to go on his own recognizance.

J. A. Rosenbaugh and Thomas Cook forfeited $5 for gambling, while Jack Snyder was fined $2 for the same offense. This is the game in which the canaries and cards figured prominently.

The charge of vagrancy against Bert Howatt was changed to one of having obscene pictures in his possession, to which he plead guilty, and was fined $10.

Stephen Hubbel, a colored hot tamale vendor, and Edward Washington, in whose house he was rooming, arrested on charge of stealing his tamale cart, and assault and battery. The evidence produced showed that Hubbel owed Washington $4.50 and that Washington had taken possession of the cart as security. On this showing the first charge was dismissed, but defendant was found guilty of the second and will be sentenced tomorrow.

John Smith was arraigned this morning on a charge of vagrancy. When asked for his plea, he said, "I don't see how I can be charged with vagrancy when I was arrested on suspicion. This is a dangerous court." This bitter remark cost him $10 for contempt, but notwithstanding this he kept on talking. When brought up this afternoon he demanded a jury trial and his case was set for tomorrow, that being time he will begin to jail.

Annie Doule, the prostitute, failed to materialize this afternoon, and a bench warrant was issued to bring her into court.

Richard Hardrick was fined $5 for being drunk, while the same charge against Tom Shaw was dismissed.

The case of Frank Jones, charged with carjoking, in stealing the horse of Clerk Walker of the City House, was to be tried this afternoon.

Short Century.

Upon the lift of the meeting house, as we drove up the hill, was an inclosed pasture, within which were half a dozen wagons, one of which was the King's. All around the edges of this area of sod buffaloes were squatted. Most men and women. As we drove up the king's "talking man" was standing engaged in delivering a speech. We sat down with the others on the grass and listened. A young Maori beside us, who spoke good English, translated here and there. It was a speech of welcome. After he sat down there was a silence for some time. Then one of the reading chiefs, with whom we were to sing, rose to reply. It was Te Heu Heu, chief of the natives in the district round Lake Taupo. Advancing toward the center of the paddock and turning toward the king, he spoke slowly at first, walking a few steps between each sentence, then more rapidly, with excellent elocutionary gesture and effect. Though we understood nothing of the rapidly spoken sentences, the rhythmic movement effect of the language was very striking. The Maori is a born orator, and even what we saw quickly saw, he practices carefully the art of production (so the singers say). A gesture and of Good expression. After Te Heu Heu, our fellow traveler, Mangatahaka, a chief from the Coromandel district, who, besides being an orator in his own language, possesses considerable fluency in English, made a speech.

At the conclusion of this speech a maiden seated from the audience of the immediate crowd to sit to look, and we saw some fifty Maori men and women, in serried ranks, coming toward us, singing in chorus and keeping step to the music. In their hands they carried small baskets woven of raupo reeds, containing tea, or food. This was the "war dance." The leader gave out the chant in a loud voice and the chorus took it up, advancing in time meanwhile until they came opposite us. Then they placed the baskets on the ground and retreated.—Outlook Review of Reviews.

OGDEN.

OGDEN, UTAH, Oct. 3, 1893.

Junction City Notes.

The rain war between the Union Pacific R. R. and the Denver & Rio Grande still continues and the public gets a return ticket to Salt Lake for fifty cents, which will from all appearances continue until the 12th.

Conference visitors who went down on the D. & R. G. complain of the treatment which they received. Those who failed to avail themselves of the $.50 go. train to return on Sunday evening had to wait for the midnight train, and passengers for Hooper station were run into Ogden, the trainmen having no instructions to stop at that point.

David Kuhn, of Huntsville, lost his hand in a threshing machine. While oiling some wheel the tip of his glove was caught in the wheels and his fingers were drawn in and smashed, leaving all his fingers of the left hand in the machine just above the knuckles. Dr. Rich amputated the hand about an inch above where it had been cut off by the wheels. Mr. Kuhn is 28 years of age and with his family resides in Huntsville.

Marriage licenses have been issued to Erastus Geurster, 23, of Huntsville, and Miss Annie M. Stevers, 18, of Montpelier, Idaho; to David Urquhart, of Oakland, Cal., and Miss Catherine C. Hayes, of Ogden.

F. B. Dennis and Miss Rhoda De Wolf were married yesterday by Commissioner Holecski.

It is estimated that 2,500 people went down to Salt Lake from Ogden on Saturday evening.

The Coughlin and George trial is set for Monday, October 21st.

PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, Oct. 3, 1893.

First District Court.

W. F. Bowen has brought an action against the Rio Grande Western Railway company to recover $400 for three horses which he claims were killed by the defendant company on the railroad track, near Payson, in April, this year.

Axel Helgesen has brought suit against Daniel Kinz Jr. and Elizabeth King to collect $908.25 on a promissory note and foreclosure of mortgage on Spanish Fork realty given to secure said note.

The case of Heber McFeel vs Parley Hansen, a suit to collect $27.50 claimed by defendant for wages, was tried in part before Judge King this morning, after which the case of the people vs McCarty and Malmgreen was proceeded with.

Sarah C. Lewis, of Manassa, Colorado, was granted a divorce from Wm. R. Lewis on the ground of desertion.

The miscellaneous proceedings brought by Andrew Spencer against Registrar Brown to compel the latter to permit the applicant to register, was decided in favor of the applicant, and the registrar was ordered to place his name on the list of voters. Mr. Spencer came here some time ago from Washington county and is now attending the Brigham Young Academy. He brought his family and sold his property in Washington before he moved here and does not consider Washington his home.

Notes.

At a meeting of the Republican county central committee, held yesterday, Late E. Eggleston was nominated for county superintendent of schools, George H. Brimhall, the convention nominee, having resigned.

John W. Pike, who for many years filled the position of court stenographer in the First district court, will soon move to Salt Lake City.

W. C. Stone and family have gone to Waltham, Massachusetts, on a visit to Mr. Stone's parents and relatives. They intend to remain during the winter, and possibly longer.

F. J. Kramer, of Denver, the engineer of the Provo Electric Light & Power Co., has been in the city several days. It is the intention of the company to resume work on the dam at the mouth of Provo canyon in a few days.

A stockholders' meeting of the Alma Mining company and a directors' meeting of the Grand Central Mining company were held this morning in the Commercial & Savings bank.

STOCKS AND MARKETS.

New York, Oct. 3.—Trading was moderate in volume at the opening of stock exchange this morning and prices generally. The tendency was not changed. Sugar trading in sugar carried the price up 1 per cent. The general list also improved to a fractional extent. Later a call for further speculation caused a gain of 1½ per cent in sugar, and fractional gains in other shares in consequence.

Around 11 o'clock was a general covering of shorts and long stock distributed sellers in the line. The general market showed slight gains.
