

SECOND EDITION. DESERET EVENING NEWS.

Friday, September 29, 1892.

LOCAL BREVIETIES.

The movements of the Eleventh ward will now be in the old ward schoolhouse at 6 o'clock tonight. All interested are invited.

MASON HARRIS today visited the construction of the new bridge over the Bear River, providing for the construction of a wagon road to Morgan county via the Creek and Hardscrabell canyons. An order was issued by the engineer to cover the chief executive's veto.

In the absence of Assistant District Attorney Stephen from the Third district court today—In having a place to go to in the course of his practice of law, he has engaged the services of an attorney—Assistant County Attorney Johnson took his place as prosecuting attorney, and assumed his duties in the Police court tomorrow.

CORNELIA H. BRADLEY, wife of chairman of the police committee says that the three vacancies now existing in the police force will be filled before the election. Also that her additional officers will be given positions, making in all an increase of seven policemen over what are now employed.

Weather Forecast.
For Utah Fair, under in northern and southern portions, San Francisco, Cal., 11 a.m., Sept. 29, 1892.

Book For Women.

"Home Treatment for the Diseases of Women" is the title of a work written by John A. Miller, and published by the author, whose address is 1125 Geary Street, San Francisco. It is a most excellent work which any intelligent person can understand and as a preliminary study for women contemplating entering the medical field it is invaluable. It is a work out of the common way and is evidently written by a man of much man.

Latest Court News.

That was grand both inside and outside Judge Anderson's court this afternoon. It was made up of from 150 to 200 men of all nationalities, seeking admission to citizenship.

The jury in the case of Joseph Hedges— tried in Justice Zane's court this afternoon—found that seven year-old girls were under lock and key when the News went to press, but then like a disagreement of the twelve.

Edward Young, tried this morning for breaking and entering, was found guilty and sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

The Coming Fair.

The Territorial Fair will open at the Exposition building on Tuesday next, and continue until October 6th. The decorations promise to be very attractive and the condition of the grounds, under the management of Mr. Emery, is everything that can be desired.

The lower Main Street is the saving attraction, five stories high. The display will take place in the afternoon and one evening at the fair. The price of a membership ticket is $2, which entitles the holder to admission to all the attractions and animals as desired. The single admission is fifty cents, children twenty-five cents, and solo children, when accompanied by their teachers, ten cents. Last year the admission was $1.50, but the attendance was small, but with all the attendance the association came out $200 behind.

DIED IN NEW ZEALAND.

Elder Otto Lyman Chapman, of American Fork, Passes away in a Foreign Land.

The following self-explanatory telegram was received in this city at 10 o'clock last night:

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29, 1892.—President Wilson Woodson.

Elder Otto Lyman Chapman died August 26, in New Zealand. His family family at American Fork. An inquest was held.

THOMAS C. STANZON,
I. J. HAWKES.

Returning missionaries in charge of the funeral.

The remains left San Francisco last night and are expected to reach here tomorrow evening. The cause of the sudden and unexpected death has not been learned here as yet, but full particulars will be obtainable when the arrival of Elmer Stanzor and Hawkes with the body.

The deceased was about 21 years of age and was born and raised at New Haven, Conn. He had an excellent education. He was a bright young man and had a promising future. His parents are Washington and Caroline Chapman. The friends of the deceased have made arrangements to have the remains brought to the United States and the arrival of Elmer Stanzor and Hawkes with the body.

A SHORT SESSION.

The Police Bucket Cleared Again On Short Order This Morning.

Business was light in the Police court again today. At a quarter past ten the docket was cleared. The cases disposed of were:

J. W. Single, drunk, $5; A. Mogil, drunk, $5; George Klein, assault and battery, $5.

A warrant was issued this morning for the arrest of John John, a couple of Germans residing on Teeky's addition, corner of Second Street and Twelfth South streets. The complainant witness was also a German, John F. T. Fausner. He alleges that the accused made forcible entrance into his house during his absence and stole a mattress belonging to whomsoever known as Rosa Dore. The case will be investigated in the Police court tomorrow.

JOINING THE FARMER.
Be Arrested As Though He Was Dead With the State Tax.

He sat at the table of a country hotel and ate and ate. He had driven from his farm that morning to sell a load of new potatoes to the landlord, which had been damaged by the summer blight. There had been some lagging over the price, and the landlord had thrown in a dollar dinner for the farmer to clear the account. The landlord wanted his load to go, so he sold him for a dollar less than he had asked.

Mr. Harrison related that when the victim could not get his load back in his chair, tilted slightly and found time to regard the city folk about him, whose poor appetites were a source of wonder to him.

"These are potatos of yours are excellent," said one of the party, anxious to draw him out in conversation.

"It's a turned shame to dig them now," answered he. "They're small and few in the hill. It's wasting good potatoes to eat them now. In a month they'll be full size and nothing wasted," he sighed heavily, "but your city folks is mighty imprudent."

"And then in the spring you'll have to wash and scrub of them that had destroyed in your cellar, and throw them away," answered a port city girl who had had to contend with such sort of economy before at an earlier farmer's table.

The farmer had not ready reply to this girl, so he looked meekly about for assistance.

"The landlord doesn't supply toothpicks and more," said the funny teacher, "unless the green neck to carrying them around with them."

The farmer, who was a member of the funny bunch, responded, "I am not a thief, and I have to contend with the men who have been robbing us since the men who are entitled to the fruits of the earth are entitled to the fruits of the earth."

He carried an ax with which the landlord had supplied him.

The man who was the mystery is Frank W. Holt. He has been fully identified as the man seen running away from the scene of the crime and some of Paulsen's jewelry was found on him. He remained armed with an ax.

Cleveland in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Frank Paulsen, a young Army veteran, was seriously beaten to death in an upper room at Hotel street late last night. When discovered there were evidences of a mortal struggle. In the victim's pocket was a bullet which apparently came from the gun of the assassin. Later a man came to the murderer.

He carried an ax with which the landlord had supplied him.

The man who was the mystery is Frank W. Holt. He has been fully identified as the man seen running away from the scene of the crime and some of Paulsen's jewelry was found on him. He remained armed with an ax.

Cleveland in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Otto Clegg, a man arrived from Bussard Bay this morning and was driven at once to Victoria Park, where he was found hanging from a tree in a state of unconsciousness. He was discovered by two people who had been walking near the park.

James C. Corlett, who was with him, was sent for to the hospital.

The two other callers were W. H. Green, who held a brief conference with the ex-President.

A Watering-Tearoom.

BELMONT, N.Y., Sept. 29.—General Carl Schurz, the last surviving German who had been a part of the battle of Waterloo, died today in Belmont, N.Y.

He was 86 years old and had teeth that I have never seen my mother's either.

They don't get a dentist to fill them for you," said another.

"Some people can stand it," said he, "but I don't care how they do. It would be no use for me. I'd rather suffer the aches. From my cold days I never could stand the heat better than the table among ladies, but I am not worried with bad teeth that I have to dig my mouth after every meal.

Then in the spring you'll have to wash and scrub of them that had destroyed in your cellar, and throw them away," answered a port city girl who had had to contend with such sort of economy before at an earlier farmer's table.

The farmer had not ready reply to this girl, so he looked meekly about for assistance.
